Three Named By Truman To Study Coal Issues

25% Freight Cut Ordered by ICC In Further Move To Save Supplies

President Truman yesterday named the three members of the board of inquiry which will look into the issues of the soft-coal strike.

At the same time, in a move further to conserve coal supplies, the Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday ordered a 25 per cent reduction in freight service on coal-burning railroads. It will go into effect at midnight next Tuesday.

Board Appointments

Those appointed to the board of inquiry are:

Sherman Minton, former Democratic Senator from Indiana and now a Federal judge on the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals.

George W. Taylor, former chairman of the War Labor Board and now professor of industrial relations at the University of Pennsylvania.

Mark F. Ethridge, publisher of the Louisville Courier-Journal.

They will probably hold their first meeting here tomorrow. Although they have until April 5 to render a report, it is believed that they can act sooner, so that an injunction against the strike can be sought by late next week.

Operators Criticize Delay

John D. Battle, executive secretary of the National Coal Association, said yesterday that the board "should require only a matter of hours" to make their findings.

They will study the controversy over the creation of a pension plan for coal miners, the heart of the present dispute.

Meantime, the Nation-wide coal stoppage has not yet seriously affected steel-producing operations. The metal industry's trade weekly Iron Age said steel firms were gambling on a short strike and keeping their production high.

Serious Possibilities Cited

If they lose the gamble, the magazine said, "it means that in the next few weeks the steel rate will fall rapidly, shipments will be held up and the general hysterical cry for steel will again be raised."

Not generally realized, the trade paper said, is the impact a prolonged coal shutdown would have on the Marshall Plan or on any defense program that may be coming.

It described the strike situation as "far more serious than either the public or the Government realizes."

U. S. 'Sandman' Says Twin Beds Are on Way Out

New York, March 24 (U.P.).—The Nation's number one sandman predicted today that twin beds will soon disappear from the American scene.

Norman S. Dine, who sells soporific gadgets at the Lewis and Conger Sleep Shop, says women have always had the good sense to prefer double beds.

"During my 15 years of selling sleeping accessories and advice," he said, "they confided in me. They said they liked a double bed because sleeping beside a man was reassuring and restful."

Many dreaded a cold bed, and others, Dine said, claimed it was their only chance to talk to their husbands.

Practically all agreed it improved the chance for domestic harmony."

But, Dine said, the males couldn't see it that way. They insisted upon their privacy.

They argued that in a double bed they couldn't retain their individualism. And all of them, Dine said, wanted to be able to sprawl over the entire bed.

Eisler Receives 1 to 3 Years on Passport Count

'No. 1 Communist' Fails In Dramatic Plea for Return to Germany

Gerhart Eisler, professed writer and avowed German Communist, yesterday pleaded passionately but fruitlessly here to be sent back to his native land, Germany.

Instead, he was sentenced to one to three years imprisonment by District Court Justice James W. Morris on charge of making false statements on an exit permit application. The sentence is to run consecutively to a similar one previously imposed on a contempt of Congress charge.

He was then released under $20,000 bond pending appeal.

Pudgy, balding and 51, Eisler pleaded for deportation, assailed his enemies and charged that his being sentenced to jail would encourage those who use justice and law as the cover for pure political persecution.

Speaks for 20 Minutes

He held out his hands imploringly, pounded the table angrily and at times shouted almost hysterically in accents strongly guttural. He spoke for 20 minutes, following his prepared script mostly from memory as reporters followed their copies word for word.

Much of his present trouble he laid to the House Un-American Activities Committee and its chairman, J. Parnell Thomas, (R., N. J.).

"It was easier to get the verdict of guilty by a jury in Washington, the Government city, by calling me an anti-government man par excellence, than to give the jury a true explanation of the real reasons for the indictment, of the political force that was behind this indictment and which led to this indictment and to the verdict," he shouted, accusingly.

Eisler was found guilty of the passport charge last August but sentencing was deferred till yesterday through appeals and presentence investigations.

Describing himself as a "German Communist" and "true German anti-Fascist" he said his exit permit was revoked "not because my departure would have harmed

Ex-King Late, But 1350 Wait To Keep Date

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

King Michael (out) of Romania yesterday proved that a King can do no wrong—if he's tall, handsome, and charming.

He was 25 minutes late for a luncheon date with the National Press Club, but neither the 850 stags who came to hear him, nor the 500 women who came to see him, showed signs of fret or fume.

The ladies—ranging in age from baby-soxers to dowagers—jammed the entrance and lobby of the National Press Building, F and 14th sts. nw. Unrestrainedly, they ogled, ooh-ed, and ah-ed at Michael's regal figure—5 feet 11 inches, 165 pounds, fair complexion, wavy light brown hair, blue eyes.

His majesty responded with a grin of delight.

The men, somewhat more dignified than the more emotional sex, were equally curious to meet the 26-year-old King-in-exile. They filled every seat in the large Press Club banquet hall, overflowing onto the stage, and took up all standing space. In fact, it was the biggest luncheon turnout in Press Club history, excepting only the

Total of 109,779 View German Art

An unprecedented eight-day total of 109,779 persons have visited the National Gallery of Art to view the almost priceless collection of German paintings on display there, gallery officials announced yesterday.

While a large number of spectators was expected, officials said they were "astonished" at the turnout. Yesterday, 12,012 persons visited the gallery to see the 202 paintings by world-famed masters, on exhibit here until April 18, after which they are scheduled to be returned to Germany.

The exhibit opened March 17, and an all-time museum attendance record of 35,593 was set last Sunday. Exhibit hours are 10 a. m. to 5 p. m. on weekdays, and 2 p. m. to 10 p. m on Sundays

FBI Enters Investigation Of Tavern Gravestone Trail

The Federal Bureau of Investigation entered the case of the misused gravestones.

FBI agents were dispatched to find out how and why more than a score of Arlington National Cemetary gravemarkers were being used for an Arlington County tavern footpath and rear yard patio. The standard markers, rounded at the tops, were found laid end to end outside the Owl Tavern, 1716 Wilson blvd., with inscriptions face down.

Five of them laid side to side formed a small but neat patio at the back of the tavern.

The Government-furnished white marble tombstones were found by investigators of the Military District of Washington after telephoned complaint Tuesday. FBI entry in the case yesterday indicated the MDW had withdrawn, satisfied no military personnel was involved.

Sole explanation offered yesterday came from a bartender identified as Pop Weber, relative of the liquor license holder at the tavern, who said they were "found six months ago along the mud banks of the Potomac River." He refused further comment.

The stones were removed early yesterday and returned to storage at the cemetery by Oscar C. Aubrey of 1601 18th st. n, Arlington, a civilian private contractor for the cemetery.

License holder at the tavern was identified through Virginia Alcoholic Beverage Control Board records as Mrs. Kathryn Weber.

Col. W. L. Nee, military district information officer, said cemetery regulations require that the gravestones be returned to storage at the cemetery and all inscriptions obliterated after they are replaced at relatives' expense by other monuments. The confiscated markers, he said, had not been stolen from actual burial plots.

Vote Records Stolen in Mo. County

Thirty Poll Books Disappear After FBI Starts Check

New Madrid, Mo., March 24 (U.P.).—The theft of all records of voting in New Madrid County in the 1948 general election was disclosed today.

County Clerk Van W. Robbs said the theft was disclosed last Wednesday when two FBI agents came to his office to look over the records for the second time. The FBI earlier had checked the same records on Friday or Saturday of the previous week.

The FBI at St. Louis declined to comment.

Robbs said the records had been kept in an unlocked vault in the courthouse. Scratches on the windowsill of the clerk's office indicated the thief of thieves had gained entry through a first floor window.

The FBI has been investigating reports of election irregularities in southeast Missouri since last fall. Three Democrats from nearby Scott County and six Republicans from Butler County have been indicted on vote buying charges as a result of the inquiry.

Fake Release On Lard Sale Is Probed

Alleged Plot to Use Agriculture Dept. Press Service in Speculation Aired

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

A plot to use the Agriculture Department Press Service to make a killing in the lard market last September, is under investigation it was revealed yesterday.

Two separate probes are under way, a Department official stated; one by an Agriculture sleuth and the other by the Department of Justice.

The disclosure came as Agriculture Department officials forwarded to Chairman August H. Andresen (R., Minn.) of the House Speculation Investigating Committee, a full report of alleged leaks last September of Government export plans.

Not in Agriculture

The report sent to Andresen will state that there is no evidence that any leak took place at the Agriculture Department. It adds, however, that a girl clerk at the Commerce Department had admitted telling a friend in a fats and oils industry association that an increased allocation of lard for export had been approved. The girl, it was reliably stated, denied that she had revealed the amount involved.

Shortly after the leak about Government lard export allocations for the last quarter of 1947 was discovered, newsmen covering the department, found a strange release in their mailboxes.

The release had been distributed while the reporters were at a news conference in Secretary Anderson's office.

The release stated that lard allocations for the first half of 1948 had been vastly increased. In ending, it listed several Government officials as confirmation.

Newsmen who sensed something wrong, called George Prichard of the fats and oils branch of the Production and Marketing Administration, who immediately denied the statement.

All Copies Seized

All copies of the fake release were then gathered by Government officials, and the probe ordered. Only a few copies had been picked up by reporters before they were seized.

Events proved that the information contained in the release was false. Had it been printed, experts say, the market probably would have responded first by plunging suddenly upward, and then as suddenly dropping when the report was officially denied.

Officials say the investigations have led to a group of prominent speculators in lard. A full report of the investigation, it is said, is being made to the Senate Speculation Investigating Committee headed by Senator Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.).

Last night Andresen said his committee had heard of the attempted ruse, and also was investigating it.

3 Sentences Inserted

FBI Not Author of Garbled Paragraph in Condon Report

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

The House Un-American Activities Subcommittee report on Dr. E. U. Condon "quotes" from an FBI communication a paragraph of garbled data which the FBI did not write, it was learned yesterday.

The passage purports to be part of a letter which FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover wrote to the Department of Commerce on May 15, 1947, about Condon, who is head of the National Bureau of Standards.

The subcommittee report on Condon was released on March 1. Two days later, The Washington Post disclosed that when the subcommittee quoted "in part" from the now-famous Hoover letter, it omitted a key sentence. It was not until yesterday, however, that it was discovered that the subcommittee also inserted three sentences which Hoover did not write.

The passage is a supposed summary of passport applications of Dr. and Mrs. Condon for foreign travel. Sources known to be familiar with the text of the Hoover letter assert that the sentences do not appear in that communication.

The Commerce Department has refused a request of the Un-American Activities Subcommittee to make the Hoover letter public. Meantime, the subcommittee itself has not disclosed how its investigators came into possession of the parts quoted in its report.

The inserted passage appears at the end of the portion of the Hoover letter quoted in the subcommittee report. It is included within the quotation marks surrounding the Hoover letter and is not a separate paragraph. The section reads:

"Mrs. Emily Condon applied for passports for European travel in 1926, and passport for travel to Russia in 1945. Passports were withdrawn, Condon issued passport 276319 on October 11, 1946, to travel and study in Germany, France, Holland, Italy, Czechoslovakia, Great Britain, Denmark, and Switzerland. He applied for passport June 4, 1948, to Russia which was issued but was later canceled by the Army."

According to Dr. Condon, the section is a mixture of fact and fiction. He declared that "the

Draft of Men 19-27 Is Part of Defense Plan

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

New draft legislation calling for the registration of all men from 18 to 45 years old has been proposed by top defense officials, it was learned last night.

Unless overruled by the White House, Defense Secretary James Forrestal will urge such a wide manpower count to Congress this morning as part of the broad new preparedness program.

At a late hour yesterday, the rearmament plan still was unsettled. Forrestal called the three defense department secretaries and top ranking generals and admirals for a full dress conference last night to decide many points then still in the air.

However, it is known that the program definitely will contain heavy outlays for new tanks and weapons for the Army. Approximately a billion dollars is expected to be recommended for modern antiaircraft rifles, recoilless guns, and other new types developed since the war-end.

The preparedness program, which originally was confined largely to filling out service manpower shortages, has become a balanced plan taking care of the needs of all the services.

Estimates of the cost of the program varied. An authoritative source at the Pentagon said the total additional expenditures to be proposed for the armed services next year would be roughly four billion dollars. Still more money—perhaps several billions extra—will be asked in the form of contract authorization, it was said.

This will be largely for new warplanes. Deliveries of aircraft ordered next year would not begin until the year after, and actual appropriations would not have to be made until a year from now to pay for them.

Some congressional leaders, however, heard the total program, including such other security outlays as stockpiling of scarce materials, etc., might run as high as 10 billion dollars.

Military chiefs were said to have asked the new registration of all men 18 to 45—despite the fact that most of them registered for the old draft—because these old manpower figures are out of date. If there is to be a new selective service system with another registration, they felt that a complete picture of the American personnel situaiton should be obtained.

Only men 19 to 26 or 27, however, would be subject to call, officials say. War veterans and married men undoubtedly would be de-

Fatal Atomic Cloud Newest U. S. Weapon

Glenn Martin Also Lists Lethal Bacteria, Ship-Hunting Missiles

New York, March 24 (A.P.).—The United States has developed a radioactive cloud that "kills any one who comes in contact with it," Glenn L. Martin, airplane manufacturer, said today.

"Is is effective over a much larger area than is the atom bomb," he said, "and might make the area it touches radioactive for an indefinite time."

Martin said the cloud is spread by wind and its use requires sure knowledge of weather conditions or it might backfire on its users.

The head of the plane manufacturing company that bears his name said that the United States had a new A-bomb much more effective than ones dropped on Japan, which are now obsolete.

Missiles for Ships, Foundries

Both the cloud and the bomb use the same material, he said, but the former is a vapor, formed either by itself or by sprinkling existing clouds with the material, while the latter is a detonation instrument.

Martin told reporters the Navy also has perfected guided missiles with a homing device that can search out a ship at sea and destroy it.

"We can sink the ship even if it is half way across the ocean," he said. "All we have to do is to get our own ships out of the way."

The guided missiles can also be used to hit iron foundries and "It will be possible to eliminate a nation's steel industry in time."

Martin also mentioned new bacteria weapons, some of them capable of lying dormant for a time and then "making the victim ill, with an illness from which he does not recover."

"Could Decide War in 60 Days"

He said that these latest weapons made it likely that if another war comes the ultimate course of it would be determined within 60 days. "After that it would be a matter of policy as to how long it was allowed to drag on before the final mopping up," he said.

Martin added that "our greatest weapons are some months away."

"It will take two years before we could produce sufficient aircraft of the new type now being developed. Missiles would be ready much more quickly," he said.

The methods by which the radioactive clouds are being made and tested are top military secrets, Martin said.

"I can mention them because they were discussed recently in a scientific magazine article," he said.

Hoover Urges House to Vote Full ERP Sum

Backs Foreign Aid Bill Except for Few Minor Changes

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

Former President Hoover yesterday jolted the thinning ranks of House Republicans who still would like to cut or cripple the foreign aid program.

Hoover wrote to Speaker Martin that the total amount should not be reduced, and that the present bill should be passed virtually intact. His letter was read on the House floor during the second day's debate on the $6,205,000,000 foreign aid measure.

If any cuts are possible, Hoover wrote, they can be made by the Appropriations Committee later.

Only two months ago, in a letter to Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, Hoover had argued that three billion dollars would be enough for world-wide relief, with an additional billion to be loaned for European recovery. He had also objected to spending American taxpayers' money to buy supplies for Europe from outside the United States.

Looks Like Reversal

His latest letter thus looked like a sharp reversal and was expected to sway some Republicans who had hoped to slash the first year's spending.

"The plan, if well devised and under a capable administrator, stands a good chance of success," the former President wrote. "I believe it is worth taking the chance."

His letter was read on a day which produced other reversals by three Represnetatives in favor of the foreign aid program.

Representative Jonkman (R., Mich.), who voted against interim aid last winter, declared that "there should be no hesitation in passing this bill." Representative Winstead (D., Miss.) said he had opposed many foreign economic programs in the past, but saw no alternative to passing this one.

O'Konski Turns About

The most spectacular somersault of all came from Representative O'Konski (R., Wis.), a bitter foe of every international measure of recent years, who announced he would vote for the present bill. His chief complaint was that it did not include American help for Franco Spain, which, he said, could send badly needed food to the rest of Europe.

His plea for Spain was loudly applauded by Republicans, includ-

1-Year Control Extension

Final Congress Action Slated Today on New Rent Measure

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

A compromise rent-control bill resting ultimate authority over ceilings in the Emergency Court of Appeals will be laid before House and Senate for final action today.

A spokesman for the Housing Expediter's office said the new measure, which extends controls until March 31, 1949, is "better" than last year's law.

The conference report, agreed upon by the conferees of both Houses, provides for automatic referral of disputes between a local board and the Federal Housing Expediter over rent ceilings to the Emergency Appellate Court.

The Emergency Court was first established under the price-control law of 1942. The court can meet anywhere in the United States and has no fixed bench of judges. It comes into being when the Chief Justice of the United States names three or more judges from a United States District Court or a Circuit Court of Appeals to act.

The Chief Justice may name as many judges as are necessary to this special court, and may subdivide the court into as many groups of three as necessary for fast handling of appeals.

Because rent controls are extended only for one year, the conference report will ask the court to act within a stated time, probably 30 days, except in extraordinary cases.

If the Housing Expediter overrules a local board's decision to grant a rent increase, the Emergency Court will automatically get the briefs for both sides and will render a decision.

The House originally voted to make the local board's decision final and the Senate had voted to

(Roll Call Vote, Page 4)

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

The House yesterday with unparalleled speed accepted the Senate's 4.8-billion-dollar individual tax cut and rushed it to the White House before the ink was hardly dry.

The vote was 289 to 67, or 51 more than needed to override an expected veto. President Truman has until April 5 to say "No."

If he backs a veto with recommended billions for preparedness costs, anything could happen on the next tax round, although an overrider is presently indicated.

May Submit Estimates Today

Even as the House met an hour early to speed the cut, reports spread that the President will submit his new defense estimates today.

Democratic leaders were plainly counting on these to bulwark their case that you can't build up defenses, meet a world emergency and cut taxes too—without deficit financing.

Minority Leader Sam Rayburn (D., Tex.) hammered the House with this argument yesterday:

"In the face of world disorganization and disorder hadn't we better stay in a position where we will have the money to defend our shores?"

In Tax-Cutting Mood

But the House was in a tax-cutting mood. More than half of the Democrats and all but one Republican voted for the slash.

The House divided this way: For the cut—205 Republicans and 84 Democrats. Against the cut—64 Democrats, 1 Republican and New York's 2 American Laborites.

Coming after the Senate's 78-to-11 approval of the cut, the 4-to-1 House vote of approval convinced most members the bill will become law even if Congress has to sharply raise taxes again.

Representative Robert L. Doughton (D., N. C.) put that oft-repeated argument this way:

"If these (world) contingencies arise, higher taxes can again be more safely imposed upon the foundation of a tax system that treats alike all taxpayers, similarly situated, wherever they may reside."

Refers to Income Splitting

He was referring to the bill's extension of the community property (split income) tax feature to married couples in all States.

Other provisions raise personal and dependency exemptions for all from $500 to $600, and range percentage tax reductions from 12.6 per cent in the lower brackets to 5 per cent at the top.

Benefits are retroactive to January 1, but the lowered withholding rates won't be felt in the pay line until May 1 and after. Tax overpayments between January 1 and May would be refunded to taxpayers next year.

The bill not only allows husbands and wives to divide their income equally for tax purposes, but applies the same "splitting"

Minor Planet Believed Found In Earth's Orbit

Cambridge, Mass., 24 (A.P.).—Harvard Observatory announced today discovery by a California astronomer of what may be the fourth minor planet in history which has moved into the orbit of the earth.

Dr. C. D. Shane of Lick Observatory, Calif., reported that Astronomer C. A. Wirtanen had discovered "an object . . . with an extraordinary motion." It was described as of thirteenth magnitude—visible only through a fairly strong telescope.

Dr. Fred L. Whipple of Harvard Observatory said the object appeared to be an asteroid or minor planet about 2 miles in diameter. He said it would be the fourth of the known 1600 such planets to swing into the earth's orbit.

The new object cannot approach the earth closer than about 16 million miles, according to computations of its orbit made by Dr. Leland Cunningham of the University of California.

Special Abilities as Trouble Shooter Kept Clay From Field Command in War

Gen. Lucius D. Clay, who is to stay on indefinitely in the "hot seat" as American military governor in Germany, might be called a frustrated man.

* * * * * * *

For all during World War II, he had hopes of getting a command with troops, and each time he came close to such an assignment (once promised him by General Eisenhower) his special abilities as technical trouble shooter got him sidetracked.

At Cherbourg, he broke a bottleneck in Allied supplies. He did another job for Jimmy Byrnes when Byrnes was director of war mobilization. Last year, he was called to Moscow by Secretary of State Marshall as an adviser at the Foreign Ministers' meeting.

GEN. LUCIUS D. CLAY

Was Offered Condolences

But meantime, he had established himself as military governor in Germany. When he had reluctantly taken the post (his military friends offered condolences when he was offered this Army stepchild) General Clay did not speak German and had only a rudimentary knowledge of European history.

In the nearly three years that have followed, Clay has stuck tenaciously to his job which, as he sees it, is to "run Germany, not ruin it."

Part of his duties consist of walking a diplomatic tightrope at his Berlin office, where American administration has to be coordinated with Russian, French and British administrations in the respective spheres of influence. Clay meets with his opposite numbers in council once a month.

Makes Own Decisions

Working with human beings, rather than paper theories, Clay has been known to make his own decisions when Washington policy was not forthcoming.

Son of a Georgia Senator, Clay, born April 23, 1897, at Marietta, Ga., numbers Henry Clay among his forebears.

After World War I, he remained a first lieutenant for 17 years. His promotion, when it came, was rapid. He skyrocketed from captain to a four-star general in seven years, one of the fastest promotion jumps ever made in the United States Army.

Known as a hard worker, Clay sticks to his desk from 8 a. m. until 7 p. m. He takes no lunch, but has hot coffee brought in, and smokes two to three packs of cigarettes a day.

Spotlight Is Thrown On Sales to Soviet

O'Konski Charge Commerce Export Aide Is 'Red' Paper Salesman Brings Denial

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

* * * * * * *

Sales of possible war-making materials to Russia were spotlighted yesterday from two directions on Capitol Hill.

On the House floor it was charged that the Commerce Department officials who authorizes exports to Russia was an appointee of former Secretary Henry A. Wallace and that he sold subscriptions to a Communist publication. He was identified by Representative O'Konski (R., Wis.) as Herbert W. Parisius of the Office of International Trade, who came back with a prompt and flat denial.

A House subcommitte investigating the War Assets Administration earlier was told that 46 aircraft engines built for heavy B-24 bombers had been exported to Russia between last May and the end of 1947. Another witness said boxes marked for Russia were "lying all over the waterfront" at New York.

Leroy H. Luckey of Dallas, Tex., testified under oath that he had bought the engines in new condition and hed sold them in turn to Richard F. Finckie, president of the Alpine Corp. here. Luckey said he knew the engines were destined for Russia or Poland because he had stenciled the export licenses on the boxes.

Phone Service Discontinued

Investigation yesterday revealed that the Alpine Corp., with an address in the Cary Building, 927 15th st. nw. had discontinued telephone service on two telephones. Listed to the same numbers were the International Trading Corp. and several individuals, none of them Finckie.

The subcommittee also was told:

1. The WAA since VJ-Day had sold 21,278 combat type aircraft as scrap, some of which were "obviously new."

2. "Everybody in New York" knew boxes and cases marked for Russia were being loaded on ships there "every day." These cases were said by Clarence Garruthrs of an aeronautical supply firm bearing his name to contain oil drilling tools and "everything from tractors and bulldozers to electric generators." He said 60 Soviet ships had loaded and left New York with such materials since the first of the year.

3. President Truman was expected to issue a proclamation shortly banning export of all aircraft engines and other materials used "predominantly for military puposes."

4. The State Department had not yet "worked out its policy on the distinction between shipment of American goods to friendly and unfriendly countries."

Except for the testimony of Luckey and Carruthers, these statements were made by representatives of the WAA and the State Department.

Testimony Amplified

Carruthers amplified his testimony at the request of Representative Rizley (R., Okla.) by naming a number of firms he said had shipped machinery and other supplies to Russia and her satellites. These included Pratt & Whitney, General Electric and Western Electric, and his own firm, which, he said, had sold Russia some 30 aircraft engine starters and 30 generators.

A Commerce Department spokesman told The Washington Post that early this year all goods shipped to Russia were placed under control and now require export licenses. Goods now being loaded and shipped from New York, he explained, were contracted for "a long time ago" when the sentiment of Congress was "to decontrol everything as fast as possible." Since then, he pointed out, sentiment has switched to "recontrol," but to halt shipments of goods sold in the earlier period would cause hardship to all exporters and even put some of them out of business.

The same spokesman said Parisius was not an appointee of Henry Wallace but had been transferred to Commerce in October, 1945, when that department took over the functions and some of the personnel of the wartime Foreign Economic Administration. Parisius, he explained, had joined FEA in October, 1944, transferring from the Department of Agriculture, where he had been appointed an assistant to former Secretary Claude Wickard in 1940.

Parisius himself emphatically denied all charges made on the floor by O'Konski and Representative Mundt (R., S. Dak.). He said the only publication distributed by any member of his family was a shopping news, "and that is distributed by my 11-year-old son." O'Konski said Parisius had been selling subscriptions to the Southern Patriot, a publication of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, which has been listed by the House Un-American Activities Committee as a Communist front. Parisius said he had "never seen a copy of the Patiot."

ferred, though the bill going to Congress may not specify this.

In another development yesterday, the Air Force announced the launching of a new recruiting drive to sign up 25,000 more men. Only last week, it was revealed that enlistments had been restricted because the personnel strength ceiling had been reached. Military circles viewed the action as anticipating further USAF expansion.

Meanwhile on Capitol Hill, the parade of witnesses giving their views on universal military training, continued throughout the day. The Senate Armed Services Committee heard this testimany pro and con:

1. Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, in a letter to Chairman Chan Gurney, said she formerly had opposed UMT but had changed her mind. Adoption of the training program, the widow of the late President wrote, would be "a gesture which would be understood" by Russia.

2. A leader of the Henry Wallace for President movement attacked UMT and the entire preparedness program, after refusing to tell Senators whether he is or was a member of the Young Communist League. He was Seymour Linfield, who said he represented the Progressive Citizens of America, and is veterans' director of the Wallace third party campaign.

3. Dr. Arthur H. Compton, president of Washington University, St. Louis, and a Nobel Prize winner, testified he favored both UMT and the draft. A leading physicist who worked on the Manhattan Project, Compton declared that atomic weapons alone would not win a war.

4. Albert Einstein, in a letter to Gurney, said he could foresee no "threat of hostile invasion" of the United States and thus opposed adoption of universal training now.

5. Dr. Isaiah Bowman, president of Johns Hopkins University, indorsed UMT, saying that "it is no good for a town without a fire department to send in a mail order for a fire engine when it hears that a house is burning."

6. Gerhart Seger, one-time member of the German Reichstag and now a naturalized American citizen, said he backed a selective draft, but was opposed to UMT because it had ruined Germany.

(7) Don S. Willner, veteran and Harvard student, told the committee he represented the "Students for Democratic Action." Students, he said, want neither a draft nor UMT, but urge strong, mobile striking forces and concentration of atomic research.

(8) Dr. A. Powell Davies, pastor of the All Souls Unitarian Church here, declared he is "very emphatically" in favor of both selective service and UMT. Only a long-term, militant policy on the part of the United States, he said, can prevent Russia from taking over Europe and blotting out freedom.

Dr. Davies told the committee he had recently returned from Prague, where he was a witness of the fall of Czechoslovakia. Declaring that he was invited there by Jan Masaryk, Czech foreign minister who died in a fall shortly after the Communists took over the country, he quoted Masaryk as saying:

"The United States gets you out on a limb and leaves you there."

This attitude, Davies declared, is prevalent in Europe. They fear present American foreign policy is short-term and cannot be depended upon. Therefore they are driven into the hands of Russia.

"Unless we can meet the determination of the Kremlin with equal determination and force with equal force," said the Washington minister, "there is no chance whatsoever of ending aggression.

"We can succeed against militant communism only by becoming a militant democracy."

Many churchmen, said Dr. Davies, have "compromised with evil" by putting peace above justice. Attacking pacificism in the churches and the Nation, he declared that much of it is not unwillingness to kill but fear of death"—"cowardice disguised as ideals."

Highlight of the morning hearing was the effort of Senators to make Seymour Linfield answer questions about whether he was a Communist.

Post Column Quoted

Chairman Gurney read from the Joseph and Stewart Alsop column in yesterday's Washington Post, a statement that Linfield had been a member of the Young Communist League. The column added that "there is no reason to believe he has changed either his political opinions or his political affiliations."

Gurney then asked him if the allegation were true. For more than a half hour, Linfield evaded a direct answer, refusing to discuss his "religious and political beliefs." Senators Leverett Saltonstall (R., Mass.) and Raymond E. Baldwin (R., Conn.) pressed him for a "yes or no" answer on whether he is or was a member of the Communist League.

All Linfield would say was that he took his position with Wallace on a pledge that he would not "knowingly" accept support from groups favoring civil liberty curbs or violent overthrow of the Government. He accused Senators of trying to pin a Communist label on those opposing UMT.

Linfield then was allowed to read his statement. It declared that "no nation in the world today, including Soviet Russia, constitutes a threat to the security of the American people." Attacking the "bipartisan coalition" supporting the Administration foreign policy, he contended the Truman doctrine would send American troops all over the world.

Baldwin commented that the question now had been put by both Democratic and Republican Senators. To this Linfield replied that the "bipartisan coalition" had extended to the committee.

"When the safety and welfare of the United States is at stake, you will always find a bipartisan coalition," Baldwin rejoined.

Maddox Urges Extra Efforts For Red Cross

H. Randolph Maddox, chairman of the general business unit in the current Red Cross drive for $1,080,000, asked his key workers yesterday for "extra steam" in an effort to reach their quota.

He circulated a bulletin reminding 1500 local business firms that an additional $111,000 is needed to insure success.

"General business has reported $204,803, or 65 per cent of our quota," Maddox pointed out, "while the entire Metropolitan area has reached 74 per cent of goal."

He urged any firms having Red Cross receipts to call EXecutive 7383 for immediate kick-up service from campaign headquarters.

Hoover Urges House to Vote Full Amount in Aid Measure

ing Representatives Vorys of Ohio and Lodge of Connecticut, both of them members of the Foreign Affairs Committee.

Opposition seemed to be fading so fast that Vorys, floor leader for the bill, thought no more than 75 votes would be cast against the bill in the final vote next week.

The prospect of further amendments was less clear, partly as a result of the Hoover letter, which may produce several from Representative Herter of Massachusetts and other Republicans in close touch with the former President.

Hoover objected to the House bill on only two main points. One was that the Foreign Affairs Committee had gone "too far," he thought, in trying to control trade between eastern and western Europe. He objected particularly to a provision proposed by Representative Mundt R., S. Dak.), preventing western Europe from sending any goods to eastern Europe if the United States itself barred the shipment of such goods.

"If the Marshall Plan countries are to become independent of relief," Hoover wrote, "they must trade with the satellite countries. A provision against munitions shipment would appear to be sufficient."

Hoover's second objection was that the House bill did not contain a provision, already accepted by the Senate, letting the administrator guarantee up to 70 per cent of credits to Europe from other Western Hemisphere countries.

For the rest, Hoover strongly approved many features of the House bill which are likely to encounter trouble in the coming conference with the Senate. Among these is a clause, strongly opposed by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, requiring year-to-year authorizations as well as appropriations.

Support Overwhelming

Support for the bill was so overwhelming, from Republicans and Democrats, that at times yesterday it hardly sounded like a debate at all. Most speakers pleaded for enactment of the bill as a check on communism and on Soviet expansion.

One exception was Representative Isacson (ALP., N.Y.), Henry Wallace's newest supporter in the House, who called the bill a "brazen and shameless" creation of "the oil cartel." Another was Representative Powell (D., N. Y.), who called it "unsound, militaristic and sowing the seeds of war."

Representative Richards (D., S. C.), a member of the Foreign Affairs Committee, argued that military aid to China did not belong in the bill, and would involve the United States in unforeseeable commitments.

On the Senate side the Appropriations Committee boggled for a whole day at approving 53 million dollars in additional stopgap relief for Austria, France and Italy. Committee members told Assistant Secretary of State Willard Thorp they could not see why these funds were needed, when ERP money would be coming soon. Thorp said they were needed to prevent an interruption in the flow of supplies, since grain could not be moved from inland storage without actual cash payment. The committee is expected to approve the request today.

10,000 Pennsy Workers Ordered To Strike March 31

Philadelphia, March 24 (AP).—A system-wide strike of Pennsylvania Railroad firemen and roundhouse employes was called today by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen. The union ordered some 10,000 firemen, hostlers helpers to walk off their jobs at 6 p. m. March 31.

The action was taken after the union's general grievance committee broke off negotiations with the railroad on the hiring of firemen on five Diesel locomotives in yard service at Pittsburgh and Pottstown, Pa.

Three union officials issued a statement saying "the unions regards working these locomotives with one man in a cab through densely congested territories a hazardous condition which is contrary to our agreement with the railroad," the statement said.

Harllee Branch of CAB Assailed as 'Prejudiced'

By The Associated Press

Sigmund Janas, president of Colonial Airlines, said yesterday Harlee Branch of the Civil Aeronautics Board was "prejudiced" and asked that he be disqualified to act on two cases pending before the board.

They are the Middle Atlantic area and the Boston-New York-New Orleans cases. Colonial wants particularly a route from Washington to New York.

Janas filed a motion of disqualification on the grounds that Branch has a personal bias against Colonial.

Overseas Romances Given Another Break

President Truman yesterday signed a bill permitting servicemen to bring their foreign sweethearts to this country for marriage. It will expire June 30.

The act provides that a marriage must take place within 90 days after the prospective bridges arrive. It extends an old law expired December 31.

U. S. Postpones Palestine Action

From Brooklyn

700 Picket White House On Palestine

A group of 700 Brooklynites protesting the recent United States reversal of policy on Palestine came to town on a special train yesterday and picketed the White House after visiting six of their Representatives on Capitol Hill.

They argued for their aims of Palestine partition and arms for the Palestine Jews with the Congressmen, reporting later that two were with them, two did not make their position clear, and two others refused to agree with their views. One of the latter, Representative Abraham J. Multer, attempted to "browbeat" them, they asserted.

No. 1 Precinct police took three placards from the delegates as they walked to Capitol Hill from Union Station. They were told they could not carry placards because they had no parade permits, and were to walk in groups of five or les, at least 10 feet apart.

"Wallace '48" buttons were greatly in evidence among the group, which was organized as the "United Committe to Save the Jewish State and the United Nations. Delegates said they represented the American Labor Party, Progressive Citizens of America, Communist Party, Brooklyn Consumers & Tenants Council, American Veterans Committee, Jewish War Veterans Auxiliary, Adult Committe for Education, one P-TA, Congress of American Women, CIO and AFL union locals, International Workers Order, Democratic organizations, and American Jewish Congress.

Placards carried in the White House picketing declared: "Forrestal Must Go," "Arms to Haganah, Defender of the Jewish State," "We Accuse Warren Austin (Republican), Wall Street's Hatchet Man," "Support Palestine Partition, Stand By the U. N."

Representative Leo Isaacson (ALP., N, Y.) and Representative Joseph L. Pfeiffer (D., N. Y.) were cheered by the delegates as they addressed their afternoon mass meeting at the Metropolitan Baptist Church, upholding their two aims of partition for Palestine and lifting of the arms embargo.

Switch Unexpected On Proposal for U. N. Trusteeship

Lake Success, N. Y., March 24. (U.P.)—The United States today postponed indefinitely its formal request for a special session of the United Nations General Assembly to scrap the Palestine partition program and draft a U. N. trusteeship for the Holy Land.

The unexpected switch in plans occurred in the face of a movement among other U. N. members to oppose a trusteeship unless the United States gives proof it could be enforced.

American officials, who had announced they would lay before the Security Council a call for an Assembly meeting, offered two differing explanations for their failure to do so.

One was that the United States wants to know the opinions of other Council members before deciding on the final form of its new approach to the Palestine dilemma.

The other was that Secretary of State George Marshall has been away from Washington and the proposals could not be put into final shape without his permission.

Another theory was that the American delegation was simply jockeying for time. This grew out of the reports that President Truman plans to discuss the Palestine tangle and the criticized position of the Administration at his news conference tomorrow.

37 Jews Killed In Arab Attacks

Jerusalem, March 24 (AP).—Arab attacks on convoys and a Jewish hilltop fortress north of Jerusalem killed 37 Jews today.

Fourteen Jews were killed and 10 wounded when Arabs ambushed a two-car armored convoy of Haganah fighters speeding to the relief of beleaguered Neve Yaacov, six miles north of Jerusalem.

The settlement was reported under attack by 700 Arabs, and 11 Jews were slain in the initial attack.

Twelve Jews were killed and 30 wounded in an attack on a 12-bus convoy between Jerusalem and Tel Aviv.

The unofficial death toll in Palestine since the United Nations decision on partition mounted to 2069.

In Jaffa Sheik Hassan Bey Salameh, commander of an Arab force known as "Mediterranean Irregulars," said in an interview that his troops were prepared to carry out their assignment to conquer the all-Jewish city of Tel Aviv as soon as the British leave.

Michael Keeps 1350 Waiting

throng that greeted Gen. Ike Eisenhower on his triumphant return from Europe.

Michael's luncheon address—his maiden speech before an American audience—was read from manuscript in a low, monotonous voice, included all the polite generalities required by protocol. Then he told of the Soviet-imposed reign of terror that had driven him from the throne, and insisted: "Our democratic ideals are still intact."

That over—the speech was brief—Michael stuck his chin into the mike, and responded to questions tossed at him by the audience. Away from his script—and now talking off the record—Michael was a different guy. His replies were short, to the point. Three times his retorts to barbed questions drew a round of laughter and applause.

Although visiting the Capital as "a private citizen," Michael was nonetheless accompanied by an official retinue including a senior and a junior aide. On arrival by limousine at the Press Building, he was greeted at the curb by Press Club President Joe Short and Speakers Committee Chairman Bill Hillman; three State Department officials joined the welcoming party in the Press Club.

The King was given a friendly ovation after the quizzing, and several lunchers asked and received his autograph.

Because Michael left the luncheon five minutes ahead of schedule, there was no limousine awaiting him when he reached the street. The King took a stroll around the block, hatless and coatless. Few passersby seemed to recognize the window-shopper in the dark suit and striped tie as the erstwhile King of Romania.

Earlier in the day, Michael showed up at the Municipal Building, shook hands with Police Chief Robert J. Barrett, and then stepped into the Department of Vehicles and Traffic to pass the test for a driver's permit.

Michael scored a perfect 20/20 on his eyes, and a perfect 100 per cent on his written examination. Because he carries an international driving license, he did not have to take the driving test, officials said.

Occupation: 'None'

Although there were some 50 others taking the written examination, only the department testers knew who Michael was. Michael answered the questions quickly, and in filling out the application form disclosed that he is a moderate drinker, and has never been subject to stroke, paralysis, frequent headaches, nervous spells, or nervous breakdown. In reply to "Occupation?", Michael wrote "None."

He signed his name as "Michael." Asked for his middle initial and last name, the king explained he didn't have any, and compromised by adding, "King of Romania." (The Almanach de Gotha, handbook of royalty, gives Michael's family name as Hohenzollern.)

Michael made one mistake, which slipped by the examiners. He gave his present address as 3400 Calvert st. nw., apparently referring to the Shoreham Hotel. The Shoreham is at 2500 Calvert st.; there is no 3400 block, at present.

The king will visit the Naval Academy at Annapolis today.

Cool, Fair Weather Expected to Put Capital 'in Pink'

Cooler but fair weather promised for today by the Weather Bureau should continue to draw out the pink in Washington's blushes of spring.

Cherry blossoms, already about 25 per cent out at the Tidal Basin, only need a mite more warmth to attain their full glory, National Capital Parks estimated.

However, later-blooming double blossoms at Hains Point are not expected to reach their peak until the Cherry Blossom Festival scheduled for there April 10th and 11th.

Highest temperatures today will be in the mid 60s' the weatherman says. Mild and possible showers are in store for Friday and Saturday.

Taxicab Army Tactics of '14 Aid Mukden

Peiping, China, March 24 (U.P.)—The saga of the "taxicab army" which saved Paris in 1914 was reenacted in Manchuria today when an improvised Chinese Nationalist supply fleet of trucks, jeeps, civilian cars and oxcarts established the first contact with isolated Mukden.

Troops, ammunition and food were rolling into Mukden along the newly reconquered highway from Chingchow in a column of 800 motley vehicles—borrowed, commandeered and patched up.

The way was opened by the government capture of Liaochung, on the Chingchow-Mukden highway.

The column met little opposition from marauding Red troops. Front-line dispatches said many Communists had marched westward to join the mounting offensive in Inner Mongolia.

Along the China coast, the Reds reportedly were cleared from a 7-mile arc around the seaport of Tsingtao and driven out of Weihsien.

Fierst Hearing By Grand Jury Continues Today

A Howard County grand jury is expected to resume its hearing today of a murder charge against Mack Wilson Fierst, 38-year-old former convict wanted by Washington police in connection with four holdups here.

The grand jury heard testimony yesterday which purported to link Fierst with the slaying of Hunter C. Lewis, 48, former convict. Lewis' decomposed body was found in underbrush off a little-used road near Laurel, Md., March 9.

Fierst is accused of killing Lewis when plans for a holdup of a Washington-Baltimore blvd. night club went awry.

Policeman Gets Shooting Suspect After Two Years

Like an elephant, Police Private Charles L. Sullivan never forgets.

Sullivan, 33, of the Fourth precinct, yesterday morning spotted and arrested a man sought by police for more than two years.

While patrolling his beat in the 500 block of 7th st. sw., he recognized Mason Gore, 42, laborer, of 919 G st. sw., wanted in connection with a shooting December 8, 1945.

He was charged with assault with a dangerous weapon, police said, for shooting Jack Jones, 120 Quincy pl. ne., following a fight in the 900 block of G st. sw. Jones was shot in the hip with a shotgun, police reported.

Austria Entering Critical 6 Weeks

Vienna, March 24. (U.P.)—A United States summary of conditions in Austria warned today that the next six weeks well might be the most critical since the war's end.

The statement painted a bleak picture of Austria's food outlook and said the country may face a political crisis unless sufficient American aid comes on time.

An official United States spokesman said early interim aid has been virtually exhausted and Austria's share of the 55 million dollars recently voted her, France and Italy by Congress probably would take 90 days to reach Austria—too late to meet the forthcoming crisis.

Mayor of Lynchburg Seeks Congress Seat

Lynchburg, Va., March 24 (AP).—Mayor Clarence G. Burton of Lynchburg today was the first candidate to offer for the Sixth Congressional District seat in Congress, to be vacated soon by J. Lindsay Almond, attorney general of Virginia.

Burton announced his candidacy for Democratic nominee last night.

Public to Get Explanation On Palestine

By John L. Steele
United Press Reporter

Secretary of State George C. Marshall today was reported preparing a major foreign policy statement explaining that the Administration abandoned the Palestine partition plan because it feared Arab-Jewish fighting might touch off World War III.

Members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said Marshall gave them that version of the bitterly-criticized Palestine decision at a two-hour closed committee meeting.

They said he informed them he will make a full public statement within a few days on what he called bluntly the "mess' in the Holy Land.

The Senators said Marshall revealed under insistent questioning that the United States had to reverse itself on the partition plan because it saw no other way to avoid "touching off the powder keg."

It was implied the Secretary feared Russian troops would move into Palestine as part of a United Nations military force to enforce the partition and that an "incident" might occur to plunge the world into war.

The United States abandoned partition in favor of a temporary United Nations trusteeship which Marshall was said to believe would require a smaller international police force. He also was quoted as hoping Britain might change her mind about pulling her troops out of the Holy Land in May.

He was understood to have told the committee a transfer of the western Germany administration from Army to State Department control might have been interpreted by Russia as a sign of weakness.

Auto Tag Demand May 'Approach' Record Here

Auto tags issued in the District this month may "approach" the 1941 "all timt high" of 182,781, Traffic Director George E. Keneipp said yesterday.

He revealed that an additional 10,000 plates have been ordered to cover the heightened demand and said, furthermore, that an order for another 10,000 tags may be placed.

A total of 111,913 tags had been issued through the close of business yesterday, or more than 16,000 above what was sold last year.

The original order for tags, placed with the Department of Corrections to be made at the Lorton Reformatory, was for 149,651 sets.

53 Nations Sign ITO Charter; Argentina and Poland Decline

Havana, March 24 (U.P.)—The charter of the International Trade Organization was signed in the Cuban Senate chamber today by 53 of the 57 nations whose representatives have spent more than four months drafting "the blueprint for world economic peace." The United States was among the signers.

Two nations—Argentina and Poland—declined to sign. Turkey postponed signing until its chief delegate, Ambassador Selin Sarper, returns from Washington. Iceland was represented only by an observer and so was not a party.

The charter imposes international commercial rules on subscribing nations and provides machinery for the peaceful settlement of trade disputes.

The Ito, which will be a semi-autonomous agency of the United Nations, will not formally come into existence until the charter has been ratified by the legislatures of a majority of the countries represented.

From now until ratification has been completed, its work will be carried out by an interim commission.

principle to estate and gift taxes. In addition, it gives an extra $600 exemption to all persons who are 65 or over or blind. Taxpayers who are both blind and 65 would receive two extra $600 exemptions.

On Way Within Hour

An "enrolled" copy of the bill, in the dress form it is submitted to the White House, was all ready for the signature of Speaker Joseph W. Martin, jr., and Senate President Arthur H. Vandenberg when the House passed the bill. Within the hour it had been sent to the President.

Noting the speed, Rayburn poked fun at Republican 'efficiency." Martin quipped back that he had known what the House answer would be for two days.

Carolina Fugitive Returned After Capture at Capitol

Percy Wise, a 30-year-old escapee was en route back to a South Carolina chain gang yesterday after he was captured by United States Capitol Police.

Capt. William J. Broderick announced yesterday that Lieut. Thomas Malloy and Pvt. Herbert Ruckman arrested the man on the grounds near the Capitol Sunday night.

Police quoted him as saying he had escaped from the chain gang at Darlington, S. C., in January last year. South Carolina police officers who came to take him back reported that he had escaped about three years ago, Capt. Broderick said.

He said the man was arrested after Lieut. Malloy noticed him asking a woman for money. Police said he was sentenced for the total stabbing of another man.

Gas Explosion Kills Baltimore Woman

Phoebus, Va., March 24 (AP).—Mrs. William S. Pocock, about 30, was killed in a gas blast that wrecked her second floor apartment here last night. Police said the blast was caused either by a gas leak or when Mrs. Pocock attempted to light the kitchen range.

She was the wife of Col. William S. Pocock of West Point, N. Y., a member of the Air Corps.

If you like Gabardine you'll Love PLATEAU*

by TIMELY CLOTHES

$68

Other Timely Suits, $65 to $75
Timely Topcoats, $50 to $70

At a casual glance, PLATEAU* looks like a fine gabardine. But look a little more closely . . . and then slip it on . . . and you're in for a pleasant surprise. First of all, PLATEAU has a rich, silky texture.

And second, even though it is a fine, regular weight worsted, it feels almost weightless on your back. This amazing new comfort, which makes it possible to wear PLATEAU almost all year 'round, is due to Prelaxing—a new weaving process that distributes the weight of the yarn so evenly, you scarcely know you're wearing a suit . . . TIMELY CLOTHES, Balance Tailoring makes PLATEAU look better . . . longer, too! Single and double-breasted models in new shades of tan, blue, brown, spruce, grey and sand.

Sizes for regulars, shorts, longs, stouts and short stouts.

Truman Expected To Tell Newsmen About Palestine

President Truman is expected to make a statement on Palestine when he meets with reporters at 10:30 o'clock this morning.

This will be the first news conferenqe Mr. Truman has held in more than a week. In the interval, he has called on Congress to revive the draft, has declared that he would rather be defeated in November than have the support of Henry Wallace "and his Communists," and has reversed the United States and on partition in Palestine.

Meantime, too, the uprising against Mr. Truman within the Democratic Party has started to spread from the South to the big cities of the North largely because of this country's reversal of its policy for partition of Palestine.

Dr. Blalock to Speak

Dr. Alfred Blalock, surgeon-in-chief at Johns Hopkins Hospital, will speak on "Surgical Treatment of Congenital Heart Disease" at the Naval Medical Center, Bethesda, tomorrow at 8:15 p. m. The lecture is open to officers of the Army and Navy Medical corps, the Public Health and Veterans Administrations and civilian doctors in the Washington area.

Never Rescinded; Brewers to Get Grain Cut Plan

Did you know that Meatless Tuesdays are still in effect?

This was confirmed by the feed and food conservation committee of the Department of Agriculture yesterday. The committee is the successor to President Truman's citizens food committee, once headed by Charles Luckman, soap maker.

In response to questions by reporters, Don Lehman, information specialist, declared: "Meatless Tuesday has never been officially rescinded. So it still exists."

The committee, headed by Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Charles F. Brannan, was granted a million-dollar appropriation to carry on a food conservation program.

Yesterday, it announced that a voluntary grain conservation agreement for the brewing industry had been "formally approved by the Attorney General," and is "being submitted to the industry for formal acceptance."

The agreement, it said, will save about two million bushels of grain annually.

However, committee officials expressed concern over two recent developments seriously affecting their program:

1. The strike in the meat packinghouses is causing thousands of head of cattle that otherwise would be slaughtered to be kept on scarce feed.

2. Stepped up use of grain by the Nation's distillers. The industry is now operating at the all-time high rate of 9,500,000 bushels a month. This high rate has been under way since Government restrictions on grain consumption by whisky makers expired January 30. Last year the industry averaged about half the present rate.

Fireman Injured Going to Aid of Trapped Children

A District fireman was injured yesterday when he fell from a fire truck answering a call to the 3400 block of 25th st. ne., to free several children reportedly trapped in a sand pile.

Pvt. James P. Magner, 40, 438 Lamont st. nw., attached to No. 8 Truck Company, was admitted to Casualty Hospital for observation and treatment of a possible brain concussion.

The accident occurred at Alabama ave. and 2d st. se., about 3 p. m. According to police, firemen found the children had been freed by neighbors.

Senate Gets School Aid Bill

Taft Opens Debate For $300 Millions Without Strings

Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) yesterday asked the Senate to appropriate $300,000,000 a year from Federal funds to help the States educate America's children.

As debate on his bill opened, the GOP leader said it was the very heart and principle of his measure that the Federal Government will not be allowed to interfere with the educational policies of the States.

"This is absolutely a home rule bill in education," Taft declared.

Those States which now under their constitutions spend State funds to aid private or parochial schools will similarly be able to use Federal funds to the same extent, Taft declared.

He told the Senate this provision is in accord with the determination to maintain States rights and prevent Federal interference in the educational field.

Pointing to recent Supreme Court provisions, Taft said it seemed doubtful that any State could aid parochial schools except in payment of bus transportation but that in any event the decision should remain with the States

There are approximately 19 States which use some State funds for other than regular public schools.

If Congress wants to protect the rights of the States and prevent any Federal bureaucracy from dictating educational matters, Taft maintained, it must stand on the principle of allowing States to decide whether or not to aid parochial schools.

He said the bill did not satisfy either those who wanted to forbid any aid to sectarian schools or those who wanted to compel the States to help maintain them.

Senator Allen J. Ellender (D., La.), a member of the Senate Committee on Education and Labor, which reported the bill, urged the Senate to adopt it as a step toward preserving American democracy.

If we want to preserve our system of Democratic government," Ellender declared, "we must make education available to the people."

Ellender called attention to the fact that the House has pigeonholed the bill. It is still bottled up in committee. House Speaker Joseph Martin (R., Mass.) and other leaders are opposed to it, and little chance of House action is seen.

The Taft bill would supplement State funds with a minimum Federal contribution of $5 for each child between 5 and 17. States which qualify by spending at least 2.5 per cent of their income on education might receive as much as $29 per child in order to bring the combined State-Federal expenditures up to a minimum of at least $50 per child per year.

Senator Irving M. Ives (R., N. Y.), who supports the measure, said the only democratic way to handle the matter was to have Federal funds available to all States, not just those whose revenues are lowest.

follows a recent Office of Defense Transportation order for a 25 per cent reduction in coal-burning passenger train service. This became effective last Sunday.

Under the ICC freight order, coal burning locomotives may be used to haul coal or empty coal cars without restriction.

With this exception, the commission ordered railroads to hold their coal burning freight service to 75 per cent of that provided during the week ended March 6.

A system of priorities was set up.

Three Men Arrested In Mine Violence

Kingwood, W. Va., March 24 (AP). Three men were arrested today and State troopers were sent here after a roving picket band beat a mine operator and an employe and fired on his son.

Sheriff Hobart Spindler said he had arrested three men from neighboring towns on charges of "conspiracy to commit violence" yesterday at the 30-man Raymond Hartman Mine near here.

Roving pickets have visited several mines since the United Mine Workers started their walkout March 15. Miners at most of the strip pits and a few small shaft mines are either unorganized or belong to another union.

A shotgun attack on maintenance men at the Columbus Mining Co., Allais, Ky., was reported the night before.

Strike Truce Effected

Buenos Aires, Argentina, March 24 (U.P.).—Three thousand striking bank clerks agreed today to return to work after Eva Duarte de Peron, wife of President Juan D. Peron, arranged to mediate their wage demands.

Jefferson Day Banquet

Annual Jefferson Day banquet of Arlington Democrats will be held April 22 at the Washington Golf and Country Club; Executive Committee Chairman Harrison Hann announced yesterday.

Va. School Lunch Fund Increased

Richmond, Va., March 24.—Virginia has received a supplemental allocation of $154,612 for its school lunch program, the State Department of Education announced today.

This will provide an increase in Federal reimbursement in many schools to 9 cents on each Type A lunch and to 7 cents on Type A lunches without milk. The new rate of reimbursement represents an increase of 2 cents per lunch.

The additional funds represent Virginia's share of a Federal appropriations supplement of five million dollars made for the current school session.

Burning of Cross Is Investigated

Richmond, Va., March 24 (AP).—Police today were investigating the burning of a cross last night on a school yard lawn in the city's east end.

Plainclothes officers George Alexander and C. O. Williams arrived at the hill-top site of the flaming cross a few seconds before it toppled over.

Spectators said it had burned about 20 minutes. They told police that occasionally during the burning they had seen white-sheeted figures near the cross. No damage to the school property had been reported.

Virginia to Ask Bids To Rebuild Sanatoria

Richmond, Va., March 24 (AP).—Bids for the "virtual rebuilding" of two Virginia tuberculosis sanatoria will be sought early in the summer, Dr. L. J. Roper, State health commissioner, announced today.

If the bids are reasonably near the $3,400,000 appropriated for construction work, construction will begin immediately at Blue Ridge Sanatorium near Charlottesville, and Piedmont Sanatorium at Burkeville, Dr. Roper said.

Governor Tuck has approved construction at the two institutions and final working drawings now are being prepared.

British Embassy Employe Injured In Md. Auto Crash

A 55-year-old British Embassy messenger escort was injured late yesterday in an automobile collision on Route 240, at Derwood, Md., according to Montgomery County police.

Harry Langley, 1916 R st. nw., who, embassy officials said, was a former Scotland Yard investigator, was admitted to Suburban Hospital, Bethesda, for treatment of a possible disclocated left shoulder, but was later transferred to the Bethesda Naval Hospital. Suburban Hospital authorities said his injuries apparently were not serious.

Police said Langley's car was sideswiped by an auto driven by Charles Pennington, 25, of Derwood, Md. A technical charge of reckless driving was placed against Pennington, who was released under personal bond pending a hearing in Rockville Police Court.

58 From Abroad, U. S. to Graduate From FBI School

Law enforcement officers from Egypt, Canada, Puerto Rico and 30 State will be among 58 graduates to receive certificates from the FBI National Academy tomorrow at 10:30 a. m.

Speakers at the graduating exercises in the Departmental Auditorium, Constitution ave., near 14th st. nw., will include Senator Brien McMahon (D., Conn.) and Representative Karl Stefan (R., Nebr.).

The academy, established in 1935, conducts a 12-week course of training for police instructors and administrators. The present group is the thirty-seventh to graduate.

N. J. 'Healthiest' Baby of '41 Hangs Self Accidentally

Audubon, N. J., March 24 (AP).—Barry Wayne LaFave, 8, who was named New Jersey's "healthiest and prettiest" baby boy in 1941, hanged himself accidentally yesterday while playing a game of "cowboys and horse thieves," Police Sergt. Henry Mehrer said.

Mehrer said the child's parents discovered their son's body in the basement of their home after returning from a business trip to Camden, N. J.

The parents said Barry had been fond of reeenacting wild West scenes, alternating in the role of horse thief and cowboy, Mehrer said.

Mehrer said Barry apparently hanged himself with a rope noose thrown over a basement beam. His cowboy hat lay on a chair nearby.

Demonstration Delayed

South Hill, Va., March 24 (AP).—Rain today forced postponement of a schedule dawn-to-dusk conversion of 105 acres of gullied farmland into a model farm. The one-day farm conservation demonstration at the Mecklenburg County farm was rescheduled for next Wednesday.

U. S. Moves In Germany Confuse Soviet

Berlin, March 24 (AP).—The Russians appeared confused today by the latest American moves in Germany.

The Russian-licensed press made no mention of the sudden orders from Washington to Gen. Lucius D. Clay, American Military Governor, to postpone indefinitely the transfer of his powers to the State Department.

The Communist newspapers likewise ignored the American-British-French action in boycotting four-power meetings of Allied Control Council subcommittees until Marshal Vassily Sokolovsky calls a new council meeting.

Apparently the Russians were awaiting instructions from Moscow before making any move.

General Clay spent the day working out plans for carrying out his new orders. A slowing up of the transfer of Army officers to civilian status will be the first result.

Germans interpreted the announcement that the U. S. Army would continue indefinitely its charge of the occupation of the American zone as full support of Clay's determination to keep American forces in Berlin.

Frankfurt Suburb Sealed Off By GIs in Black Market Raid

Frankfurt, Germany, March 24 (U.P.).—Sixteen hundred American soldiers sealed off the Frankfurt suburb of Zeilsheim today in what United States authorities described as the biggest black market raid of the occupation.

The raid followed a report yesterday in the United States Army information and education bulletin that German black marketeers were selling American dollars to the Soviets, who used the money to finance Communist action committees in many countries.

GIs and German police conducted a house-to-house search and combed a Jewish displaced persons camp at Zeilsheim, which has been notorious as one of the largest black market centers in western Germany.

Military police officers said the raid netted more than six truckloads of contraband, three men wanted by the Army Criminal Investigation Division and $2500 in greenbacks.

The contraband consisted mostly of American cigarettes, candy and toilet articles. Some penicillin was seized.

A "small amount" of American scrip, issued only yesterday, already had found its way into illegal channels at Zeilsheim, authorities said.

Maryland Preparing For Oyster Planting

Annapolis, Md., March 24 (AP).—Maryland is ready for another year of planting oyster shells and seeds to keep its bivalve industry going.

Ralph C. Hammer, State shell fish culturist, disclosed today planting will begin early next month in Anne Arundel, Kent, Queen Anne, and Dorchester counties with seed taken from Mill Hill in Eastern Bay.

Approximately ten days later, plantings will be made on Calvert, St. Mary's and Somerset County bars with Holland Straits seeds.

Sanitary Board Awards $160,000 In Contracts

Reds Expected To Get 38% of Italian Vote

London, March 24 (AP).—British government experts on Mediterranean affairs predicted today the Communist-led popular front will collect between 36 and 43 per cent of the vote in the Italian election April 18.

This estimate has been passed on to the British cabinet along with the opinion that the election results will leave the front "Italy's most powerful single political group."

British foreign policy makers anticipate this would bring a strong Communist demand for important places in the government, and they confess privately that they see no formula for warding off such challenge.

Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin disclaimed any intention today of intending to sway the elections by the British-American-French proposal on Trieste.

"I do not accuse the Soviet government, in spite of the four-power commission, of an election maneuver in handing back the colonies to Italy, and I do not think alternatively I should be accused of it," he said.

His remarks were prompted by a query in the Commons on whether it would not have been better for the Western powers to wait until after the Italian elections "to avoid inflaming an already difficult international situation."

Russia recently advocated Italian retention of her colonies under a trusteeship. A four-power commission has not yet completed its survey of sentiment in the colonies. Britain has taken the position that the work of this commission should not be prejudged.

CIO Aide Facing Quiz in Toronto

Toronto, March 24 (AP).—Reid Robinson, eastern vice president of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (CIO), will face a three-man board of inquiry here tomorrow to determine whether he may legally remain in Canada.

Robinson was brought from Timmins, Ontario, yesterday by Royal Canadian Mounted Police who arrested him on the direction of Ottawa immigration department officials. Police said he was held in line with the government policy which bars entry of alien Communists into Canada.

Since arriving in Canada from the United States last October, Robinson has worked as a union organizer in northern Ontario and Quebec mining areas.

Admiral Cooke Retiring After 42 Years' Service

Admiral Charles M. Cooke, jr., 61, former chief of the Western Pacific Fleet, is voluntarily retiring from the Navy after 42 years.

Cooke

Cooke recently returned from Tsingtao, China, headquarters of the naval forces of the Western Pacific. He had been in command since 1946.

He was in command of the battleship Pennsylvania when she was hit at Pearl Harbor, and from 1942 to 1946, held top staff jobs under Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, wartime commander of the Pacific Fleet.

He plans to return to his home at Hillwood Ranch, Sonoma, Calif. He is a native of Fort Smith, Ark.

Extra Asks Right To Prove Beery Fathered Child

Hollywood, March 24 (AP).—Film Extra Gloria Whitney, 32, demanded through a new attorney today that she be given the right to prove Movie Star Wallace Beery is the father of her child.

Attorney Maurice Rose turned down a proffered settlement of approximately $3000 plus a $6000 trust fund for the child, six-week-old Johan Richard Schumm.

Attorney Norman Tyre, who appeared for the 63-year-old Beery, defended the settlement offer which he said was "not" an admission of paternity. Tyre quoted Beery as being willing to make the settlement in the best interests of the child and to avoid publicity and the expense of litigation.

Czech Reds to Try Ex-Deputy Premier

Prague, March 24 (AP).—Czechoslovakia's Communist government will try former deputy Premier Jan Ursiny on charges of aiding spies for Western nations, the interior ministry announced today.

Ursiny, a Slovak Democrat, will be the first of several former high officeholders to face hearings, the announcement said.

The interior ministry charged Ursiny had used his office in the pre-Communist government to aid a ring of agents operating in lands distant as Argentina and Sweden.

Non-Communists Rout Printers In New Milan Street Clashes

Rome, March 24 (AP).—Street fighting broke out anew in Milan today when Communist-led printers, on strike since Sunday, attempted to seize and burn foreign newspapers.

Premier Alcide de Gasperi held an urgent conference here with Interior Minister Mario Scelba, in charge of the national police forces, as tension mounted rapidly in the campaign for the April 18 election.

Heavily armed forces of the crack Carabinieri patroled Rome in trucks on the watch for a clash between Communists and non-Communists during an observance of the fourth anniversary of the German Ardeatine Caves massacre.

The striking printers surged through the heart of Milan, hunting down copies of foreign newspapers displayed on stands. They started seizing and burning every newspaper they found.

Within a few minutes non-Communists were massing to fight them and by the time police roared into the battle area in trucks and jeeps the Communists were on the defensive.

The increasing readiness of non-Communists to combat the leftists not only in the red stronghold of Milan but in other cities all over the country was emphasized in dispatches.

British Troops Dig In Near Yugoslav Border

Trieste, March 24 (AP).—British soldiers moved up closer to the Yugoslav border line in Trieste territory tonight and dug machinegun positions for road blocks.

Barely 2000 tonight attended a Communist political rally, the first since the United States, France and Britain announced on Saturday they were proposing that all Trieste free state territory be returned to Italian sovereignty.

The meeting was small compared to about 30,000 who participated in a pro-Italian parade and celebration Sunday night.

Fauquier Sportsmen Elect

Warrenton, Va., March 24 (Spl.).—Randolph G. Duffy of Warrenton, has been elected president of the Fauquier County Fish and Game Association to succeed Col. Roger S. Parrott of Marshall, president for the last three years. Other officers are Claude O'Bannon, R. E. Cooper and Clay T. Brittle, vice presidents, and Peyton N. Brittle, secretary-treasurer.

Daily Worker Man

Communist Reporter Denied Visa

By Dillard Stokes
Post Reporter

The State Department yesterday stood pat on its refusal to let A. B. Magil, Daily Worker reporter, cover news in Palestine and Geneva.

Michael J. McDermott, the official spokesman, said it was "the settled policy of the department to refuse passports to citizens whose going abroad would not, in the department's opinion, be in the interest of the United States at this time."

McDermott said the department's opinions are based on "information at its disposal."

Magil was not turned down because he is a Communist, or because he worked for the Communist newspaper, McDermott said, but because the department had information that led officials to think his going abroad would not be in the interest of this country.

The information is a department secret. McDermott said Magil was not told what the information was.

Representative Leo Isacson (ALP., N. Y.) said of the Magil case:

"If the State Department view prevails, a peace-time precedent is set whereby the Government can in effect precensor any newspaper in America, simply by barring its correspondents from the arena of the news."

3-Inch Rainfall Gives California Drought Relief

San Francisco, March 24 (AP).—The rains came today to drought-stricken California.

A storm dumped more than three inches of desperately needed rain in northern sections, and piled up three feet of new snow for mountain power and water reservoirs.

Ending 14 dry months in southern California, there were downpours in the Los Angeles area. Almost an inch and a half rainfall at parched Santa Barbara excited water-rationed residents, who have been permitted only enough water for essential household use for weeks.

In northern California, under an emergency power brownout, the crisis continued. Utility engineers warned that mountain water reservoirs — source of hydroelectric power—were still not filled.

Further rains and snows were forecast tonight and tomorrow.

Moscow Publications Denounce Truman's 'Hysterical Screams'

Moscow, March 24 (U.P.).—Moscow publications today denounced President Truman's "hysterical screams," discounted the effectiveness of germ warfare and hinted anew at Russian progress in making atomic bombs.

"The hysterical screams of Truman and Co. have exposed the aggressors completely," the Literary Gazette said. "Simultaneously they have exposed their weakness and fear."

A cartoon depicted a wild-looking President Truman sitting before trap drums in such a position that his shadow resembled Adolf Hitler with his arm outstretched in a Nazi salute.

"Truman—hysterical drummer of war," the caption said.

Red Star Adds Voice

The Gazette said also that the United States was making exaggerated claims of the effectiveness of bacteriological warfare in an attempt to frighten other nations.

Red Star, organ of the army, recalled a book in which Maj. Gen. John R. Deane, head of a wartime mission to Moscow, expressed doubt of Russia's ability to make an atomic bomb.

Deane, Red Star said, wrote that when he was asked about Russia's ability to make such a bomb he thought about a Moscow tire factory where technique and production were bad, and that he drew "definite conclusions" from it. This factory, Red Star said, will turn out its one millionth tire about May 1.

"Let the Deane's draw their 'definite conclusions'," Red Star said.

The government newspaper, Izvestia, quoted Secretary of State George Marshall as mentioning possible German and Japanese participation in a "foreign legion."

Le Tourneau Would 'Renounce' War Goods Profit

Industrialist R. G. Le Tourneau last night declared that he stands "ready to renounce all personal profit if my factories must turn again to production of weapons of war."

In a speech acknowledging presentation to him of a certificate of merit by Lieut. Gen. R. A. Wheeler, Chief of Army Engineers, at the Mayflower Hotel, Le Tourneau urged strengthening American military might and creation of a reserve of trained technical workers.

The president of J. G. Le Tourneau, Inc., of Stockton, Calif., he said his firm is prepared to build a rubber-tired bulldozer weighing 100,000 pounds with 700-horsepower to carry big guns 60 miles an hour down highways.

Anti-Truman Move Spreads to Illinois

Chicago Democratic Leaders Reported To Have Joined Revolt Movement

By the United Press

President Truman's political stock dipped again today on reports that the intra-party revolt against him has spread to Illinois.

A high-placed Democrat said party leaders from Chicago have joined the voices from New York and the South against Mr. Truman for the presidential nomination this year.

Party leaders fear it may be spreading to California. They cited reports that Democratic State Chairman James Roosevelt, son of the late President, has called a meeting of prospective national convention delegates "because of the serious political situation."

Senator James E. Murray (D., Mont.) nominally an Administration supporter, sidestepped the question whether he would support President Truman for the nomination. Murray issued a statement that the time to discuss the question is at the national convention.

Party leaders from Chicago were reported to have suggested Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, among others. The retired Army Chief of Staff also has been mentioned by New Yorkers and Southerners who want another nominee.

Eisenhower has said flatly that he "could not and would not accept" nomination to high political office. He made the statement January 22 in connection with a movement to get him the Republican nomination.

Chicago Democrats were reported to feel that Mr. Truman's chances in November are so poor that his nomination would weaken the prospects of their candidates for State and local offices.

They are reliably reported to have conveyed this feeling to Democratic National Chairman J. Howard McGrath who is committed to getting the nomination for Mr. Truman.

2 Brooklyn Democrats Put Pressure on Truman

New York, March 24 (AP).—Two leading Brooklyn Democrats telegraphed President Truman today that they would do everything in their power to prevent his nomination unless he reversed the United States abandonment of the partition of Palestine.

The two men represent the Nineteenth Assembly district in Brooklyn, which has a heavy Jewish population. They are Dr. Isaac Levine, State committeeman, and Assemblyman Philip J. Schupler, national convention delegate.

Poll Tax Aids 'Machines,' Bender Says

The poll tax serves only to protect "political machines" against the vote of the people, Representative Bender (R., Ohio) said yesterday.

The author of the House anti-poll-tax bill told the Senate Rules Committee that officials who have never faced a free election hate this measure.

"They hate it the way the devil hates holy water," he said.

Bender and others testified in support of the bill to abolish poll tax payment as a voting requirement in elections of Federal officials.

The hearing will end today with more testimony by the bill's backers.

Views of opponents, including Governor Tuck of Virginia and Representative Almond (D., Va.), who appeared Tuesday, came in for attack yesterday.

Bender said Tuck testified "the poll tax is a defense against communism."

"The cry of communism," Bender said, "has been put to some strange uses from time to time, but never one more ridiculous than this.

"The right of all the people to a free ballot is certainly a bedrock principle of American democracy.

Irving Brant of Kissimmee, Fla., and Washington, referred to Tuesday's testimony by Tuck and Almond and to 1942 testimony of Abram P. Staples of the Virginia Supreme Court, then attorney general.

Previous Testimony Quoted

Brant, author of books on the Constitution and biographer of James Madison, said Tuck's testimony did not agree with testimony in the House.

He quoted the Governor as saying "that would be unreasonable" in reply to a question of whether States have the power to require a $100,000 property qualification for voting.

In this testimony, he added, "Governor Tuck threw away the contention of the poll-tax defenders in the House that no matter how unreasonable a qualification might be, the Federal Government could do nothing about it.

"Well, after he finished," Brant added, Attorney General-elect Almond "undertook to repair the damage."

"He said that an unreasonable qualification could be abolished only by a constitutional amendment.

"Unfortunately, Mr. Almond had not paid sufficient attention to the 1942 testimony of former Attorney General Staples of Virginia whose general statement on the poll tax he so nicely paraphrased on Tuesday.

"Mr. Staples had a similar question before him—whether, if anything that was a proper qualification in the eighteenth century is a proper qualification today, the States could impose a religious test for voting.

"This was what he (Staples) said to the Senate Judiciary Committee:

" 'Such arbitrary action would be an obvious denial of the equal protection of the laws (fourteenth amendment) and the courts would undoubtedly so hold.' "

Stassen Proclaims Opposition To MVA Type of Development

Omaha, March 24 (AP).—Harold E. Stassen tonight announced his opposition to the "authority" type of program for developing river basins.

He said he favored the Pick-Sloan plan for development of the Missouri River valley and declared "I am opposed to the MVA method."

The Pick-Sloan plan, now in progress of development, is the work of the Army Engineers and Bureau of Reclamation. An MVA similar to the Tennessee Valley Authority is favored in some quarters.

Outlines Favored Method

The former Minnesota Governor, campaigning for support in Nebraska's April 1 presidential preference primary, disclosed his views in an address prepared for a public meeting here. He also outlined a method of administering a complete Pick-Sloan program that would give much authority to the States in the basin.

"I believe that the development of the Missouri Valley under the Pick-Sloan plan is a wise investment in the creation of new wealth for America an should be carried forward," Stassen said.

". . . I believe that our Republican Party, to be true to the vigorous and pioneering quality of our country, should make a definite pledge for the development of the Missouri Valley in its next national platform.

"This pledge should include the investment of Federal and State funds to the extent of approximately $2,500,000,000 for the next six years, and sufficient amount after 1954 to carry out the proposed Pick-Sloan development of this vast area.

"I believe that this total investment will create 20 billion dollars of new wealth in the area.

Opposes Centalization

"I am opposed to having these resources administered with an overriding Federally created authority. I am opposed to the MVA method. I think it is very important that we should constantly guard against too great centralized authority in this huge country of ours."

The completed Missouri Basin program, he said, "can best be administered by the States of the area involved."

Stassen today proposed a radio debate with General MacArthur on American foreign policy. He said he considered the general an active campaigner for the Republican presidential nomination.

Both MacArthur and Stassen are on the presidential preference primary ballot in Nebraska. Delegates pledged to Stassen and MacArthur are entered in the Wisconsin delegate election. Wisconsin's primary is April 6.

Boston Schools Bar DAR Programs

Action Follows Protest That Group Violates Truman's Anti-Racial Plans

Boston, March 24 (AP).—The Boston School Committee has barred the Daughters of the American Revolution from sponsoring contests or programs in the city's public schools.

The unanimous action was taken last night on motion of Committeeman Isadore H. Y. Muchnick, who said the DAR had "violated nearly every aspect of President Truman's antiracial program."

He said he had received a "wishy-washy" reply to a letter he had written the organization asking why "certain race groups have been barred from Constitution Hall in Washington, D. C."

The National DAR operates the hall. Muchnick said the DAR had refused to allow Marian Anderson, Negro singer, and several minority group leaders to appear in the hall.

The school committeeman's charges brought this reply from Mrs. Warren Shattuck Currier, Massachusetts regent:

"I don't think it's fair to make Massachusetts responsible for what goes on in Washington."

Mrs. Currier said that "their rules" in Washington bar Negroes from public places and added:

"Our policy is no different from that of theaters and other public places. . . . We've had Marian Anderson sing there twice.

"If these people are so concerned by the Washington rule, why don't they make the Senate do something about it?"

U. S. Calls on Nations to End State Control of News

Geneva, Switzerland, March 24 (U.P.).—The United States called on the nations of the world tonight to set the press free by breaking monopolies on information and ending exclusive state control of news.

The American appeal was contained in a memorandum and resolution submitted to the United Nations Conference on Freedom of the Press and Information. It was issued on the eve of a major speech tomorrow by William C. Benton, head of the American delegation, which will keynote American policy.

The memorandum and resolution are designed to counter Russian proposals for penal measures to combat "warmongering" and false and distorted reports in the press and radio.

"It is the view of the government of the United States that the most effective means of combatting the diffusion of false or distorted reports is to assure the availability of a multiplicity of unfettered sources of news and information to the various peoples of the world," the memorandum said.

Earlier today Russia failed in its efforts to eliminate a proposal for a charter of rights and obligations of the press from the conference agenda.

Harris Gets Revenue Post

Staunton, Va., March 24 (AP).—Walter M. Harris of Spottswood today was named Commissioner of Revenue of Augusta County. He will succeed J. Ernest Drumheller, who has resigned, effective April 9, to become a candidate for the city of Waynesboro's first commissionership.

Pitch Vat Fall Fatal

Baltimore, March 24 (AP).—A steel worker who fell into a vat of molten pitch died today in Maryland General Hospital. Lloyd Lanham, 33-year-old employe of the Bethlehem Steel Company, was burned and broke his ribs and right leg in the accident.

Alexandria Candidates Sounded Out

Nine of 11 Democratic candidates for Alexandria City Council favor non-partisan municipal elections.

This, and other views held by the candidates on city affairs, was revealed yesterday in a survey conducted by the Alexandria League of Women Voters.

Answering the questionnaire were: Leroy S. Bendheim, Marshall J. Beverley, Roy C. Bragg, Arthur F. Campbell, Claude B. Harris, Randall J. Hicks, Albert A. Smoot, David D. Squires and John T. Worthington.

Two other candidates in the April 6 party primary, John J. Ewald and Ernest L. Mankin, declined to answer on the questions. However, the league said all candidates agreed to present their platforms at a public meeting March 31 at 8 p. m. at the George Mason School, 2601 Cameron Mills rd.

All candidates felt greater effort should be made to collect taxes, that the city's tax base be made "more equitable," that the city's greatest need is a "sound fiscal policy," and all approved generally the school building program now getting under way.

Boys, 8 and 9, Accused In Church Altar Fire

Baltimore, March 24 (AP).—Two boys, aged 8 and 9, were brought into Police Court today and charged with setting four fires on and around the altar of St. John's Protestant Episcopal Church.

The church caretaker, William Litz, summoned firemen, who found fires burning on the altar cloth, at the base of the altar, in kneeling pads piled on the side of the altar and in the communion box.

Police found the boys after Litz described a pair that had been playing near the church all morning.

Maryland to Get Piece Of Parliament House

Annapolis, Md., March 24 (AP).—A chip of stone from the British Parliament House will be presented to the State of Maryland tomorrow afternoon by the American and British Commonwealth Association.

The relic from the bomb-shattered structure symbolizes the parliamentary institutions shared by the two nations. It will be on display in Annapolis.

Former U. S. Senator George L. Radcliffe will accept the encased fragment on behalf of the State. Radcliffe is president of the Maryland Historical Society.

Red Blood Cells Must Be Kept Up If You Want To Feel Alive

Thousands Now Regaining Old Time Pep, Vigor and Drive By Releasing Vibrant Energy To Every Muscle, Fibre, Cell

Overwork, undue worry, and lack of certain foods often reduces the red-blood strength—and starved, weak, puny tissue just hasn't the power to feed up your energy and drive.

Every day—hour—millions of worn-out cells must pour forth from the manger of your house to replace those that are worn-out. A low blood count may affect you in several ways: by appetite, underweight, no energy, a run-down condition, lack of resistance to sickness and disease.

To get real relief you must renew the good red blood cells—and concentrated, extracts of the blood, have by positive proof shown that IRON is strikingly effective in building up low blood strength in this organic nutritional agents. This is due to the IRON found therein, which contains special and potent restoring ingredients.

And what Vitalo does for you, the first day, and by the time the bottle is empty, if then it is not organically too little or weaker—then the chances are you will have little cause to get huffy with me. Start and give all that your food does.

Don't wait! Energize your body with rich, red blood. Start on this Vitalo course. As vigorous blood surges through your whole body, pimples, blotches and nervousness should fade away—and before sleep better, feel better, work better, play better, have a healthy color glow in your skin—firm flesh on old hollow places. Anti-Truman Move Spreads to Illinois

Chicago Democratic Leaders Reported To Have Joined Revolt Movement

By the United Press

President Truman's political stock dipped again today on reports that the intra-party revolt against him has spread to Illinois.

A high-placed Democrat said party leaders from Chicago have joined the voices from New York and the South against Mr. Truman for the presidential nomination this year.

Party leaders fear it may be spreading to California. They cited reports that Democratic State Chairman James Roosevelt, son of the late President, has called a meeting of prospective national convention delegates "because of the serious political situation."

Senator James E. Murray (D., Mont.) nominally an Administration supporter, sidestepped the question whether he would support President Truman for the nomination. Murray issued a statement that the time to discuss the question is at the national convention.

Party leaders from Chicago were reported to have suggested Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, among others. The retired Army Chief of Staff also has been mentioned by New Yorkers and Southerners who want another nominee.

Eisenhower has said flatly that he "could not and would not accept" nomination to high political office. He made the statement January 22 in connection with a movement to get him the Republican nomination.

Chicago Democrats were reported to feel that Mr. Truman's chances in November are so poor that his nomination would weaken the prospects of their candidates for State and local offices.

They are reliably reported to have conveyed this feeling to Democratic National Chairman J. Howard McGrath who is committed to getting the nomination for Mr. Truman.

2 Brooklyn Democrats Put Pressure on Truman

New York, March 24 (AP).—Two leading Brooklyn Democrats telegraphed President Truman today that they would do everything in their power to prevent his nomination unless he reversed the United States abandonment of the partition of Palestine.

The two men represent the Nineteenth Assembly district in Brooklyn, which has a heavy Jewish population. They are Dr. Isaac Levine, State committeeman, and Assemblyman Philip J. Schupler, national convention delegate.

Poll Tax Aids 'Machines,' Bender Says

The poll tax serves only to protect "political machines" against the vote of the people, Representative Bender (R., Ohio) said yesterday.

The author of the House anti-poll-tax bill told the Senate Rules Committee that officials who have never faced a free election hate this measure.

"They hate it the way the devil hates holy water," he said.

Bender and others testified in support of the bill to abolish poll tax payment as a voting requirement in elections of Federal officials.

The hearing will end today with more testimony by the bill's backers.

Views of opponents, including Governor Tuck of Virginia and Representative Almond (D., Va.), who appeared Tuesday, came in for attack yesterday.

Bender said Tuck testified "the poll tax is a defense against communism."

"The cry of communism," Bender said, "has been put to some strange uses from time to time, but never one more ridiculous than this.

"The right of all the people to a free ballot is certainly a bedrock principle of American democracy.

Irving Brant of Kissimmee, Fla., and Washington, referred to Tuesday's testimony by Tuck and Almond and to 1942 testimony of Abram P. Staples of the Virginia Supreme Court, then attorney general.

Previous Testimony Quoted

Brant, author of books on the Constitution and biographer of James Madison, said Tuck's testimony did not agree with testimony in the House.

He quoted the Governor as saying "that would be unreasonable" in reply to a question of whether States have the power to require a $100,000 property qualification for voting.

In this testimony, he added, "Governor Tuck threw away the contention of the poll-tax defenders in the House that no matter how unreasonable a qualification might be, the Federal Government could do nothing about it.

"Well, after he finished," Brant added, Attorney General-elect Almond "undertook to repair the damage."

"He said that an unreasonable qualification could be abolished only by a constitutional amendment.

"Unfortunately, Mr. Almond had not paid sufficient attention to the 1942 testimony of former Attorney General Staples of Virginia whose general statement on the poll tax he so nicely paraphrased on Tuesday.

"Mr. Staples had a similar question before him—whether, if anything that was a proper qualification in the eighteenth century is a proper qualification today, the States could impose a religious test for voting.

"This was what he (Staples) said to the Senate Judiciary Committee:

" 'Such arbitrary action would be an obvious denial of the equal protection of the laws (fourteenth amendment) and the courts would undoubtedly so hold.' "

Stassen Proclaims Opposition To MVA Type of Development

Omaha, March 24 (AP).—Harold E. Stassen tonight announced his opposition to the "authority" type of program for developing river basins.

He said he favored the Pick-Sloan plan for development of the Missouri River valley and declared "I am opposed to the MVA method."

The Pick-Sloan plan, now in progress of development, is the work of the Army Engineers and Bureau of Reclamation. An MVA similar to the Tennessee Valley Authority is favored in some quarters.

Outlines Favored Method

The former Minnesota Governor, campaigning for support in Nebraska's April 1 presidential preference primary, disclosed his views in an address prepared for a public meeting here. He also outlined a method of administering a complete Pick-Sloan program that would give much authority to the States in the basin.

"I believe that the development of the Missouri Valley under the Pick-Sloan plan is a wise investment in the creation of new wealth for America an should be carried forward," Stassen said.

". . . I believe that our Republican Party, to be true to the vigorous and pioneering quality of our country, should make a definite pledge for the development of the Missouri Valley in its next national platform.

"This pledge should include the investment of Federal and State funds to the extent of approximately $2,500,000,000 for the next six years, and sufficient amount after 1954 to carry out the proposed Pick-Sloan development of this vast area.

"I believe that this total investment will create 20 billion dollars of new wealth in the area.

Opposes Centalization

"I am opposed to having these resources administered with an overriding Federally created authority. I am opposed to the MVA method. I think it is very important that we should constantly guard against too great centralized authority in this huge country of ours."

The completed Missouri Basin program, he said, "can best be administered by the States of the area involved."

Stassen today proposed a radio debate with General MacArthur on American foreign policy. He said he considered the general an active campaigner for the Republican presidential nomination.

Both MacArthur and Stassen are on the presidential preference primary ballot in Nebraska. Delegates pledged to Stassen and MacArthur are entered in the Wisconsin delegate election. Wisconsin's primary is April 6.

Boston Schools Bar DAR Programs

Action Follows Protest That Group Violates Truman's Anti-Racial Plans

Boston, March 24 (AP).—The Boston School Committee has barred the Daughters of the American Revolution from sponsoring contests or programs in the city's public schools.

The unanimous action was taken last night on motion of Committeeman Isadore H. Y. Muchnick, who said the DAR had "violated nearly every aspect of President Truman's antiracial program."

He said he had received a "wishy-washy" reply to a letter he had written the organization asking why "certain race groups have been barred from Constitution Hall in Washington, D. C."

The National DAR operates the hall. Muchnick said the DAR had refused to allow Marian Anderson, Negro singer, and several minority group leaders to appear in the hall.

The school committeeman's charges brought this reply from Mrs. Warren Shattuck Currier, Massachusetts regent:

"I don't think it's fair to make Massachusetts responsible for what goes on in Washington."

Mrs. Currier said that "their rules" in Washington bar Negroes from public places and added:

"Our policy is no different from that of theaters and other public places. . . . We've had Marian Anderson sing there twice.

"If these people are so concerned by the Washington rule, why don't they make the Senate do something about it?"

U. S. Calls on Nations to End State Control of News

Geneva, Switzerland, March 24 (U.P.).—The United States called on the nations of the world tonight to set the press free by breaking monopolies on information and ending exclusive state control of news.

The American appeal was contained in a memorandum and resolution submitted to the United Nations Conference on Freedom of the Press and Information. It was issued on the eve of a major speech tomorrow by William C. Benton, head of the American delegation, which will keynote American policy.

The memorandum and resolution are designed to counter Russian proposals for penal measures to combat "warmongering" and false and distorted reports in the press and radio.

"It is the view of the government of the United States that the most effective means of combatting the diffusion of false or distorted reports is to assure the availability of a multiplicity of unfettered sources of news and information to the various peoples of the world," the memorandum said.

Earlier today Russia failed in its efforts to eliminate a proposal for a charter of rights and obligations of the press from the conference agenda.

Alexandria Candidates Sounded Out

Nine of 11 Democratic candidates for Alexandria City Council favor non-partisan municipal elections.

This, and other views held by the candidates on city affairs, was revealed yesterday in a survey conducted by the Alexandria League of Women Voters.

Answering the questionnaire were: Leroy S. Bendheim, Marshall J. Beverley, Roy C. Bragg, Arthur F. Campbell, Claude B. Harris, Randall J. Hicks, Albert A. Smoot, David D. Squires and John T. Worthington.

Two other candidates in the April 6 party primary, John J. Ewald and Ernest L. Mankin, declined to answer on the questions. However, the league said all candidates agreed to present their platforms at a public meeting March 31 at 8 p. m. at the George Mason School, 2601 Cameron Mills rd.

All candidates felt greater effort should be made to collect taxes, that the city's tax base be made "more equitable," that the city's greatest need is a "sound fiscal policy," and all approved generally the school building program now getting under way.

Boys, 8 and 9, Accused In Church Altar Fire

Baltimore, March 24 (AP).—Two boys, aged 8 and 9, were brought into Police Court today and charged with setting four fires on and around the altar of St. John's Protestant Episcopal Church.

The church caretaker, William Litz, summoned firemen, who found fires burning on the altar cloth, at the base of the altar, in kneeling pads piled on the side of the altar and in the communion box.

Police found the boys after Litz described a pair that had been playing near the church all morning.

Maryland to Get Piece Of Parliament House

Annapolis, Md., March 24 (AP).—A chip of stone from the British Parliament House will be presented to the State of Maryland tomorrow afternoon by the American and British Commonwealth Association.

Red Blood Cells Must Be Kept Up If You Want To Feel Alive
Thousands Now Regaining Old Time Pep, Vigor and Drive By Releasing Vibrant Energy To Every Muscle, Fibre, Cell
Overwork, endless worry, and lack of certain foods often reduce the rich blood strength—and starved, weak, puny blood just hasn't the power to keep up your energy and drive.
Every day—every hour—millions of your red-blood cells must pour forth from the masters of your blood to protect you. A few germs—just a few—get past these cells, and when you're overrun with germs, you're sick. Then, as energy, a run-down condition, lack of resistance to infection and disease.
To get real relief you must keep up your blood strength. Science authorities, by analysis of the blood, have by positive proof shown that S.S.S. Tonic is amazingly effective in building up red blood cells. In fact, in many cases of blood disorder, it has proved marvelous, and this is due to the fine S.S.S. Tonic formula which contains special and potent cell-stirring ingredients.
Also, S.S.S. Tonic helps you enjoy the food you eat by increasing the gastric digestive juice when it is non-organically too little or scanty—thus the stomach will have little cause to get balky with gas, bloat and give off that sour food taste.
Don't wait! Energize your body with rich red-blood. Start on time Tonic now. As vigorous blood surges throughout your whole body, greater freshness and strength should make you eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better, have a healthy color glow in your skin—firm flesh fill out! Many users, millions of bottles sold! Get a bottle from your druggist today! Start to help Build Sturdy Health.

entire history" of the Condon family passports is this:

Dr. and Mrs. Condon applied for and received passports for a year of study abroad in September 1926, when Condon studied at German universities on Rockefeller Foundation funds. Mrs. Condon never applied for any later passport.

The only additional passport which Condon sought was one he applied for, and received, in June, 1945. The purpose was to attend a scientific conference and celebration in Russia. Condon had not been invited by name, but was selected as the delegate of the American Institute of Physics and of the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship.

Canceled at Groves' Request

At the last moment, his passport was canceled at the request of Maj. Gen. Leslie R. Groves, wartime head of the Army's atom bomb project. Condon had worked on the bomb project, which was not the case with any of the other 16 prominent American scientists who made the trip.

When his passport was canceled, Mrs. Ruth Shipley, head of the State Department Passport Division, wrote Condon that "neither the action of the military authorities, nor that of the Passport Division cast any reflection whatsoever on your integrity, your loyalty, or your character."

Neither Dr. nor Mrs. Condon sought or received any passport in 1946, as the passage states, Condon said.

Criticized for Association

The subcommittee report criticized Condon for his association with the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship, an organization on the Attorney General's "subversive list."

Condon has insisted, however, that at the time he was named its delegate to the Russian meeting, a month after VE-Day, the organization was not subversive and enjoyed the sponsorship of several Senators and other prominent scientists, clergymen and university officials.

Robert E. Stripling, chief investigator for the House committee, was asked yesterday for comment or explanation of the inserted sentences. He said that "if there was a mistake," it would have been on the part of a committee investigator.

"The committee," he added, "included in its report everything that was supplied to it by its investigators."

Freedmen's Head Protests Moving Ten Tuberculars

The superintendent of Freedmen's Hospital yesterday protested a District Government order to move 10 tubercular patients to Glenn Dale Sanatorium.

Charles Burbridge, who runs the Federal institution, said "we will explore every possible avenue to retain these patients if we can." On "the face of it," he admitted, "there doesn't seem to be any avenue of escape."

Donaldson Requests Postal Rate Increase

By the United Press

Postmaster General Jesse M. Donaldson yesterday recommended a $242,970,000 a year increase in postal rates to help offset his department's 345-million-dollar deficit.

He called for increases in all mail service except regular first class, and even here asked that Congress raise the price of the penny postcard to two cents.

Landon Urges Recontrol As Preparedness Step

Wichita, Kan., March 24 (U.P.).—Alf M. Landon, Republican presidential nominee in 1936, called today for an immediate freezing of prices, profits and wages as the first step in the Nation's new preparedness program.

Landon said he was not fully convinced that war is inevitable, "but we must prepare for it."

the United States, but because certain politicians found my person useful to be misused and abused for the introduction of a great hysterical red-baiting and witch-hunting campaign.

"The Un-American Activities Committee with the new chairman, Mr. Parnell Thomas," he shouted wildly, "demanded from the State Department the revoking of my exit permit in order to picture me as a kind of revolutionary devil."

Offense Basic, Morris Says

With more judicial calm, Judge Morris reviewed the law processes leading up to sentencing. He termed Eisler's offense "a serious one, going to the very integrity of the laws of this country respecting the control of the departure of aliens from the country."

At his trials, in which he described the purpose of his stay in America since 1941 as a refugee was chiefly "to write articles for a German-American newspaper against Nazism," he was labeled America's No. 1 Communist.

Policeman Found Guilty In Shooting of Neighbor

Richmond, Va., March 24 (AP).—A Richmond Hustings Court jury today found Joe Steve Caster, 27, suspended city policeman, guilty of involuntary manslaughter in the fatal shooting of a neighbor.

His sentence was set at six month and a fine of $1000. Defense counsel asked suspension of execution of sentence to permit the defendant to settle his affairs. The defendant was ordered to appear March 31 for sentence.

Casper had pleaded innocent and had claimed self-defense in the fatal shooting of George William Moore, jr., 21, who died January 18.

Final Congress Action Slated Today on New Rent Measure

make the Housing Expediter's decision final.

Other provisions of the conference report are:

1. In return for leases extending through December 31, 1949, tenants and landlords may sign "voluntary" agreements for a rent increase up to 15 per cent.

2. Enforcement powers of the Housing Expediter are increased over those of last year. The Housing Expediter may now ask the court for an injunction against any violation of the law, including illegal evictions. The House tried to confine the court injunction provision to rent violations only.

3. The Housing Expediter's power to halt construction of places of amusement and recreation through refusal to grant a materials permit has been removed.

4. Ceilings are permanently lifted from any dwelling decontrolled between January 1 and the date of the enactment of the new law. Such dwellings are those in which a tenant moved out after signing the "voluntary" 15 per cent increase and a new lease was signed.

5. If landlords can show they are operating at a loss, they will be given rent increases.

6. The so-called "security deposit racket" is forbidden. Landlords who were getting what the Housing Expediter termed a hidden rent increase by requiring six months' advance rent, some of which was never credited to the tenant's rent bill, are now limited to two months' rent in advance. The landlord, provided he had that practice in 1942, may ask the two months' rent in advance, but the second month must be credited to the tenant's last month of rent.

7. The conference also struck at the so-called "cooperative racket" in which landlords set up a corporation and vote rent increases on behalf of the "stockholders." Under the bill a landlord cannot evict a tenant from such a "cooperative" unless 65 per cent of the stockholders are actual occupants of the dwelling affected.

8. Tenants who have signed a "voluntary" 15 per cent hike under the present act cannot be charged another. Their present rents are frozen until next March.

9. Rents of transient rooms are decontrolled, and so are the rents in nonhousekeeping rooms in private homes where there are not more than two paying guests. Controls are maintained over hotel apartments furnished by the tenant.

10. Landlords are required to give a 60-day eviction notice except for nonpayment of rent or creation of "a nuisance." In those cases, evictions would be subject to local law. Under the present law, all evictions are subject to local regulation.

11. Tenants may be evicted in cases where the landlord plans to recover quarters for personal use of a member of his immediate family; where he has to make substantial alterations that cannot be done with the tenant in residence; where he plans to demolish the property or remove it from the rental market; or when a State or public body takes over the housing accommodations.

12. Tenants cannot be evicted from public housing even though their incomes may have grown to exceed the limits allowable under housing laws.

Law Expires Wednesday

Faced with expiration of the present rent-control extension next Wednesday and the Easter recess of Congress, the conferees decided to rush action.

The report was to be filed at midnight last night and brought up on both House and Senate floors today.

If the report is accepted by both Houses it will be sent to the White House immediately for presidential action.

More Daylight

The advent of spring in full force, and especially the glorious days Washington enjoyed last weekend, emphasize the advantage of another hour of daylight. A great multitude of workers who has had little opportunity for recreation during dawn-to-dusk winter working hours is yearning for a chance to get out of doors. But there is not much time left for congressional action if the District is to have daylight-saving on April 25, the day it goes into effect in other localities. The McGrath bill giving the Commissioners authority to establish daylight-saving time each summer has emerged from committee and is now on the Senate calendar; but the companion Klein bill is still before a House District Subcommittee. This is a matter which is not related to other proposals for national daylight-saving time. Because of the popular approval which local daylight-saving time had last year, the extension should require little debate. We hope both houses of Congress will pass it promptly as at least token recognition of the right of the people of Washington to manage their own affairs.

To The Rescue

The rent control extension compromise evolved by the Senate-House conference committee Wednesday is not an ideal bill, but it is a vast improvement over what might have resulted. Although it leaves something to be desired in the way of enforcement provisions, it does arm the housing expediter with the right to seek an injunction for any violation of the rent law. In this the conferees actually bettered last year's act.

The compromise gives assurance of at least rudimentary protection for tenants during the next year. It avoids the 15 per cent blanket rent increase that some legislators had pressed; where higher rents are warranted, they must be related as heretofore to demonstrable increases in landlords' costs. More important, the compromise also preserves the authority of the housing expediter to veto action of local boards in raising or decontrolling rents, adding the unobjectionable concession that the expediter's decisions go automatically to an emergency court of appeals appointed by the Chief Justice. On this point the conferees rescued the extension bill from the utter sham which the House had made of it in abdicating all Federal responsibility to the local boards. The members of the conference committee are to be congratulated on their determination to see that rent control is continued in fact instead of in name only.

Lard Leaks

The Department of Agriculture admits that its plans to increase lard exports were disclosed to outsiders before official announcement was made, although Secretary Anderson says his department is not to blame. This is a very serious matter that calls for a thorough probe of all relevant facts in order to place responsibility for the leakage of information and take precautions against a repetition of such incidents.

The department has had long experience with the execution of Government buying programs and has instituted safeguards against leakages that have been most effective. Despite the hullaballoo raised by the recent disclosures that Government employes had been speculating on the commodity exchanges, no evidence was uncovered showing that these individuals or outside speculators had profited illegitimately from advance information about Government buying plans.

According to report, it was a clerk in the Department of Commerce who unwittingly revealed the information about lard shipments to an employe of a market analyst. Whether true or not, the mere suggestion that information of a highly confidential sort is handled so carelessly by the Department of Commerce that minor clerks have easy access to it is most disturbing. Since both the Departments of Commerce and State receive information regarding prospective purchases from the Department of Agriculture and since all three departments will be cooperating closely in carrying out plans for procurement and shipment of supplies under the European Recovery Program, the opportunities for leakage of information will be greatly multiplied in the future. That makes it essential for all participating Government departments to take extraordinary precautions against premature disclosure of official plans. Otherwise a few leaks enabling speculators to garner rich profits would arouse bitter public resentment that might even result in demands for curtailment of the recovery program.

Emphasis On Freedom

Chairman Eaton of the Foreign Affairs Committee struck a note in his address opening the debate in the House on the foreign assistance bill that can scarcely be overemphasized. "The measures proposed in this bill," he said, "constitute a conscious recognition of the menace now confronting mankind. It is not a partisan measure. It is the voice of the American people of high and low degree; of all sections, breeds, creeds and conditions, announcing once more to the world their invincible will to be free and their comradeship with all other peoples of like character and mind." That sentiment is not new, but it was so well expressed by Representative Eaton in a brief speech that it brought his colleagues of both parties to their feet in a great demonstration of respect and approval.

Mr. Eaton's clear perception and well-reasoned defense of the bill stand out with special force because of their contrast with other remarks that entered into the same debate. Congressman Cox had spoken approvingly of the bill as "a war measure." Representative Marcantonio, who usually speaks and votes as if Moscow were a part of his constituency, repeated this charge in the same words in order to denounce the bill. Both, of course, are utterly wide of the mark. The world has, indeed, embarked upon a momentous struggle. There is much to be said for Mr. Eaton's thesis that "mankind stands today in a shattered no man's land between two ages." But the issue now to the fore is not a showdown of military strength. It is, rather, a contest between two ways of life. As Mr. Eaton put it: "Is the new world civilization to enthrone slavery in every land with Russia as its instrument of control? Or is the new world civilization to enthrone freedom in every land with America as its leader and champion?"

Because of the ruthless nature and aggressive tactics of Moscow's assault on freedom, the danger of hostilities breaking out is ever present. We must be prepared, both militarily and psychologically, to cope with that menace. But this does not alter the fact that the impetus behind the United States policy comes, not from any desire for military conquest or domination but from our determination to maintain a civilization based on human freedom. The European Recovery Program is especially designed to serve this purpose. Its emphasis is on reconstruction—the antithesis of war. The sound thesis of the sponsors of ERP is that its healing influence will give the democratic peoples of western Europe strength enough to resist the creeping paralysis of communism without war.

The difference between these two concepts is immense. One points hopelessly toward destruction and an immeasurable increase in human suffering. The other points toward the renewal of strength in the democratic world for peaceful purposes—toward buttressing the institutions of freedom so that we shall no longer need to fear encroachments from totalitarian zealots fighting with misery, terror and falsehood as their allies. It is of the utmost importance that this constructive aspect of American policy shall not be lost to sight.

Tension In Berlin

The proposed transfer of the government of the American zone of Germany from a military to a civilian administration will not be carried through. Instead, the American military forces will be greatly strengthened. General Clay, who had planned to retire when the transfer was consummated, will remain indefinitely in Germany as head of the military government and as commander of all American troops in Europe.

This action was an inevitable sequel to the melodramatic withdrawal of Marshal Sokolovsky and the entire Russian staff from the Allied Control Council. It appears almost certain that this calculated move was only a sort of overture to the declaration of a Communist or Popular Front government in Berlin and a demand that the American, British and French clear out immediately. In effect, the American announcement that the military government will be prolonged indefinitely is in anticipation of this demand.

Thus the ill-advised effort begun at Tehran and Yalta and finally formulated at Potsdam to reorganize Europe and to establish peace on the basis of a four-power concert is at last abandoned. It is obvious that the Russians intended to cooperate in this plan only to the extent that it could be exploited in the interest of their schemes for the domination of Europe. Most of the mistakes which have resulted from American policies in Germany and in Europe generally have proceeded from the assumption that the Russians had agreed to the arrangements in good faith. That assumption is no longer tenable, except on the prior assumption, which would have made the Potsdam agreements meaningless from the beginning, that there are no semantic equivalences between the language of Communist Russia and the other Indo-European languages.

It has been an expensive education, as the Messrs. Byrnes and Marshall can testify. But we have the Russians themselves to thank for having made the lessons a good deal easier than they might have been. In other words, if the Russian methods had been less crude and arrogant the education might have been delayed until all the Russian purposes were accomplished facts.

This, of course, leads to the question whether the tempo of aggression and arrogance is really within the power of the Kremlin to control. It is often said that the foreign policies of governments are determined by domestic necessities, and governments by dictatorship are forced for the sake of prestige to divert abroad those energies which might be dangerous to them at home. In order to justify the sacrifices they demand of their subjects they must create an illusion of danger. This was the case of Napoleon and of Hitler. We shall soon see whether it is also the case of Stalin.

Imputing Motives

Senator Glen H. Taylor's letter to the President demanding the dismissal of Secretary Forrestal deserves notice not on account of the absurd proposal it sets forth but as a symptom of the barrenness of thought afflicting so much of the country's discussion of foreign affairs. The Secretary of Defense, according to the third party's vice presidential candidate, is trying to shape American foreign and military policy in accordance with "the interests of the oil companies, an interest which many people have described simply as oil imperialism."

It is Senator Taylor's view that "the desire to protect the interests of certain large oil companies was one of the important factors which led to American military aid to Greece and Turkey" and that "the same question of Middle East oil holdings was important in the weakening of the American Government support of the Palestine partition plan." This entirely overlooks the question of whether these policies are sound or unsound and ignores the consideration that oil is a resource of considerable importance to the national security. It attacks the policies not by reason but by stigmatizing them as imperialist and attacks Mr. Forrestal not by taking issue with him but by imputing to him venal motives in his presumed indorsement of these policies. The principal evidence against Mr. Forrestal appears to be that he once worked in Wall Street.

Glen Taylor ought to be the last man in the United States Senate to indulge in this sort of shoddy attribution of guilt by association. He has suffered enough from those who have attacked his beliefs by disparagement of his intentions to have learned better than to engage in such attacks himself. They end, anyway, only in disclosure of the intellectual bankruptcy of those who launch them.

Taft And The BLS

In its fight for restoration of the 2.9 million dollars that the House cut from its appropriation, the Bureau of Labor Statistics has secured a powerful ally in the person of Senator Taft. Mr. Taft's appeal to a Senate Appropriations Subcommittee to give the BLS the full amount of money requested is convincing evidence of the importance the legislative branch attaches to the BLS reporting services. Those Congressmen who regard governmental reporting services as a form of bureaucratic boondoggling to be discouraged by vigorous wielding of the economy axe have been put on the defensive by Senator Taft's assertion that the Joint Congressional Committee on the Economic Report, of which he is chairman, relies heavily on the information supplied by the BLS in its efforts to formulate policies for curbing inflation and averting depression. This testimony to the value of the agency's work is all the more impressive coming from a legislator who has constantly emphasized the need for rigorous economy in Government spending.

It is false economy to hamstring a governmental agency by denying it sufficient funds to perform its tasks efficiently. For instance, some of the price and production indexes on which Senator Taft's committee relies for background information would have to be eliminated entirely, if the BLS appropriation were cut back to the extent contemplated under the House bill, while other indexes would be adversely affected. Commissioner of Labor Statistics Ewan Clague pointed out in his testimony before the Senate Appropriations Subcommittee that the reductions made this year in the BLS appropriation had already resulted in cutting out most special studies, and giving up important parts of State and local statistics. Further substantial cuts would, he said, necessitate elimination of important services carried on for many years.

The BLS also needs additional funds to fill gaps in its informational services and to test and revise its figures so as to make them more reliable and up-to-date sources of information. The 1.3 million dollars additional requested for such purposes is a modest sum, while the total requested appropriation of 5.4 million is not much more than the bureau spent in 1940, if allowance is made for interim increases in salaries and operating costs and for funds then available to BLS from other sources. Meantime, the need for an expanded and improved statistical reporting service has come to be generally recognized by business, labor organizations, the Government and increasingly by the public at large.

RELEASE BY CANDLELIGHT

Candlelight is kindly light.
Would you know release
From the furor of the day,
Strains that do not cease.

Bar the door against the world;
Curtain out the night;
Build a fire upon the hearth
Then, by candlelight,

Kindly thought will venture forth
Phrases that are meet,
From the shadowed quietness
Of their long retreat.

When your heart is calmed again,
Eased of doubts and cares,
Let the candle's flickering light
Guide you up the stairs.

'Obstructive Amendments'

It is to be hoped that the wise observations you make in your March 22 editorial, "Obstructive Amendments," will be given due consideration by Congress in deciding on the final form of the ERP bill.

Along the same line, it is significant to note that on March 19, France and Poland signed a trade agreement by which France will ship 60 million dollars' worth of automobiles and machinery to Poland in return for about 4,500,000 tons of coal. On the previous day Switzerland and the Soviet Union signed a trade agreement.

The majority of the 16 Marshall Plan nations have trade agreements with countries behind the iron curtain. If the ERP bill is to prevent, or even discourage, such trade, it will surely defeat its own plans for the rapid rehabilitation of Europe.

"Big Bold Men"

I want to take this opportunity to thank you for recognition accorded "The Bold Look" in your editorial of March 20.

Contrary to the implication in the first paragraph of your editorial, "The Bold Look" is not a deliberate attempt to outmode and stamp with obsolescence all current men's wear. In fact, this trend readily recognizes that much of the clothing and accessories already in many men's wardrobes lends itself to complimentary participation in this new movement.

"The Bold Look" is merely the first deliberate, Nation-wide attempt to educate men in the importance of selecting clothes and accessories that will live in harmony with each other, and that will do the utmost for their wearers' personality and physical characteristics. Such an effort is bound to result in many wardrobe economies since, in the past, men have often selected clothes and accessories they have worn once or twice and then discarded because they were not complimentary to them.

The fact that "The Bold Look" apparel is offered at popular low prices men have demonstrated they want to pay reflects most favorably upon the undertaking. It is not merely for the exclusive few who can afford anything at any price.

B-36 Radius

Drew Pearson's article of March 19 is misleading and dangerous to a certain degree, since it gives the public the impression we can do things with aircraft that from a practical point of view are not feasible.

First, he has range and radius confused. The theoretical range of an aircraft is usually regarded as the maximum all-out distance the aircraft can traverse without refueling. The radius has been defined by the Air Force as 3/8 of the optimum range. This is because due allowance has to be made for the extra fuel consumed in warm-up, takeoff, climb, reserve, etc. Thus, using the B-36 range of 10,000 miles listed, the radius or target distance works out to be 3/8 times 10,000, or 3750 miles. However, a high-ranking officer of the Air Force has already indicated that the range of the B-36 is actually only about 8000 miles, carrying 10,000 pounds of bombs (the full bomb capacity of the B-36 has been announced as being 72,000 lbs.)

Thus the radius of the B-36 carrying about 14 per cent of rated capacity turns out to be 3000 miles instead of the 5000 mile figure Pearson gave. I am reminded of an Air Force release dated November 7, 1946, which stated the B-36 "could carry an atomic bomb to any inhabited region in the world and return home without refueling."

The "Dreamboat" (B-29) which was stripped and overloaded for the record attempt would have a radius of 3/4 times 8750 or 3280 miles. Therefore the radius Pearson indicated (3400) for the B-29 seems to be a bit of nonsense if one is to be practical.

Fuel Oil Prices

Your correspondent of March 19, Professor Poindexter of Roanoke College, asked for an explanation of "the curious fact that the current price of first-grade fuel oil is about 8 per cent above the current price of gasoline."

The following quotation from "Editorially Speaking" in the March 10 issue of the National Petroleum News, may enlighten him:

"Also would it not be wise to let prices respond to the law of supply and demand, even though heating oil prices get above gasoline prices? Higher prices would warn the public against uneconomic oil-burning equipment, warn those of the public who can reconvert to coal, as well as give the oil companies much needed additional funds with which to expand supply and improve refining and distributing equipment."

Nonsegregated Draft

If Selective Service is reestablished, as President Truman has recommended to Congress, will he insist on an end to racial discrimination and segregation in the armed forces, as called for in his recent civil rights message? Or will the Nation which has assumed leadership of the supposedly democratic countries again be in the hypocritical position of fighting for democracy abroad while failing to practice it at home? If our Army continued its segregated policy, it would certainly fail to convince the peoples of Europe of the United States' position on freedom and equality of man under a democratic way of government.

Use Of Pseudonyms

On March 15 you published a letter signed "Veteran," in which Senator Byrd and Congressman Rankin were denounced, and the name used made me wonder if this so-called veteran was any more brave in war than in civil life. In civil life he hides behind "Veteran."

Reaction To Truman's Addresses

President Truman made a forceful and realistic appeal to the Congress, asking that the Government of the United States be given the physical means to let it speak with authority in the present crisis, in support of its ideals and its interests. With such requests it would seem that every thoughtful citizen must agree. But he also said, "Most of the countries of the world have joined together in the U. N. in an attempt to build a world order based on law, and not on force."

World order based on law, must, to be effective, be based on world law; and world law must be enacted, interpreted and enforced by a world legislature, judiciary and executive. Is it not time for the Chief Executive of the most powerful nation in the world to propose that more is required than acceptance of the desirability of international security based on law?

The U. N. cannot transform itself into an instrument capable of enacting and interpreting law, nor give itself the armed strength to enforce law once it is enacted, without leadership from one of the two great powers. Such leadership will obviously not come from Russia. The American people must face the fact that basic revisions of the U. N. charter are required before it can hope to solve the problems that come before it.

Armed might is important, indeed vital, if the United States is to have a chance to give such leadership to the free peoples of the world. But armed might alone is not enough. The way to get world law is to work for it, through a strengthened United Nations, given, by its component nation states, the power and authority to enact, interpret and enforce such law. It is time some spokesman for the Government told the people just this.

MARY-STUART CHAMBERLAIN.
Washington.

The President nominated himself leadership of another "little group of willful men" devoted to keep us out of the United Nations by his speech on St. Patrick's Day.

He disobeyed the strongest mandate ever given public officials of this country—to take us into the United Nations, keep us there, and make the United Nations work. We know, and he should know, that this is our best assurance of peace.

Instead, he prefers to take the ills of the world and a possible war onto our shoulders. Containing Russia, or any threat to peace, is the job of the United Nations, not the United States.

What a lonely job he cuts out for us. Try to name an effective ally who would be any help to us in a war! And then list the nations of the world waiting and eager to join our strength in a real United Nations program of enforcing world peace.

CHARLES E. PLANCK.
Arlington.

We who believe with Henry Wallace, that the human race can muster enough common sense and good will to prevent its annihilation by atomic war, have often been dubbed "wishful thinkers." It appears, however, that not a little wishful thinking is taking place on the other side of the fence.

We were led into two wars with the assurance that we were fighting to save democracy. We came out of each with less democracy than when we went in. Nevertheless, we are urged to defend democracy once more with military might! What kind of thinking is this? It just doesn't make sense.

J. STUART INNERST.
Costa Mesa, Calif.

In the past half-century I have been taught I should hate to kill Spaniards, Moros, Germans, Japs, Greek, Chinese, Yugoslavs, Italians, Dupes of Villa and Sandino and now the Russians.

I look around me and I see my countrymen, my people, no different from those in other parts of the world. Adults in years, but playing war games. Too many of them juvenile in mind and emotions, talking themselves into blood-curdling warfare, most of them too old to fight and no kind mothers to call them to bed, and back of it all I see a gang of cold-blooded, ruthless men, actuated only by ambition, greed and the urge for power, with no more social conscience than a viper. These and their oily-tongued sycophants mouthing Americanisms, these evil Machiavellian politicians, building up hatred, fear, jangled nerves to lead their fellows into another and final world war. And when we are thoroughly beaten, for no war is ever won, who will start a Marshall Plan for us?

Uncle Sam's "Loafers"

By Malvina Lindsay

Snack System

SOME MEMBERS of Congress have been making their periodical charges about Government loafing. This time their criticism is centered on snack bars and eating on the job. Thus a trend that has made widespread progress in industry now presents its problems on the office and bureaucratic level.

It is the "work hours"—not the digestions—of those who patronize snack bars that the House Appropriations Committee is worrying about. Its investigators have figured down to the last second and cent the cost to taxpayers of extra-curricular eating by employes of one department.

Most Government departments have snack bars and give time off morning and afternoon for pickups. Since the snack rooms are small they can easily appear crowded. Members of Congress, or their investigators, or citizens visiting the Capital, are likely to view with disapproval the seeming throngs drinking cokes or coffee, munching candy bars or cookies.

Many of these critics were brought up in copy book reverence of a long and relentless work day, and are skeptical of "new-fangled" trends in labor standards. Since women are more conspicuous in snack bars and generally regarded as up to more tricks than men, the girl Government employe gets the main blame for loafing.

IN INDUSTRY, snack time is known as rest period. During the war when increasing production was needed, midmorning and mid-afternoon pickups were encouraged in many plants, some of which provided the snacks. The eating habit took stronger hold in factories and has been infiltrating offices—to the profit of drug store soda fountains.

Many industries have become committed to the snack system as a means of increasing efficiency. Its value in that line has been demonstrated by a survey made of 58,000 plants by the National Society of In-Plant Feeding Engineers. This showed that the worker when he had a morning rest period and snack averaged 14 per cent more in efficiency at the end of the morning than when he went without. If he had another rest and snack in midafternoon, he was 21 per cent more efficient for the entire day.

Modern labor standards for industry generally include a 10 to 15 minute rest period morning and afternoon. Office workers present a somewhat different problem, and are often less easy to regulate in the matter of rest periods and snacks. If they are inclined to loaf they can take better advantage of "time out" than can factory workers.

BUT, AS personnel authorities point out, the skilled loafer is going to find a means to loaf whether it is at snack bar, soda fountain, in rest room or at his desk. Moreover, the office employe in either routine or highly concentrated work has need of periodic relaxing and probably pickups. Many believe the British system of serving tea in late afternoon yields results in production.

The snack system also has emotional foundations in American life. Foreign visitors frequently marvel at the constant between-meal eating in this country. The craving for soft drinks, coffee and sweets is particularly marked—as dentists frequently lament. Some dietitians believe the custom of eating light, inadequate breakfasts contributes to this. However, it may be that Americans just like to eat—and have plenty to eat. Statistics show that with high employment they are eating today as never before. No small part of this is in the form of snacks.

These, tied up with childhood habits, mean a great deal to young people particularly, and are a relatively easy means of contributing to their contentment as workers, whether in factories, Government or private offices. Even though the snack system may be abused it is here to stay. The problem is not how to get rid of it but how to improve it nutritionally.

Wallace's Views

Since Henry Wallace claims he is for universal peace, I believe he should be given a chance to present his views before the members of the United Nations.

President Truman, who is also expressly for world peace, owes it to the American people to give Mr. Wallace this opportunity. The President should clear the way for Mr. Wallace to present his case, without delay.

AARON H. GOLDBLATT.
New York.

Henry Wallace is working for peace. And yet he is being called a Communist by politicians.

Victor Hugo once said: "I represent a party which does not yet exist: the party of . . . civilization." Today when the world is in danger any statesman who uses the threat of war or indorses a military plan leading to war, or favors military conscription or rearmament should be dropped from office and branded as a traitor to civilization.

We need a new party, and leaders who know when the people are through with the worn out instrument of war.

MARION LOUIS BLISS.
Washta, Iowa.

You are to be commended for your March 20 editorial, "Wallace's Support." Regardless of one's opinion of Mr. Wallace it is hardly factual to say or imply that all his followers are Communists. Such talk clouds real issues and hinders operation of democracy in deciding vital questions.

N. O. RICHFIELD.

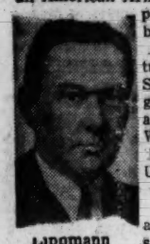
Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Power With Wisdom

THE BURDEN of responsibility upon Washington today is different in kind from any that an American Administration has previously borne. In the nineteenth century the United States was not a great power at all. In the two World Wars of this century the United States became involved and intervened after war had started, long after war had started. The American people were in at the finish but not at the beginning. In the events that led up to the wars, in the decisions that gave them their character, their temper, and their main strategical form, the American Government played no important conscious part. The issues, the pattern, and the main objectives had already been set sufficiently by what had happened before America became a belligerent so that the choices of high policy were comparatively narrow and limited.



Lippmann

They had in large measure already been examined and defined by our allies and by the coalition of our opponents, and our role was broadly speaking that of a fresh and powerful auxiliary. That may have something to do with the fact that in both wars, our diplomacy has been unequal to task of making peace after decisive military victory.

THE POSITION today is quite different. In an unprecedented degree the strategical initiative and the prime responsibility for acting on it are now in Washington—on Secretary Marshall and Secretary Forrestal and the Chiefs of Staff. We are no longer the New World come to redress the balance of the Old. Vitally important as it is, therefore, that we develop military power promptly, we cannot now think of ourselves—as we have in the two World Wars—as certain to prevail if we perform quickly the task of recruiting, training, organizing, and of supplying, powerful forces, and of mastering the problems of logistics, of tactics, and of the strategy of campaigns.

Upon all these tasks and problems there is superimposed for the first time in any comparable measure the problem of the highest strategy, with which Churchill, Roosevelt and Stimson were so continually concerned, and where military decisions and statesmanship are inseparable and indistinguishable.

THESE PROBLEMS are difficult enough after a war has begun. They are even more difficult—they require greater and rarer faculties of insight and judgment—at a time like this, when decisions have to be taken for the purpose of preventing war, and of being in an advantageous position in case of war, and of being able to conclude a war if it comes. A failure to seize and master the critical problems that lead up to a showdown, and it may be war, could lead to irreparable disaster. We all know that to give way continually—the policy of appeasement—means that in the end aggression becomes insatiable.

But a refusal to appease is not the whole of statesmanship. We have to remember that appeasement is not the only mistake that can be made. There is also the fearful mistake of becoming so overextended and dispersed that there is no sufficient power anywhere. There is also the mistake of becoming engaged in the wrong place and at the wrong time. There is also the mistake, which can be fatal to the strongest nation, of becoming committed to unlimited objectives, of conducting not a diplomatic policy or even a war, but a general crusade. For that must mean that the completest military victory would still leave peace unattainable.

THE HISTORY of the decline of the western powers in this century is a warning that these considerations are now real and pertinent to us. In the First World War France was the center of the western coalition and bore the brunt of the fighting. She has never recovered from her losses. In the Second World War Britain was the center of the western coalition and bore the brunt of the struggle. If there is another world war, we shall be the center of the coalition and we shall bear the brunt of the western effort.

We cannot consider too thoroughly how we can best make sure that a war, if it is unavoidable, is not begun in such a way, or fought for such unlimited and unattainable end, that it can never be concluded and settled, and that the last great power of the western world is not exhausted and bled white.

America's Great Heart

Bevin's Tribute To Marshall Plan

Editor's Note: The following quotation is from a speech by British Foreign Minister Ernest Bevin before the House of Commons on January 22 of this year. It is reprinted here because in the opinion of the editors it reflects significantly the appreciation by the British government of American motives and American interests in the European Recovery Program. It also points to the relevance of a close economic union with Latin America.

"NOW I want to say a word about the United States, which seems to be a sort of bogey in the minds of a good many people. Everybody has the idea that the United States has a great fund of dollars which it is trying to hurl at everybody for some ulterior motive. All I can say is that if anybody follows the hearings in Congress to try to get these appropriations, I do not think they bear that interpretation. They are a democratic country trying to look where they are going and what responsibilities they are undertaking.

"Our primary task, as I have said, is to build up with our friends in western Europe. We have to get resources together and repair a war damaged continent, and we have to carry out the development of these new resources overseas. The United States and the countries of Latin America are clearly as much a part of our common western civilization as are the nations of the British Commonwealth. The power and resources of the United States—indeed, I would say the power and resources of all the countries on the Continent of America will be needed if we are to create a solid, stable and healthy world.

"When I speak of the United States, I am not thinking of the country misrepresented in propaganda as a sort of Shylock of Wall Street, but a young, vigorous, democratic people. It is a country not only of great wealth and great resources but one whose people are moved by a good will and a generosity which many of us in the Old World are apt to take for granted.

"American policy, like the policy of all great countries, must have regard to American interests, but it has been so often traduced as purely selfish that I think it is time to pay a tribute to the great heart of the American people which found expression in the European Recovery Program. I was quite convinced, and I am now, that there was no political motive behind the Marshall offer other than the valuable human motive of helping Europe to help herself and so restore the economic and political health of this world. It is, of course, an American interest but it is everybody's interest, it is not exclusively American. This does not make the offer less unselfish."

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Draft Question Marks

MEMBERS OF the Senate Armed Forces Committee listened with solemn and growing concern to Secretary of State George C. Marshall as he explained why the world situation called for the draft and universal military training. Most of the members came away convinced, and they will carry their conviction to the floor of the Senate.

Childs

But at the same time many of these members harbor serious doubts about the efficiency of the leadership of the armed services. What is especially disturbing is the fact that there is so little readiness for the present emergency. The Pentagon seems to be as completely taken by surprise as the average citizen.

A draft bill was not ready for presentation to Congress. It has been necessary to improvise while Congress waits. In terms of action on the program, this is not serious. It is, however, a serious reflection on the preparedness of the armed services.

The war in Europe has been over for nearly three years. Yet there is no evidence that anyone has made any over-all manpower studies to show how the human resources of the Nation can be most effectively and intelligently used in an emergency. Such a general and comprehensive study is necessary if the blunders and mistakes of the past are to be avoided.

DRAFT policy in World War II took no account of the real demands of total war. It was an old-fashioned seine that scooped up men wholesale without regard to the effect on science and scientific training and the Nation's all-important technology

Throughout the war, leading scientists repeatedly sought to bring about a change in this policy. They understood how deep were the inroads being made in the Nation's basic research and, even more important, in scientific training.

But they got nowhere. Contrary to the policy in every other country, the teaching of science was brought virtually to a standstill in the United States. A four-year gap now remains to be made up.

Still in charge of the Office of Selective Service Records is Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, who was responsible for World War II draft policy. This time, however, members of Congress are likely to scrutinize the bill more closely to try to prevent the kind of mistakes that were made before.

This is merely one of the doubts that members of the Senate Armed Service Committee are expressing among themselves, and without regard to party. They are wondering why the services were not immediately ready with a statement on their exact manpower needs when the President made his call for a draft.

Puzzling, too, to the committee is the fact of an off-the-record meeting with Secretary Marshall two weeks earlier. At that time he was asked about the possibility that a new draft would be necessary. Marshall brushed the question aside as though such a possibility would never occur.

DOUBTS SUCH as these were behind the demand of Senator Wayne Morse of Oregon and others for more facts. They believe that, in order to vote for a revival of the draft, they must have more specific information to make the case for the folks back home. Mail is running approximately 9 to 1 against a renewal of the draft.

If Secretary Marshall can describe our military establishment as a "hollow shell," then, Senators are asking, what is happening to the 11 billion dollars currently being spent by the three services? In terms of what America has spent in peacetime before, this is a prodigious sum.

Dismantling the military apparatus of World War II—putting a large part of the Navy in mothballs, for example—was a very costly process. But in spite of this cost, members of the committee feel that the Nation should be getting more than a "hollow shell" for 11 billion dollars.

Criticism tends to skip over Secretary of Defense James Forrestal, who is not held accountable for administrative detail. The three service Secretaries, Kenneth Royall for the Army, John L. Sullivan for the Navy, and W. Stuart Symington for the Air Force, get the brunt of it. Their presentation, or lack of it, brought caustic criticism from committee members. All this has stirred talk of the need for a watchdog committee which would concentrate far more closely on what is happening to defense billions. This is rapidly becoming a familiar pattern—a committee to look over the Executive's shoulder. And here at least such a committee seems to be called for.

House Group Approves Oil Bill

A House Judiciary Subcommittee yesterday approved a bill to give the States clear title to oil-bearing tidelands.

The Federal Government, however, would keep its authority to develop navigation, flood control and reclamation projects on inland waters. This provision was not in a similar bill approved recently by a Senate Judiciary Subcommittee.

The Administration opposes the measure and President Truman is expected to veto it if it reaches the White House.

Representative E. Wallace Chadwick (R., Pa.) sponsor of the House measure, said in all other respects it is the same bill as that in the Senate.

The Senate and House subcommittees held joint hearings on the measure, but voted on it separately and will refer it to their respective full committees.

Rogers Charges AVC in Calif. Is Red Front, Quits

Beverly Hills, Calif., March 24 (U.P.).—Will Rogers, jr., one of the founders of the American Veterans Committee, resigned last night and charged the AVC in California is "nothing but a Communist front."

Rogers, former Democratic Congressman who left the House to join the Army, sent his letter of resignation to State President Ben Rinaldo.

He said that nationally AVC "may still be a veterans' organization, but not here in California. Here all AVC ever does is to plump for Communist projects and to denounce whatever Communists are denouncing."

"There are many fine men and women still left in AVC," he wrote. "My advice to them is to resign and get out. We lost a battle here in California. We should leave the Communists with their empty shell. To remain in the State organization is to give assistance to America's enemies.

Tuck May Not Attend Mississippi Parley

Richmond, Va., March 24 (AP).—Governor Tuck's office said today it is unlikely the Governor will be able to attend the Southern Democrats' conference in Jackson, Miss., on May 10.

The Governor has set aside a major portion of his time in May and June to work out details of the pending reorganization of the State government, it was said.

A spokesman emphasized the Governor is in full accord with the views of other Southern Governors in opposition to President Truman's civil rights program.

Choice as Reserve Board Head Surprised Him, McCabe Says

Thomas B. McCabe, recently chosen to be chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, yesterday told the Senate Banking Committee his appointment was a complete surprise to him.

He had no inkling of it, he said, until Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder informed him by telephone that he was being considered. He didn't know then, he said, that he was to be chairman.

Chairman Charles W. Tobey (R., N. H.) of the committee, has indicated that he wants to learn why Marriner C. Eccles was demoted from chairman to assistant, and whether Snyder had a hand in the job.

Snyder Called for Tuesday

So, Tobey announced yesterday, Snyder is being called before the committee Tuesday. Snyder has previously denied that he had recommended Eccles' demotion.

McCabe told the committee that he thoroughly agrees with the Government's policy of supporting the price of its bonds. The committee is considering McCabe's nomination.

McCabe added that there are now no indications that the price of Government bonds will be allowed to drop below par in the future.

Discusses Increase

McCabe discussed a proposal to increase reserve requirements of Federal Reserve banks. He promised to make a complete study of the proposal. He said such a plan will have to be considered in event Congress is asked to appropriate extra billions for military purposes.

Also, McCabe said, there is much to commend in the idea of increasing reserve requirements of State and national banks as an anti-inflation measure. But, he added, it may tak aen educational program to put the idea across with the Congress.

The special reserve program first was suggested by Eccles. McCabe now is chairman of the Philadelphia Federal Reserve Bank and heads the Scott Paper Company.

Belgian Prince, Party Coming to U. S. April 4

By the United Press

The State Department announced yesterday that Prince Charles of Belgium, will arrive in the United States April 4 for a 10-day visit.

He will be accompanied among others by Belgian Prime Minister Paul Henri-Spaak, Paul de Groote, a Belgian cabinet member, and four other Belgian officials. The prince will visit President Truman, Arlington National Cemetery, George Washington's Tomb, the Tennessee Valley Authority at Knoxville, Tenn., and the Military and Naval Academies.

Houston or Hunter May Get Postoffice

By The Associated Press

The next postmaster President Truman appoints for Fredericksburg, Va., may be either Lemuel W. Houston or Charles S. Hunter.

The Civil Service Commission announced yesterday these two are eligible for the appointment, as a result of its recent examination of applicants for the job.

There could be a hitch, however. Under Civil Service procedure, the commission usually certifies three eligible candidates for each postmaster appointment. If the Postoffice Department insists on three in this case, it may ask the commission to conduct a new examination of applicants.

Kamp Sentenced to 4 Months In Failure to Produce Records

Joseph Kamp, chairman of the Constitutional Education League of New York, yesterday was sentenced to four months' imprisonment in District Court for contempt of Congress.

The charges stemmed from failure of Kamp to produce financial records of the organization for the House Committee on Political Expenditures.

Visiting Federal Judge Ben Moore of West Virginia in imposing the sentence commented that probation in Kamp's case would be valueless. Probation, the judge pointed out, is a device used in cases where rehabilitation is indicated. Since Kamp had maintained he had done no wrong, Moore said, obviously rehabilitation was not an issue. Imposition of a $100 fine was suspended.

Last week Kamp said he would refuse probation on the ground that he had committed no wrong.

Author of Pamphlets

Kamp was the author of a number of wartime pamphlets that carried the theme that the Government was dominated by Communist influences. His bond of $500 was continued pending appeal.

In another contempt case, that of Mrs. Ernestina Fleischmann of New York, a member of the executive committee of the joint anti-Fascist refugee committee, the Government yesterday introduced testimony from Ernie Adamson, former counsel for the House Un-American Activities Committee.

Adamson told of supenas being issued by Mrs. Fleischman and 17 other defendants, officials of the anti-Fascist group, in an effort to obtain records of the organization.

The Government produced a written statement, which had been read to the House committee by Mrs. Fleischman, in which she said she had no control over the records.

Another Trial Pending

Trial of Helen Bryan, executive secretary of the league, also on contempt charges involving failure to produce the records, is pending in District Court.

In the meantime, Attorney O. John Rogge, representing Dr. Edward K. Barsky and 10 other officials of the anti-Fascist group, filed a petition yesterday for a rehearing on the appeal of the group from a District Court contempt conviction.

An appeal had been rejected several days ago by the United States Court of Appeals.

Rogge based his petition for a rehearing on the ground that the question of communism, dwelt upon the majority opinion of the Appellate Court, was not a point at issue.

FCC to Investigate News Broadcasts Of Three Stations

By The Associated Press

The Federal Communications Commission yesterday announced it will investigate news broadcasts by radio stations KMPC, Los Angeles; WJR, Detroit, and WGAR, Cleveland.

The stations are jointly controlled by G. A. Richards of Los Angeles, who is president of the operating companies.

FCC said the inquiry was voted as the result of a complaint filed by the Radio News Club of Hollywood, Calif., an organization of radio writers, against Richards.

The complaint, the commission said, "concerned the broadcasting of news over KMPC." Details of the complaint were not made public by the commission.

The American Jewish Congress last week petitioned FCC to revoke KMPC's license, contending that the station had engaged in anti-Semitic broadcasts. No action has been taken on this petition.

Dead 'Pauper' Found To Be Ex-Industrialist

Fort Lauderdale, Fla., March 24 (NYHT).—A man killed by a train on February 27 and buried in a pauper's grave here was identified today as Theodore R. Dahl of Cleveland, Ohio, former secretary and vice president of the White Motor Co. Mr. Dahl, 61, a brother of Gerhard M. Dahl, former chairman of the BMT Subway in New York, had been sought since February 27 when he disappeared from his rooming house in Miami.

Plaza Parking Solution Held Possible by '50

Observance of the Washington Sesquicentennial in 1950 may get the Grand Plaza parking lot problem solved.

Yesterday, the Public Buildings Administration submitted a plan to build a one-story garage, holding 1794 cars, on the lot which is south of the District Building. This plan was turned down by the Fine Arts Commission, but two other plans submitted by PBA, calling for parking space for 751 and 1795 cars, respectively, were taken under study by the Commission.

Long a bone of contention, the Grand Plaza was the subject of a study in 1945 out of which agreement had grown that automobiles would be parked there under rows of trees on three sides.

Late last year, PBA quieted fears of motorists that they might be deprived of their parking spaces on the lot within the next few years. They said development of the Plaza space would have to wait for completion of other high-priority projects.

Now, however, a move apparently is underfoot to go ahead with some form of re-landscaping for the area.

The Fine Arts Commission, it was said yesterday, is not opposed to use of the Plaza as a parking lot. It wants only to be presented with a suitable plan for such development.

In another actions yesterday the Commission approved placing historic monument and flagpole at the site of the Francis Scott Key mansion on M street, west of Key Bridge. The mansion was razed to make way for the K street overpass.

The commission also studied plans by PBA for development of the road system at the National Institute of Health in Bethesda.

Communists, Police Clash in Amsterdam

Amsterdam, the Netherlands, March 24 (U.P.).—Communists and police clashed in the streets of Amsterdam today during demonstrations protesting the attempted removal of two Communists from the municipal council.

One demonstrator was slightly injured and several were arrested. The Communists attempted to organize protest strikes throughout the city, but they were largely ineffective.

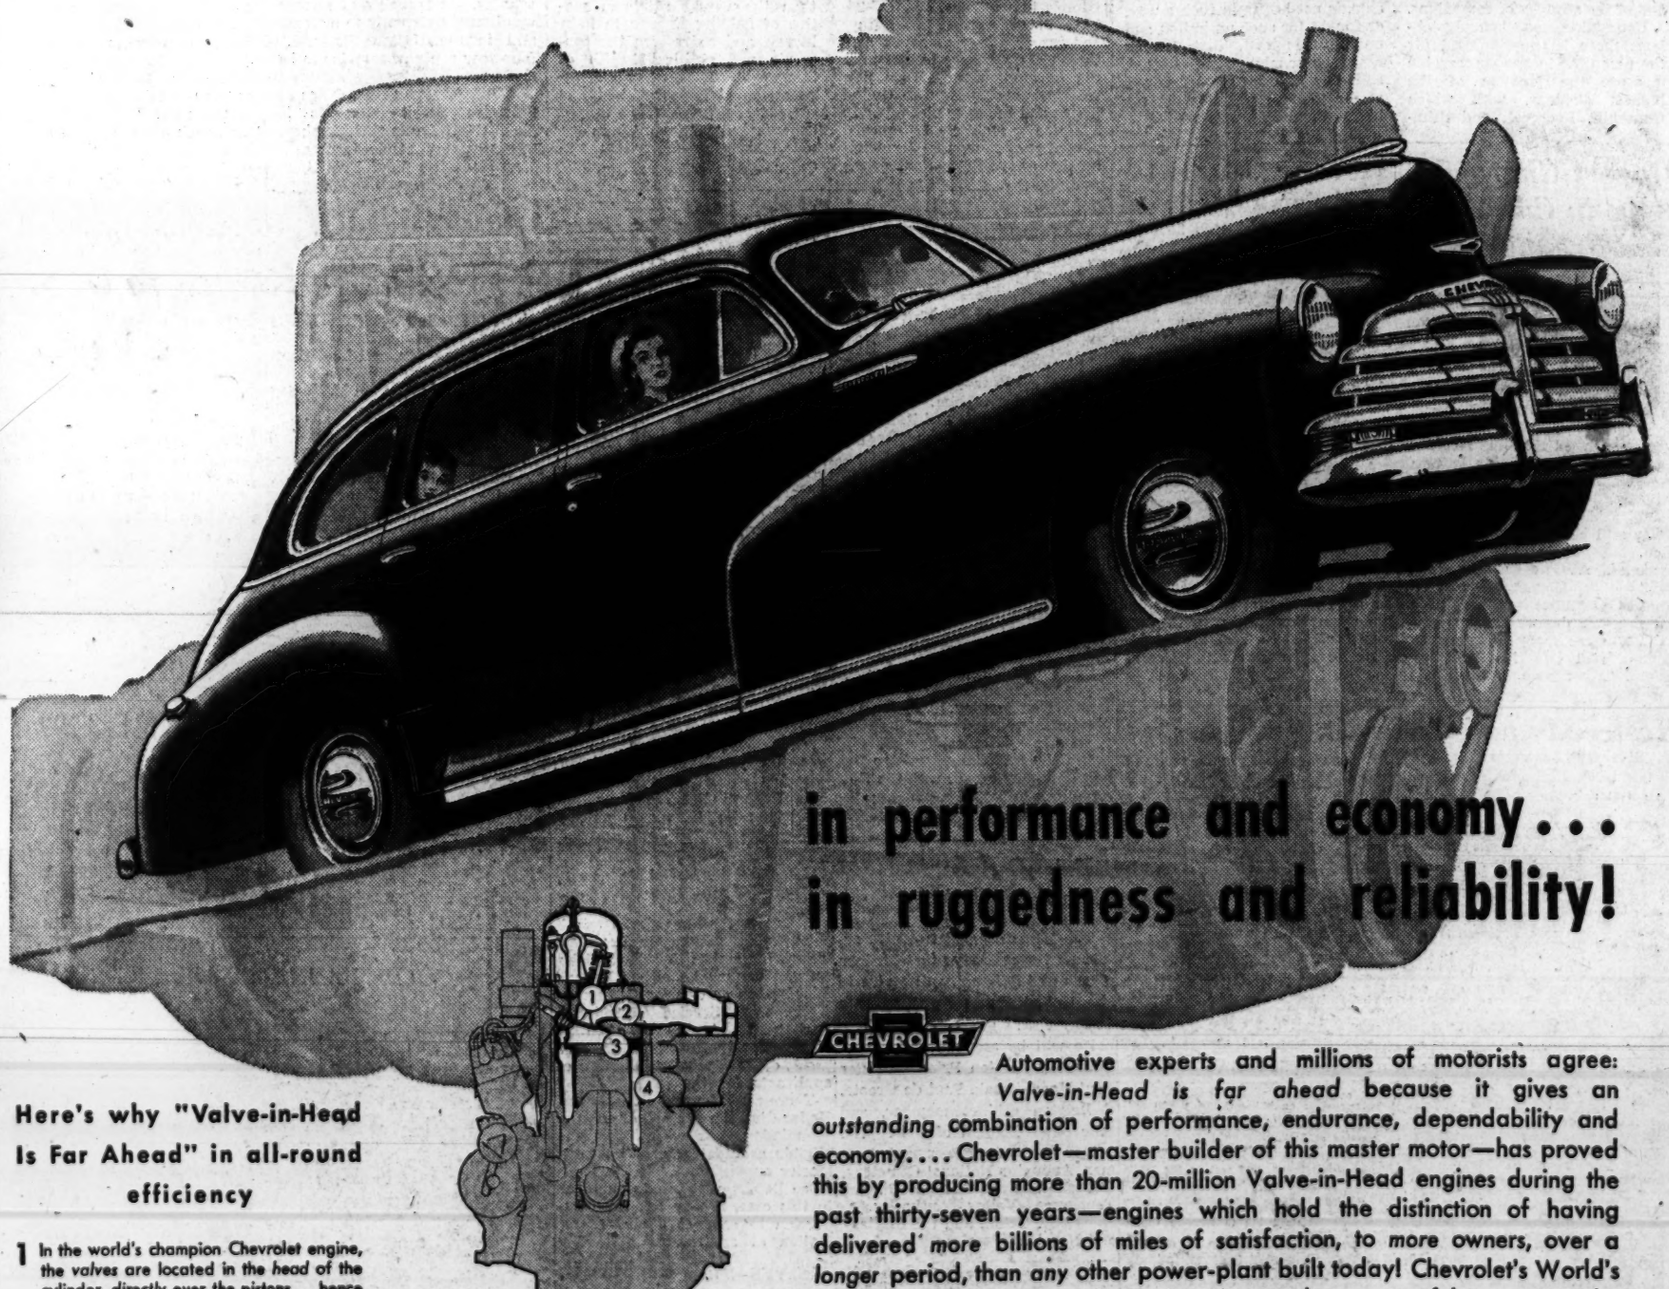
VALVE-IN-HEAD is far ahead!


in performance and economy...
CHEVROLET
Here's why "Valve-in-Head Is Far Ahead" in all-round efficiency
1 In the world's champion Chevrolet engine, the valves are located in the head of the cylinder, directly over the pistons... hence the name, Valve-in-Head.
2 Valve-in-Head design provides faster intake of fuel mixture . . . and quicker and more complete exhaust of burned gases . . . all of which contributes to better performance and economy.
3 Valve-in-Head design also permits a more compact combustion chamber; and this, together with Chevrolet's "Blue Flame" combustion, means more driving power for the pistons—less heat loss—and maximum economy.
4 Valve-in-head engines are inherently easier to cool, and Chevrolet's individual cooling of cylinders prevents waste of power—promotes efficient operation—prolongs engine life.
Moreover, with all of the valve mechanism on top of the engine—and therefore readily accessible—service, though seldom needed, is extraordinarily easy and economical.
Automotive experts and millions of motorists agree: Valve-in-Head is far ahead because it gives an outstanding combination of performance, endurance, dependability and economy.... Chevrolet—master builder of this master motor—has proved this by producing more than 20-million Valve-in-Head engines during the past thirty-seven years—engines which hold the distinction of having delivered more billions of miles of satisfaction, to more owners, over a longer period, than any other power-plant built today! Chevrolet's World's Champion Valve-in-Head engine is another powerful reason why CHEVROLET AND ONLY CHEVROLET IS FIRST . . . another convincing proof that only Chevrolet gives BIG-CAR QUALITY AT LOWEST COST!

Eleven Disabled Vets Here Go to Bat for Graziano

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Discredited in New York for failure to report an alleged bribe attempt and dishonorably discharged from the Army, Middleweight Champion Rocky Graziano received unsolicited support from 11 disabled war veterans here yesterday.

The group, patients at the Mount Alto Veterans Administration Hospital, want the Army to review Graziano's discharge. They feel that on the basis of an article in a nationally known news magazine Graziano "didn't get a fair break."

They expressed this sentiment in a letter to The Washington Post and in interviews to this reporter in their ward yesterday.

When informed that Graziano (whose real name is Thomas Barbella) must institute the appeal for review himself, the veterans said they would support him "if the facts in the magazine article (Newsweek, March 15) are true."

The story, written by John Lardner, deals with Graziano's suspension in New York and also of the unfavorable reaction in some states after the NBA poll on whether he should be allowed to fight.

". . . The NBA (some states—editor's note) is barring him on the basis of his Army record," says Lardner, in part.

"Since all the state commissioners already know what Rocky's sin in the Army was, I doubt if it will hurt the Rock if I state it publicly. It was a sin of impulse, not worth sentencing a man for life for, and it no longer seems the part of good sense or justice to keep it a secret."

Lardner states that an Army captain, having lost patience with Graziano's disobedience, told Graziano:

"'I am going to sock you in the jaw, Barbella,' said the captain, calling Rocky by his right name and starting to take off his coat.

". . . all the old instincts rose up in Rocky and he blindly obeyed them . . . You do not punch an officer and stay around to talk about it. Not if you were raised as Rocky was, in the thick of an age-old battle of cops and kids. Soon afterward, naturally, the Rock did time for his offenses."

Graziano served 10 months of a 12-month sentence for absence without leave. He was acquitted of charges of desertion.

The Mount Alto veterans, particularly 41-year-old Ernest Rizzuto of Schuylkill Haven, Pa., founder of the VFW post in his home town, do not believe Graziano was justified in going AWOL, but they said the officer's alleged conduct was wrong, too.

"Anytime an officer wants to hit an enlisted man then he's certainly not a leader of men," Rizzuto said. "He shirked his duty in that instance anyway."

The veterans maintained they had no interest in the case other than to bring out the "real truth."

Francis E. Barrett, 34, former sailor from Drexel Hill, Pa., said "they threw the book at Graziano because he was Graziano. If I were in his shoes I'd certainly ask for a review."

Barrett said that while he was on the subject of boxing he'd like to voice a protest over the efforts to bring Max Schmeling back to the United States for a boxing comeback.

"He's over the hill as a fighter, let him stay where he is. He's had his day."

None of five persons interviewed knew Graziano and only one, Rizzuto, had ever seen him fight, they said. None served with him in the Army.

Scarborough Fades After Vernon and Drake Homer

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Orlando, Fla., March 24.—The Nats today took a two-run lead into the eighth inning and took an awful licking out of it. The Boston Braves began scoring runs until weariness set in, and cut a pretty figure in the scoreboard in that inning to win the ball game, 14 to 6.

You may guess that the Washington pitching wasn't very good. Actually it was worse than that—it was no good at all.

Even Early Wynn, who held the Braves to two runs in the first five innings, forced one run across with three consecutive walks in the second.

But Wynn's control was masterful compared to the wildness of Rae Scarborough, who succeeded him. Scarborough got past the sixth inning, but he couldn't get anybody outin the seventh when he faced seven hitters. He walked five of those, forced two runs home and to the dismay of the Braves he was finally lifted.

Nine Up, None Out

The Braves needed only four hits to get their eight runs in the eighth. Nine of 'em went to bat before a man was retired. The Braves filled the bases immediately on a walk to Litwhiler, a single by Masi and another walk to Ryan. Pinch-hitter Frank McCormick was also walked by Scarborough to force a run in. Sisti scored two more with a single to center. Holmes drew an intentional walk to refill the bases, and Conatser drew an unintentional walk to move the fourth run of the inning home.

That's when Pierretti came in, and no improvement was immediately noticeable. Elliott singled to center for two more runs, and Frank McCormick singled for another. The eighth scored on Masi's long fly.

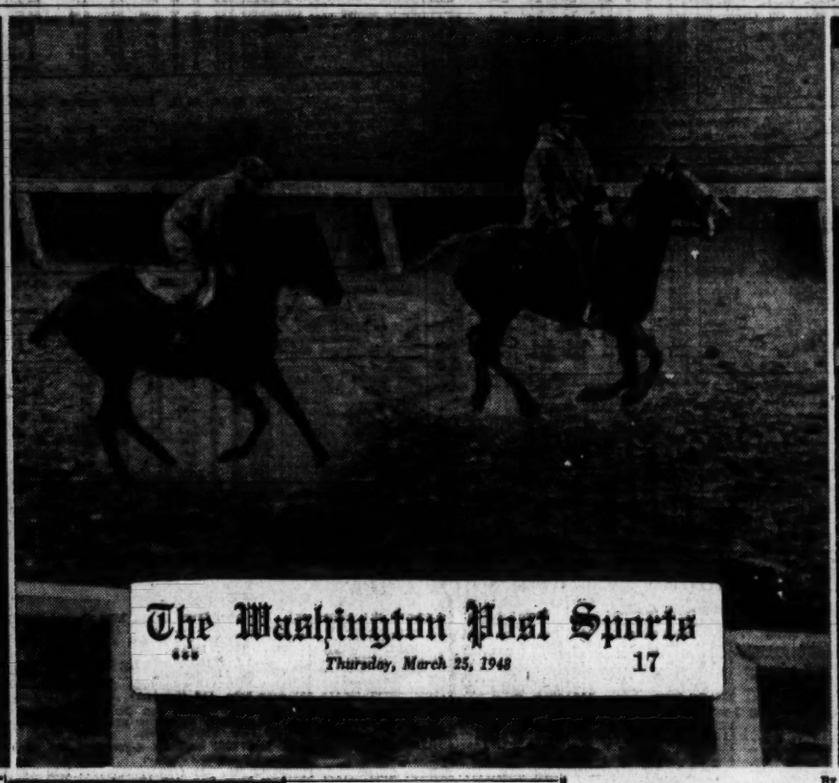
Until that eighth inning, the Nats were doing very well and looking good in the process. Mickey Vernon belted a two-run homer over the right field wall in the first inning, and after the Braves tied it at 2-2 against Wynn, the Nats moved in front 4-2, in the fourth. Vernon's single and Culberson's double played a part in those tallies, but both runs scored on a muff by Shortstop Sibi Sisti.

Hit Spahn Hard

Scarborough, who went out like a lamb in the eighth, came in like a lamb in the sixth. The first pitch he threw was a homer to Elliott, a right-handed hitter whose blow cleared the right-field wall and cut the Nats' lead to 4-3.

Young Larry Drake, a rising figure in the Nats' outfield plans, got two runs back for Washington in the sixth. He belted his third homer of the spring over the right-field wall with Vernon on base. The Nats had no more left, however, but the Braves had plenty.

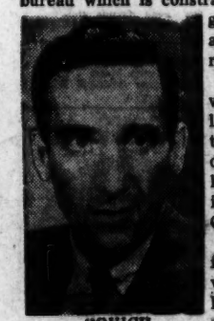
Warren Spahn, ace of the Braves' pitching staff, was the man the Nats hit hardest. They raked him for six hits in the five innings he worked . . . Johnny Sullivan's dashing play at shortstop was a bit of consolation to Joe Kuhel . . . The two runs the Braves scored against Chic Pieretti in the ninth were somewhat monotonous . . . Sisti doubled to left, Holmes doubled to left and Conatser doubled to left, all in a row . . . Lou Perini, owner of the Braves, sat in on his club's victory. He came here to inspect the possibility of sharing Orlando as a training site with the Nats next season . . . Ramon Garcia, the Cuban pitcher who made a smashing debut by holding the A's to a scratch hit in five innings two weeks ago, is due to rejoin the club tomorrow after a siege of dentistry in his native Havana . . . The Nats move to nearby Winter Garden tomorrow for a game with their Chattanooga farm hands.



This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

ORLANDO, FLA., March 24.—There's going to be no trouble between Ted Williams and his new manager, Joe McCarthy, you are safe in saying. At least that is the considered opinion of this bureau which is constrained to revise previous estimates of the gravity of a situation that finds the temperamental Williams and the stern disciplinarian, McCarthy, on the same club.



POVICH

Like most everybody else, I thought they were headed pell mell for a blow-up, following the announcement last December that McCarthy had taken the job. There didn't seem much chance that Williams with his little pouts and sulks and habit of blowing his top could hit it off with such as McCarthy.

With the Yankees, McCarthy never stood for any such nonsense. He had to contend with even a bigger star than Williams when he had Babe Ruth, and the Babe was a great big bundle of charm all of the time. But McCarthy was unawed, and after reading one riot act to Ruth captured the big fellow's respect and there was no more trouble.

There was some speculation as to how McCarthy would handle Williams on one particular item, anyway. Joe could work up a froth on the field, but he always has been a very proper fellow off of it. Particularly did he like to dress with dignity. And he insisted that his Yankees dress well, too.

McCARTHY WANTED his Yankees to look big league off the field as well as on. For one thing, these damfool sport shirts men had taken to wearing were out. What kind of silly business was it, anyway? Shirts open at the neck and no neckties. He'd have none of that on his Yankee ball club. Woe to the Yankee who didn't wear a necktie. The Yankees knew about McCarthy's prejudices, and they were careful to stay out of the Sport Shirt League.

Sport shirts were for the Gas House Gang, McCarthy used to say. They were all right for the St. Louis Cardinals' guys like Dizzy Dean and Pepper Martin who were hick towners anyway, but not for a club that represented the city of New York. McCarthy used to say he wouldn't be caught dead in one.

But the fortunes of baseball moved him to the Red Sox, and with that club his big star was Ted Williams, and Williams was a sports shirt addict, who wouldn't be caught dead with a necktie on. How was McCarthy going to handle that one? After all, he was supposed to show Williams quickly who was the boss on the Red Sox, and here was a handy issue—the sports shirt.

McCARTHY solved that impasse neatly, however. When Williams reported to the Red Sox training camp at Sarasota early this month, he was warmly greeted by McCarthy. They smiled at each other, apparently felt good about the whole idea of being on the same club. McCarthy was getting off to a nice start in his relations with Williams, and no wonder. McCarthy was wearing a sports shirt for the first time in his life.

Williams, after reading and being told about McCarthy's insistence on propriety, is now at ease with the former Yankee manager. The other day he made something of a notable statement to the press when he told correspondents, "If I get into any jam with Joe McCarthy, it will be my fault. I think he's a great guy."

That was quite a confession for Williams who never admitted any wrong doing in all of his fussing with Joe Cronin. He used to get away with murder in his disrespect for Cronin's authority on the Red Sox, but he drew only one fine of record. Despite Cronin's knowledge he would be backed by Owner Tom Yawkey, he never cracked down hard on Williams.

IF TROUBLE does come between Williams and McCarthy, it is easily agreed that it won't be McCarthy's fault. Williams' good intentions are doubtless in good faith. He wants to be a nice guy, but sometimes he's thoughtless as, for instance, the day when I watched him autographing scorecards for every kid within reach.

It happened at Fenway Park, and the kids were clustered in the front boxes near the Red Sox dugout, pleading with the Boston players to sign their scorecards. There was a rule against the autographing before the game, and the Red Sox players gruffly turned the kids down, all except Williams, that is. He was a nice guy. He motioned the kids around the corner of the dugout and was signing 'em all when he was interrupted by another Red Sox player.

"Look at Big Shot," his teammate yelled at Williams. Whereupon, temperamental Ted blew his top, and in full hearing of the kids around him, sputtered a stream of unholy cusses at his needler, thereby undoing the nice thing he had started for the boys. They were open-mouthed, but not in hero worship.

Called off were games between the Chicago Cubs and the St. Louis Browns here, Cleveland and the Chicago White Sox at Hollywood, and the Cleveland "B" team and Hollywood at Whittier.

Crisler Says:

1 Michigan, Irish Game Insufficient

Atlantic City, N. J., March 24 (AP).—Fritz Crisler, University of Michigan athletic director, said today a playoff game would not have decided whether his eleven or Notre Dame was the No. 1 football team of 1947.

"One game won't decide which is the best team," Crisler said. Crisler, here as an instructor in the second annual Clark Shaughnessy football clinic, said weather, physical requirements and other factors prevented a football tournament to decide the country's best team.

Crisler, who recently resigned as head coach to devote more time to his post as athletic director, said, "I'm thoroughly sold on the two-team idea." He used one team for offense and another for defense at Michigan last year.

Gustafson Quits Army

West Point, N. Y., March 24 (AP).—Andy Gustafson has resigned as backfield coach at Army to become head football coach at the University of Miami (Fla.), the U. S. Military Academy announced today.

Gustafson, who played his football at the University of Pittsburgh, joined Head Coach Earl Blaik at Dartmouth in 1934 and moved with him to Army in 1941.

Hickey Only 'Talked'

New York, March 24 (AP).—Basketball Coach Eddie Hickey of the NIT champion St. Louis University Billikens said today that he had been in conference with the University of Minnesota athletic officials, but that "no commitments were made."

"During the conversation with Minnesota Athletic Director Frank McCormick, it was mentioned to me that there was a vacancy in the basketball coaching staff at Minnesota, and that it possibly would be an opportunity for advancement in the working field," Hickey said.

Cards Beat Out Yanks in 10th, 8 to 7

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 24 (AP).—The St. Louis Cardinals broke up a free-hitting contest in the tenth inning today to whip the New York Yankees, 8 to 7.

Charley Keller made a surprise pinch-hit appearance for the Yanks in the top of the tenth and hit the first pitch for a single. The blow started the bombers on a three-run rally that tied the contest and setn it into extra innings.

Johnny Lindell smashed two home runs, one of them during the ninth inning rally, and Bill Johnson also hit for the circuit for the Yanks. Del Wilber homered for the Cardinals.

The winning run came when Cuddles Marshall walked Joe Garagiola and Glenn Nelson and Stan Musical followed with singles.

Kirsch Confident

Marshall Asked to Permit Schmeling to Return to U. S.

State Department officials said yesterday no action had been taken on a direct appeal to Secretary of State George C. Marshall to allow former heavyweight champion Max Schmeling to come to this country from Germany for a comeback in the ring.

Fred Kirsch, Washington promoter who would sponsor bouts for Schmeling this summer made the appeal by letter last Monday. State Department officials said Schmeling has not applied in Germany for a visitor's visa.

Kirsch expressed confidence that Schmeling would be allowed into the United States in plenty of time for a series of outdoor fights this summer. But passport officials at the State Department didn't seem to share his sentiments.

They said visas normally are issued to German wives of GI's and Germans who have close relatives in this country. Otherwise, special Army approval would be required. And they said Schmeling has not even applied for a visa in Germany.

Miller Makes Inquiry

Col. Heinie Miller, chairman of the District of Columbia boxing commission and executive secretary of the National Boxing Association, said he had inquired at the State Department to find out if Schmeling really was returning to the United States.

Miller was dubious about the 42-year-old German's ability to stage a ring comeback.

"We'd consider Schmeling on a straight pugilistic basis," he said. "He'd be examined to see if he should fight. He's an old man for boxing."

"In Good Shape"

Kirsch said he had been in communication with Schmeling by telephone, cable and mail since last December, working out plans for the comeback.

Schmeling, he said, assured him that he is "in good shape, fighting right along, and hasn't slowed down" in spite of his 42 years.

The promoter said he has received many offers to sign Schmeling for fights in various cities but he declined to say what cities.

Caps Just Can't Win (Period)

Any theory which holds that a coin will fall heads as many times as it will tails is strictly the bunk as far as the Washington Caps are concerned.

Back from Chicago where Tuesday they suffered a 74-70 defeat by the Stags which left them only a bare chance to make the championship playoff series, the Caps yesterday learned they had lost the flip of a coin again.

Luck's All Bad

This third straight reverse dealt with the site of a possible Baltimore-Washington playoff game. If that game is necessary—Chicago must whip the Bullets Thursday to bring it about—it will be played in Baltimore Saturday. The winner wins third place in the Western Division and plays Boston in Boston Sunday afternoon in the first round of the title series.

The site was determined by a flip of the coin in the offices of League President Maurice Podoloff in New York yesterday.

The Caps have had absolutely no luck with this coin-flipping business. Baltimore outflipped 'em and won the preliminary-playoff bye. Chicago then called the coin correctly to decide where the Washington-Chicago game would be played. And yesterday's flip made it three straight—losses—in the coin-flipping arrangement for the Caps.

Max Zaslofsky, who got 24 points against the Caps Tuesday, is the BAA's new scoring champ. He bucketed 1007 points in 48 games

Spring View of Redskin Office Proves A Pro Grid Team's Work Is Never Done

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

YOU'D THINK WITH 136 days until opening game, and the eyes of the sporting world on almost everything but football, the Washington Redskin office these days would resemble a Christmas tinsel counter in July.

It doesn't, even with Chief Pepper-Upper George Marshall in California.

It's a very busy place, indeed, considering its size. You watch the off-season process of keeping a team in the National Football League and you decide to make your first million selling adding machines.

Right now General Manager Dick McCann and the clerical part of his team are up to their reels in movie films, assembling an action short of Redskin game highlights in color. It will be released to local movie houses this fall, no doubt launching the annual frenzy over all things Redskin.

(Don't lik for shots of the 73-0 Bears game of 1940. That came before the 'Skins used colored film for game movies. Honest!)

Ticket sales go on all the time, but because of the season ticket system most of the work is the book variety under Business Manager John Thompson and his staff. Their troubles range all the way down to the back ailment of one fan, who insisted it was on a doctor's orders that he applied for a switch from the field stands to "anywhere I can have a back on my seat."

Head Coach Turk Edwards and his aides stew over new plays, try to improve old ones. Players must be contacted and signed.

There are hotel and railroad reservations for the '48 season to be made, checked and rechecked, training table menus to be compiled, and work on such varied propositions as halftime shows, baggage transfer, purchase of new equipment and overhauling of the old, programs, gathering of material for a roster and manual, etc.

A pretty model shows up and wants a part in any halftime show . . . the bears from a recent Sportsman's Show are offered as entertainment . . . Artist Bill Janoff wants an okay on sketches of program covers . . . Owner Marshall, from his Beverly Hills swimming pool, is on the phone with new information on the Occidental College training camp the team will use again this year. . . .

Despite the fuss and fury, the attention to minute detail, things can go wrong—and will. Like the railroad air conditioning system that went in reverse on last year's westward journey, hot steam filling the train near Fort Madison, Iowa, or the three pieces of luggage that were lost (two of them McCann's), or the the train that was necessarily held up 20 minutes in Boston while 33 players waited for one newspaperman to find the station.

The Redskin office is busy in the off-season, all right.

Incidentally, Head Coach Edwards yesterday lost the domino championship to Backfield Coach Wilbur Moore.

Mud Postpones School Track Meets

The first two outdoor interhigh track and field meets, slated yesterday, were postponed until today because of muddy tracks.

In today's openers, Eastern is host to McKinley Tech at 3:15 p. m., and Roosevelt entertains Calvin Colidge at 3:45 p. m. Results of these two meets will count in the preliminary interhigh track standings, but will not count in the big Interhigh Championship Meet which takes place May 20-21 at Central High Stadium.

15 Hitherto Unrecorded Preakness Races Dug Up

Nats Get Lift as Masterson Is Nearly Ready to Take Turn

Orlando, Fla., March 24.—At a time when the raggedness of the Washington pitching is a worry to Manager Joe Kuhel, he got a lift today from a pre-game workout by Walter Masterson.

Masterson threw the ball hard for the first time since he came to Florida nearly four weeks ago. Coach Rick Ferrell, who warmed him up, declared, "Masterson is almost ready to take his turn."

The club has played 10 exhibition games thus far, but Masterson has not ben on the firing line in any of them. He complained of a soreness in his shoulder after only two days in camp, and has been carefully eliminated from the pitching schedule since.

Strangely enough, Masterson did not incur the lameness while pitching, he says. "I hadn't even thrown a ball when my shoulder began to stiffen," he said. "I thought it was just a case of a cold in the muscles, but later it had me worried.

The ache shifted suddenly from the rear of his shoulder to the front a week ago, related Masterson. "It felt better for the first time yesterday. I'm ready to go, but Kuhel has told me to take a few more days warm-up."

N. Y. Track Scene From 1894-1908

Baltimore, March 24 (AP).—Matt Winn and his other Kentucky Colonels aren't going to like this.

The Maryland Jockey Club has dug up 15 hitherto unrecorded runnings of the Preakness—in New York—which makes 71 Preakness races, only two less than the derby.

But in the long argument over tradition and glory in the two rich stakes for 3-year-old thoroughbreds, that about makes things even. The Preakness is 2 years older.

The Derby people have always pointed proudly to its unbroken string of renewals since 1875. The Preakness records, starting in 1873, have shown an embarrassing 19-year gap between 1889 and 1909.

Run At Gravesend

Now the Maryland Jockey Club is coming up with musty files to claim the Preakness Stakes was run from 1894-1908 at Gravesend Track in Brooklyn.

How or why the Preakness moved to the Brooklyn Jockey Club's track still is a mystery, the Marylanders admit. But it was called the Preakness in newspaper stories and charts and the Pimlico operators have them ready to back their claim.

So instead of the 58th running, the upcoming renewal on May 15 will be billed as the 72d. And like the old dispute of Kentucky vs. Maryland mint juleps, the Preakness backers will add volume to their cry that the Derby is a prep for the Pimlico feature by weeding out the unfit.

(The Derby this year comes two weeks before the Preakness. In the past, only a week separated them).

And just to keep the Kentucky Colonels uneasy, the Maryland Jockey Club points out there still are four years, 1890-93, in which the Preakness is unaccounted for. If the records or someone can produce proof of them, the Preakness then will not only be older, but will have been run more often, than the Derby.

Terp, Middie Nines Open

The collegiate baseball season hereabouts gets underway today with the University of Maryland playing host to Syracuse and Navy taking on Springfield College at Annapolis.

Navy will play Syracuse Friday while Maryland is entertaining Princeton. Maryland journeys to Richmond Saturday and Navy will play St. John's of Brooklyn in its third straight home game.

Syracuse will move crosstown Saturday to Georgetown University where the Hoyas open their home season.

Coach Burt Shipley of the Maryland Terps has taken a book from football and basketball and plans to use two complete teams per game. One will play the first five innings and the second will finish out each game. The Terps face a 31-game schedule and he wants to conserve as much energy as possible.

Bucky Loomis, a former Quantico Marine star, is the likely Maryland starting pitcher for the Syracuse opener. Joe Fitzpatrick, a Philadelphian who played for Maryland last season, has been tabbed as the "finishing team" pitcher.

Maryland's nine is still an unknown quantity. Most of last year's players are gone. Its leading 1947 pitcher, Boots Panella, tore a knee cartilage while roller skating and is out of uniform.

Navy, on the other hand, has veterans for every position except behind the plate, where Johnny Morrissey will call signals in place of Jim Duquette, who graduated.

AAU Finals Tonight, 16 Titles at Stake

Thirty-two amateur boxers who travelled the bumpy preliminary road reach their final destination in the District AAU tournament windup 8:30 tonight at Turner's.

Sixteen titles will be decided and the eight winners in the senior class quality for the trip to Boston for the National AAU tourney April 5, 6 and 7. In addition they receive gold championship belts, boxing robes and trunks.

Prizes also will be awarded novice winners and runnersup in both senior and novice divisions. Most coveted is the watch given by the District Boxing Commission to the outstanding senior winner who will be judged on ability and sportsmanship.

Lawrence in Action

Lone 1947 champ on the action-packed card is Claude Lawrence, of Alexandria's St. Mary's Boys Club. Lawrence, fighting for the 135-pound crown against Jim Hawkins, 12th St. YMCA, was the 126-pound senior winner last year. Both Lawrence and Hawkins scored technical knockouts in their semi-final appearances and their meeting hardly figures to go the distance.

A similar situation prevails in the 147-pound novice class. Orlandus Swinson, Police Boys' Club No. 2, put away Eddie Thompson, Olympic, in 1:42 of the second round and meets Dick Marx, Navy yeoman, who kayoed Bob Hickerson, Andrews Field, in just 42 seconds.

In the 126-pound senior class popular Pat Thomas, Apollo, faces Roy Bush, Navy Receiving Station. Thomas had to upset two former novice champions in his battle to the top. Last week, he handed classy Dick Rawlett his first setback in 23 bouts. Rawlett, last year's novice winner, also was named outstanding boy in the tourney.

McIlwain Holds Interest

Interest is centered in the senior heavyweight bout. Mammoth Harold McIlwain, 12th St. YMCA, moved into the championship round, without throwing a punch. The fact that he has received forfeits is understandable when you take a look at his measurements. At only 18, McIlwain is 6-foot-5 and weighs 240 pounds.

McIlwain's ring career is exactly 1 minute 42 seconds long. That's the time it took him to win a technical knockout in the Golden Gloves novice title bout in his first fight.

Tourney followers seem to feel that Apollo's Eddie Grant will stand up to McIlwain. Grant, who will be conceding more than 40 pounds, won a decision over Howard's Steve McCuil in the semi-finals.

Newcomers Star at Navy

Annapolis, Md., March 24 (AP).—Talking over Navy football players showing promise in spring training, Coach George Sauer rattled off some unfamiliar names today.

Some of them were so new, in fact, they don't appear on Navy game programs of last fall. They were on the squad, but had not hit anything like a varsity stride.

Unlike its line, the Middie backfield will be skipped over lightly by graduation this spring. Still Sauer allowed on a radio talk the other day that a couple of newcomers had caught his eye.

One is Jim Kennedy, virtually unknown until the Army game when Fullback Bill Hawkins was forced out early with a leg injury. The 180-pound back from Springfield, Ill., saw quite a bit of relief service then.

Another newcomer is Jim Green, who once captained his Reading, Pa., high school eleven. He crept into the varsity reserve fold late in the 1947 campaign.

Mangrum Favored Today

Charlotte, N. C., March 24 (AP).—The $10,000 Charlotte Open, a golf tournament which has produced two playoffs in its four previous stagings, opens a four-day stand tomorrow.

Final open even of the winter season, it will be contested over the 72-hole route of the 6400-yard, par 72 Myers Park Country Club course.

Installed in the role of favorite is Chicagoan Lloyd Mangrum, fresh from a victory in the Greensboro Open that pushed his year's earnings to $10,838.33, top figures among the pros.

However, he must beat off such competition as last year's winner, Cary Middlecoff, Memphis, Tenn., Tenn., dentist, and Clayton Heafner, the Charlotte husky who knows the course as well as he knows the back of his hand.

When Middlecoff beat George Schoux of Mamaroneck, N. Y., in a playoff last year he equalled the competitive record of 32-32 set in the 1946 tournament by Mangrum.

Vets Go to Bat For Graziano

and Kehoe, the letter was signed by John J. Brennan of Washington, E. J. Kramer of Silver Spring, Md.; Gordon Brown of Arlington, Va.; W. L. Snyder of Henricks, W. Va.; John Spada, Pittsburgh; Edgar Thomas, Creswell, N. C.; Jack Topol, Washington, and D. J. Dinardi, New York City, and Robert W. Franklin, Bladen, Ohio.

The letter to The Washington Post, written by Thomas J. Kehoe and signed by 11 other veterans, said ". . . the boys (in the hospital) feel that something should be done in view of his (Graziano's) willingness to contribute his entire purse for his fight here in Washington for charity."

(Editor's note: Graziano meets Sonny Horne here April 5 and has agreed to contribute his purse, 25 per cent of the net proceeds, to charity.)

The letter also included discharge review forms to be filled out and submitted to the Adjutant General's Office.

The author of the letter, Kehoe, asked that the forms be forwarded to Graziano and "when they are returned I will gladly represent him before the review board."

Action of the Mount Alto veterans was the first outright favorable expression Graziano has received since the Army revealed he had been dishonorably discharged.

One Washington veterans' organization has flatly opposed his appearance here while another, the American Legion, said "there was no reason why the Legion should object to Graziano's appearance here, or any other place, since the man has paid his debt to society."

In view of his dishonorable discharge, however, Graziano is not eligible for membership in the Legion, according to Owen C. Holleran, D. C. Department Commander.

Finn Premier In Moscow for Treaty Talks

Moscow, March 24 (U.P.).—Finnish Premier Mauno Pekkala arrived by plane today and told the Russian people over Radio Moscow that he was happy to be here to conclude the mutual aid treaty proposed by Premier Josef Stalin.

He was greeted by Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov and an honor guard.

Reading a prepared statement in Russian, he said over Radio Moscow:

"I regret I could not arrive here with the others, but I am very satisfied that I was able to come now. I am very happy to arrive in the capital of the Soviet Union and especially because we now have such an important occasion as the conclusion of treaties between our two countries for friendship, cooperation and mutual aid.

"On the occasion of the 30th anniversary of the Soviet Union, we became acquainted with the enormous construction of this big country. The successes obtained are proof of the greatness of the Soviet Union and the leadership of Stalin."

Molotov's first remarks to Pekkala were about his health. The Finnish premier did not arrive Monday because he had an inflammation of the ear.

Extra Care Is Urged In Easter Driving

So that death will keep a holiday over Easter while 6000 school boys and girls of the AAA Safety Patrols are vacationing—motorists are urged to drive carefully.

From George Ray Hammond, education and safety director for AAA here, comes the warning that some 92,000 school-free youths are romping targets today for the careless driver.

Pope Pius Sends Apostolic Blessing To Catholic U.

The rector, faculty members and students of the Catholic University of America have received the Apostolic blessing of Pope Pius XII in acknowledgment of the university's celebration of the anniversary of the Pope's coronation.

A radiogram from the Pope, signed by Rt. Rev. Msgr. Diovanni B. Montini, his undersecretary of state, has noted the Solemn High Mass sung in the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception at the university on March 12.

The message declared the Pope was "deeply gratified" to learn of the celebration.

Small Boy 'Critical' After Scalding Mishap

Robert Edwin Johnston, 23-month-old son of Joel H. Johnston, 517 Taylor st. nw., suffered first, second and possible third degree burns to his face, chest and arms at 5:30 p. m. yesterday when he upset a pot of boiling cabbage. He was admitted to Children's Hospital, where authorities last night said his condition was critical.

The Federal Diary

by Jerry Kluttz

Efficiency Rating Day to Bring Both Ups and Downs

EFFICIENCY RATINGS will be given to most Federal workers here as of next Wednesday. Many employes will be demoted and fired because of the poor marks they'll get on their annual "report cards." Many more, of course, will receive good or better ratings and they'll be promoted.

No matter how many times the rating system is explained, there are always a few straw bosses who insist on using it to satisfy personal whims. For example:

The Army supervisor who refuses to give an employe under him an "excellent" rating. He reasons that no human being can be perfect—his own definition of excellent. But he gladly accepts an excellent rating for himself;

The VA supervisor who has given an employe a poor rating because "he doesn't show interest in his work by working overtime voluntarily." It just happens that the ambitious employe is preparing himself for better things by attending evening school at George Washington and he has only a few minutes between work and his first class. But he does put in all the time that's required on his job.

And the straw bosses in just about every agency who use the ratings to promote their favorites and to "get" the employes who don't bow and scrape to them. This, admittedly, is the big weakness of the system.

The Advisory Committee to the Senate Civil Service Committee will recommend improvements in the system in a report to be made public within a few days. It has studied the rating problem for a year. The House Civil Service Committee is making a similar study.

This is the first year that annual ratings won't be given to all employes here. A recent Civil Service ruling gives agencies the option to rate employes either on March 31 or the anniversary date of their entrance on duty. Several agencies such as Civil Service, State, and Veterans, now use anniversary dates.

Meantime, Civil Service is making plans to greatly enlarge its procedure to handle efficiency rating appeals. An employe in the departmental service here has the right of appeal. No boards of review have been established outside of this city.

But Civil Service's new budget carries funds to extend the appeals system to field employes after July 1. It's estimated that at least 700 boards must be set up outside of this city. Civil Service will appoint a presiding officer in each of its regional offices.

NOTES: Federal agencies will be liberal in granting annual leave to employes to attend Good Friday services tomorrow. But definitely, any time off must be charged to annual leave . . . A deficiency bill that will carry funds for State's Voice of America will be reported out of the House Appropriations Committee in a few days. It's about time . . . Representative Sadlak (R., Conn.) has in a bill which would require Civil Service to continue to certify an eligible veteran until he was given a job. In other words, the veteran couldn't be passed over and forgotten.

COMMERCE: South Trimble, jr., has been appointed chairman of Commerce's employe loyalty board. He replaces Adrian S. Fisher, who recently resigned as solicitor to become general counsel of Atomic Energy. Trimble is chairman of the advisory board of Inland Waterways Corp. Hereafter, the Commerce solicitor—he's now Ike Stokes—will assist and advise the board in preparing cases.

GAO: Tom Flynn is the chairman of the loyalty board at General Accounting. He's the GAO personnel officer. Other members are J. F. Feeney, E. L. Fisher, F. R. Ballinger, J. D. Denit, and S. B. Ives.

PAY STUDY: It begins to look more and more as if the 800,000 Federal workers whose salaries are fixed by the Classification Act will get the short end of any pay raise to be voted by Congress. A group of House members yesterday informally decided to support a bill that would give the 450,000 postal employes a higher average increase than Classification Act people. The Senate already is working in that direction.

A good case for a substantial pay raise can be made for postal employes. No one denies that. But a slightly better case can be made for the annual employe. Federal salaries and jobs are hard to compare. Perhaps the best comparison can be made of the three types of Federal workers who were paid around $2000—the average salary—in 1939 and what has happened to them up to now.

First, let's take the CAF-5 who was paid a base of $2000 in '39. His base is now $2645, an increase of 32.2 per cent. The $2100 postal clerk and carrier of 1939 now is paid a base of $2900, an increase of $800, or 38.1 per cent. The machinist in the New York Navy Yard was paid a base of $2172 in '39. His base is now $3258, an increase of $1086, or 50.4 per cent. No promotions were considered in the survey.

During the '39 to '48 period, the cost of living has shot up 69.5 per cent. The CAF-5 whose salary is fixed by the Classification Act is lagging behind both the postal worker and the machinist in '39 dollars and purchasing power. By all rights, he and others in the CAF grades should be given equal consideration by the Congress in granting pay raises.

Apartment Plan Irks Burleith Home Owners

More Than 60 Storm District Building To Oppose Rezoning Of 39th Street Site

More than 60 Burleith citizens swarmed into the District Building board room yesterday to protest personally against proposed rezoning to permit a three-story apartment house at 1929 39th st. nw.

Mr. and Mrs. Kirk C. Miller, owners of the site, asked the Board of Zoning Adjustment to permit construction of the 27-unit apartment building in an area restricted to single family dwellings.

Their attorney, Robert E. Lynch, told the zoning board the property slopes so abruptly that a retaining wall would be necessary if structures are built. Such a wall, he said, would make three additional row houses too expensive to construct. The cost can be borne only by a multiple unit building, he declared.

Cites Parking, Fire Hazard

But Attorney James A. McDonnell, representing owners of 200 properties in the area, said the proposed apartment building would bring debris to the area, increase the fire hazard and cause a "terrific parking problem."

"We want what we have—a community of houses," he declared. He introduced a resolution signed by 68 members of the Burleith Citizens Association and a petition signed by approximately 150 property owners, all of whom opposed.

The Millers' contention, however, was backed by Col. J. W. Oehmann, former District director of Building Inspection, who said a proper retaining wall would cost about $18,000.

In another case, area residents opposed a request by Miss Marjorie Webster, president of Marjorie Webster Junior College, to either extend wartime permission for a temporary rooming house for girl students at 1623 Jonquil st. nw., or allow its use as a college dormitory.

Complain About Swains

The residents, led by Dr. and Mrs. David M. Nolan of 1619 Jonquil st. said youthful swains, who whizz up the street in jeeps and jalopies to visit the girls, provide a traffic hazard for children.

Another controversy arose when neighboring property owners protested against a proposal by Henry J. Robb and Philip J. Ganzert to raze vacant mansions at 1707-09-11 Massachusetts ave. nw. and set up a temporary parking lot.

Leading the opposition were Attorney William E. Leahy and Fleming Newbold, president of The Evening Star Newspaper Co., who said a parking lot would "desecrate" the avenue.

Georgetown residents, led by Attorney Eugene O'Dunne, opposed a petition by Mrs. John Groves to use the basement of a house at 1531 31st st. nw. for a ceramics school.

Siegel, Election Clerk Of Baltimore, Indicted

Baltimore, March 24 (AP).—Perry Siegel, suspended clerk for the Board of Election Supervisors of Baltimore, was indicted on conspiracy, false pretense and bribery charges today.

The bribery count charged he "demanded and received from Russell Long a bribe in the sum of $200 to influence him in the performance of his official duties and for neglecting and failing to perform the same." The conspiracy charge alleged an attempt to violate State registration laws.

Day Care For a Year Predicted

Representative A. L. Miller (R., Nebr.) yesterday predicted a move will be made to extend District child day-care centers for one year, rather than making them a permanent program.

Miller made the prediction after his House District Subcommittee heard District officials differ with some members of Congress on the need for the day-care center program.

District Commissioner Guy Mason questioned the program on the ground of District revenue needs. Welfare officials backed this stand.

Representatives Arthur G. Klein (D., N. Y.) and Charles B. Deane (D., N. C) appealed strongly for making the centers a permanent city program Klein is sponsoring a bill to do that. Deane indorsed it.

Representative Howard W. Smith (D., Va.) said he believed the Commissioners would be sympathetic to the centers if more revenue could be found. He called for support of a 2-per-cent District sales tax. Klein said he opposes such a tax, but thought an appeal could be made to Congress for other ways to increase District revenue.

Representative James C. Auchincloss (R., N. J.) said he did not believe Congress now would favor another increase in the IFedera payment to the District. The annual payment went up last year from eight to 12 million dollars.

Mason declared the Commissioners opposed the absorption of the war-time centers into the District's regular activities and still do, on the ground or revenue troubles.

Church Asks Pastor's License Be Rescinded

Cumberland, Md., March 24 (AP). Because of his activities with the Progressive Citizens of America, the official board of nearby Centenary Methodist Church, today asked that the preaching license of the Rev. Richard H. Bready be rescinded.

Ernest C. Killingsworth, board secretary, said the church has suffered because of the pastor's connection with PCA. He claimed the membership and collections have dropped off.

The Rev. Mr. Bready is vice chairman of the Allegany County chapter of the PCA and is chairman of the Western Maryland Cooperative Committee. At the recent organization meeting of the Progressive party in Baltimore, he gave the invocation.

Firemen Save Hagerstown Business Area

General Alarm Blaze Damages Building And Four Stores

Hagerstown, Md., March 24 (Spl.).—All available fire equipment in the city was called out today to subdue a general alarm fire which broke out in a downtown store and warehouse building and, for a time, threatened to spread through the remainder of the business district.

The building, housing four stores, was damaged to the extent of at least $25,000, according to the owner, Garland Groh. There was no immediate estimate available for damage done to stocks in the four stores pending an inventory, but firemen said it would boost the total loss by thousands of dollars.

A fireman and two spectators, both women, were overcome by smoke during the blaze, and an elderly woman was evacuated from an adjoining building when police feared she might become trapped.

A general alarm was sounded at about 12:30 p. m., bringing all fire companies to the scene. By 2 p. m., the blaze was under control, but it was another hour before the flames were extinguished.

Leroy Martz, a fireman, and Mrs. Betty Smith and Mrs. T. R. Brooks, both spectators, were treated at Washington County Hospital after being overcome by smoke. All were released after treatment.

Mrs. Martha Norris, 84, was evacuated from an apartment in a building south of the burning structure by Police Chief Max Rickard and a detective when it appeared the flames might spread he had to break down the door to get in the apartment, and the woman had to be carried down the stairs.

Firemen said the fire apparently started in a gift shop in the basement of the building, then spread quickly to a wallpaper firm on the south and an interior decorating shop on the north. Beyond the decorating shop, in the same building but protected by a heavy fire wall, was the Bierns furniture store.

The furniture store was spared all but smoke and water damage, but the gift shop and other two stores were severely damaged.

Good Friday Rites to Draw Thousands

By Robert Tate Allan
Post Reporter

Thousands of the devout are expected at tomorrow's Good Friday rites here, commemorating Christ's trial and crucifixion.

Meanwhile, Maunday Thursday services today will mark Jesus' Last Supper with His Disciples in the Upper Room at Jerusalem.

The committee for the Three Hours Observance of Good Friday announced last night that windows of several buildings will be lighted to form crosses.

They will include the American Federation of Labor, the Washington Gas Light Co., Potomac Electric Power Co., the Central YMCA, and the Knights of Columbus Building, 16th and R sts. nw. These crosses will be lit from tonight until early Good Friday morning.

Employes of downtown business offices, government departments and other places are expected to be among the worshipers at Good Friday services. Employers have assured the Committee for the Three Hours' Observance of their cooperation in granting time off. The Senate and House will recess.

While most of the Good Friday rites will be from noon to 3 p. m., there will be services at other hours. There will be brief services at noon at the Pentagon.

Officials of the Committee for the Three Hours' Observance are Dr. Seth R. Brooks, pastor of the Universalist National Memorial Church, chairman; and the following co-chairman.

Professor to Give Talk

At the Washington Cathedral tomorrow at noon the Rev. A. T. Mollegen, professor of Christian Ethics at Virginia Theological Seminary, Alexandria, will give an introductory tolk on "Good Friday." Dean John Wallace Suter will assist Mr. Mollegen in the three-hour rites.

Archbishop Patrick A. O'Boyle will celebrate a mass and bless the Holy Oils today at 8 a. m. at St. Matthew's Cathedral. There will be a mass of the pre-sanctified there tomorrow at 8 a. m., and a Three Hours' Agony service beginning tomorrow at noon.

Prince Georges Faces 40-Cent Tax Rate Hike

Exact Amount Must Await Establishment Of Assessable Base

Increase of 40 cents in the Prince Georges County, Md., tax rate appears probable, William A. Carson, president of the Board of County Commissioners, said yesterday.

Carson said the board is attempting to keep the increase as low as possible but that it appears it will range between 20 cents and 45 cents—with the latter figure being nearer correct.

The commissioners have been studying and paring estimates from various departments for the past several weeks, Carson said, but the higher cost of supplies makes an increase imperative.

Wednesday Is Deadline

The county budget must be completed and signed by next Wednesday. The present county tax rate is $1.95 per $100 valuation.

Exact amount of the tax increase cannot be established until the county assessable base is completed. It is expected the new base will be about 160 million dollars and the total levy for the county approximately $3,500,000, Carson said. Chief budget item increased was for schools and their operation, plus an additional $287,307 more than last year for interest and redemption of bonds. Approximately $4,750,000 in bonds were sold the past year for schools, hospital and county building bonds.

Engineer's Budget Cut

The commissioners met yesterday with Arthur W. Tayman, county engineer, and pared his budget estimates. The board agreed to allow $50,390 for administrative functions and to levy 10 cents for construction of secondary roads and an additional 10 cents for road maintenance. The commissioners said they would provide an additional $75,000 for new road equipment asked by Tayman if additional funds become available from State refunds or other resources.

The budget allowance for Tayman's office is approximately half of what he requested and the cut will necessitate a reduction in the staff and services of his office, he said.

The commissioners declined to increase the budget allowance for the county health department.

Frenzy Grips D. C. Rapist Given Chair

By Howard L. Dutkin
Post Reporter

A 32-year-old rapist, in a frenzy of fear, as death sentence was pronounced, struggled desperately with four United States Deputy Marshals yesterday as he tried to flee the District Court courtroom of Associate Justice Richmond B. Keech.

Hall

The rapist, John Hall, of 1723 7th st. nw., screamed and battled the peace officers for 5 minutes. Suddenly he grew rigid as if in a fit and was dragged bodily from the room for immediate transportation to District Jail. He is scheduled for electrocution June 25.

Hall had been convicted about 10 weeks ago of the rape of an 8-year-old girl in 1946. The jury recommended death and yesterday Keech had no alternative but to pronounce the sentence.

Twists and Moans

As the realization grew that there was no escape from his fate, the defendant began twisting and moaning in his chair.

At the words ". . . an electric current shall be caused to pass through your body . . ." Hall leaped to his feet shouting "No! No! The Doctor says no!" Keech dispassionately finished the sentencing, his steady voice boring through Hall's wailing.

As marshals closed in, Hall jerking his head wildly like a trapped animal, seized a chair and attemptd to fight his way clear. It was futile.

Already Serving Time

The death sentence had been demanded by Assistant United States Attorney Edward Molenof. Hall was already serving a 10-30 year sentence in a similar case, involving a small girl in 1947 when the 1946 case against him was brought to light. It was the first time in 11 years the death penalty had been imposed for such an offense here.

The crime for which Hall must pay the supreme penalty occurred in a wooded section near the 600 block of Kenilworth tr. ne., about half mile from the National Arboretum, where a 9-year-old girl was viciously attacked several days ago.

Evidence against Theodore Martin Holmes, 20, in the latter case, will be presented to the grand jury today.

Hall, who had served time in the National Training School as a boy, had a record of seven convictions dating back to 1934. They involved one rape offense and a fornication charge. He paid a $25 fine for the latter offense.

In response to an insanity plea by Hall's attorney, Scotti Mayo, Molenof cited reports from psychiatrists that, although Hall was a moron, he was not insane. The defendant was still in fifth grade at the age of 18 it was brought out.

Hall now takes his place in District Jail death row with eight others awaiting execution. They are with execution dates: Shirley Harris, May 14; Baxter Griffin, April 30; Floyd Wilson, April 9; Joe Gray, May 14; Herbert Hall, May 14; Reginald Wheeler, April 9; Jesse Patton, April 9 and Lee Fook, May 7.

D. C. Approves Retirement; Talk Of Truscott as Successor Revived

The Commissioners announced yesterday that they had approved the retirement of Inspector Walter H. Thomas, 53, executive officer and No. 2 man in the Metropolitan Police Department.

The retirement of Thomas, who is suffering from diabetes mellitus and an intestinal disorder, will be effective April 1. He will receive a monthly pension of $287.28.

Confirmation of Thomas' retirement revived reports that Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett would probably recommend Inspector Floyd A. Truscott as his successor. As an assistant superintendent, Truscott has been ranked immediately below Thomas.

However, Major Barrett said there would be no announcement of Thomas' successor before Monday or Tuesday.

"We haven't made up our minds yet," he added.

Served Temporarily in Post

Last January, because of the prolonged illness of Thomas, Truscott was temporarily relieved of his duties as chief of detectives and appointed acting executive officer in the absence of Thomas.

At the same time, Acting Capt. Robert S. Bryant was named to substitute for Truscott as chief of detectives.

A native of Alma, Ga., Thomas is a former student of theology and a mathematics instructor in Alabama and Georgia elementary schools. He saw service in France with the AEF during World War I.

Before his appointment to the police force March 1, 1922, Thomas was for a brief time a special agent for the Commerce Department. He was made a sergeant in 1930, a lieutenant in 1935, a captain in 1941. He was commanding officer of the Second Precinct when he was elevated to inspector and executive officer in 1946.

Truscott Often Cited

Truscott, many times cited for his excellent detective work, is 48 and a native of Hilltop, Kans. He saw service in both wars and was appointed a policeman May 27, 1925.

He was made a precinct detective in 1930, a detective sergeant in 1931 and a lieutenant in 1935. In 1939 Truscott was elevated to a captaincy and made commander of the Tenth Precinct. He was absent on military leave from September, 1941, to January, 1946, serving with Navy intelligence.

After his return, Truscott was in turn acting executive officer and commanding officer of the Second and then the Thirteenth Precinct before being named an assistant superintendent and chief of detectives in June, 1947, an advancement that also prmooted him to inspector.

As a detective, Truscott did outstanding work in the solution of many homicides, among them the Milsie Henry gang murder in 1932 and the mistaken identity slaying of Allen Wilson, a newspaper route agent, in 1934. He also had a hand in rounding up the notorious Tri-State Gang in the early 1930s.

Frightened Doe 'Goes Shopping' In W. Va. Town

Logan, W. Va., March 24 (AP).—A half-grown doe dripping water from a swim in the Guyan River, invaded downtown Logan this morning, and gave Loganites a deal of excitement.

While the townsmen scattered, the seemingly berserk animal crashed against a glass door of the Logan Banner, galloped across the street head-on into a bakery, and then picking itself up, ran further downstreet and attempted to break into a hardware store.

Before bystanders could gather their wits, the doe crossed railroad tracks and was last seen heading up a mountain north of here.

Chance Court Visit Extended 20 Days

A courtroom isn't the safest place to go when you're under the influence, as Millard S. Young, 48, a visitor here from Richmond, Va., learned yesterday.

Monday's chill rain may have prompted Young to imbibe a few warming potions. And what better place to escape the rain than a courtrom? So Young wandered into the courtroom of Municipal Judge John P. McMahon.

Deputy U. S. Marshal L. E. Wardell noticed that Young was swaying in his seat and muttering. He escorted Young to the courtroom cell block and notified First Precinct police, who booked the visitor on a drunk charge.

Yesterday Young was in court again, this time as a defendant before Judge Thomas D. Quinn.

"How long do you think it'll take to get that stuff out of you?" inquired the judge.

Young shrugged his shoulders.

"Well, I think 20 days will do it," said Judge Quinn.

Trailer Breaks Window

A jeep trailer with an urge to ramble broke loose from its parent car yesterday and completely demolished a plate glass window in a radio store at 6872 Lee H ighway, Arlington.

County police said the trailer became unhitched from a jeep driven by Charles H. Mills, 34, of RFD 1, Falls Church. Damage to the shop, run by Mrs. Lily B. Nichols, was estimated at $100.

Paulson Heads GOP Unit

Three thousand boiled and dyed eggs will be hidden for the hunters, 500 of them netting their finders cash prizes. The hunt is sponsored by the Kiwanis Club of Prince Georges County and the Sidney Lust Theaters.

Gasoline-Age Solomon

An Arlington man "who never takes the right of way from women drivers" was named the county's safety driver of the week, Safety Officer Frank Palmer said yesterday.

The honor went to John Walker Fenton, 67, of 3111 N. 20th st. According to Palmer, the winner has been driving for 35 years without an accident or traffic ticket. Fention will get free tickets to a local movie, a dozen roses, and a free safety checkup at an Arlington garage.

Heads D. C. Rotarians

Philip M. Talbott, vice president and general manager of Woodward & Lothrop department store, yesterday was elected president of the Washington Rotary Club.

Talbott

Talbott, retiring club vice president, a past president of the Arlington Rotary Club and a director of the Washington Loan and Trust Co., will assume office July 1. He lives at 3231 N. Albemarle st. Arlington.

Other officers elected yesterday were W. Spencer Brenizer, vice president, and Edwin L. Davis, Lanier P. McLachlen, William R. Winslow, and Dr. Hobart M. Corning, directors.

Whalen to Visit D. C.

Grover A. Whalen, president of the Mayor's Citizens Committee of New York City, will visit Washington Tuesday as guest of the Commissioners to study operation of the mass chest X-ray program here.

The Commissioners said Whalen will make the study to determine practicability of a similar tuberculosis survey in New York at some future date. Whalen will be honor guest at a Commissioners' luncheon at Carlton Hotel at 1 p. m. Tuesday.

BOYS RESCUED FROM QUAGMIRE—Their first Easter vacation "adventure" over, three St. Francis Xavier School students thank the three men who rescued them from a sink-hole yesterday. The boys, who were hunting turtle Eggs, are Philip Smith (left), of 3007 Erie st. se.; Edward Quill, 13 (second from right), of the same address, and Ned Huntt, 9 (right), of 2708 30th st. se. They sank in mud up to their waists in the 3400 block of 25th st. se., in an area being dug up for extension of Southern ave. Rescuers who pulled them out with the aid of a tree limb and a rope are Hal Dove (second from left), of 1716 A st. se.; Edward Morris (third from left), of 439 15th st. ne., and Louis Weaver, 1829 Corcoran st. nw.

G. W. Hospital Not Accepting Patients Yet

The new George Washington University Hospital probably won't begin accepting patients until next Monday, Medical Dean Walter A. Bloedorn said yesterday.

However, he and Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, university president, will go over the "plant" today to determine if it will be possible to admit patients sooner.

Expected to be among the first admitted to the 405-bed institution are persons now hospitalized in the old G. W. Hospital at 1335 H st. nw. "Probably all" of the 100 or so now there can be moved, Dr. Bloedorn said. Ambulances will be used.

Taken Over Tuesday

Admission of patients has been delayed briefly so that the institution can be put in "apple pie order." The hospital was officially turned over to university administration Tuesday.

More than 6000 persons have already toured the new building.

Visiting hours at the hospital will be from 3 to 4 and 7 to 8 p. m. Callers are required to obtain a visitor's permit at the information desk on the first floor. This must be presented at the nurse's station on the floor where the patient is located and returned to the information desk as the visitor leaves.

Rules For Visitors

Only two visitors will be permitted to call upon a sick person at one time and they will be asked to limit their visits to 10 minutes. Children less than 12 years old will not be permitted on the floors where patients are located.

Radios may be brought to rooms for use by patients provided the approval of hospital authorities and the attending physician is first secured.

The old hospital will be converted temporarily for use in cancer research by the Warwick Clinic. It will be affiliated with the George Washington Medical School.

Rev. Patrick Murphy, 93, Dies; Former Missionary to Indians

The Rev. Patrick Murphy, Irish-born missionary to the American Indians and a personal friend of Buffalo Bill Cody, died Tuesday at Fort Meade General Hospital. He was 93.

Mr. Murphy

Funeral services will be held at St. Thomas Episcopal Church, 18th and Church sts. nw., at 9 a. m., Saturday. St. Thomas is the temporary worship place of St. Paul's Church, with which the Rev. Mr. Murphy once served.

In accordance with his wishes, the body will be cremated and the ashes buried near his wife in Ireland.

The Rev. Mr. Murphy came to Washington about 30 years ago with the Epiphany Church and Chapel after long service with the Indians. He came to America in 1889.

He was one of the principal objectors when St. Paul's Church, then at 917 23d st. now., and his home in Square 54, 2217 I st. nw., were condemned to make way for the new George Washington University Hospital.

He was the father of 16 children; nine of whom survive. Among them are: Herbert Murphy, of Washington; Mrs. F. H. Kenworthy, of Purcellville, Va., and Mrs. George W. Rice, wife of Brigadier-General Rice, of Fort Meade.

3 Boys Will Rule City During Club Week April 5-11

The week of April 5-11 has been set aside as Boys Club of America Week by the District Commissioners, and arrangements are under way to chose three Boy Commissioners to rule over the city during the observance.

Open house will be held during the week at both Boys Club of Washington branches, 28th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw., and 17th st. and Massachusetts ave. se. The three youthful Commissioners will be chosen by contest. During the week, a little sisters beauty contest, a match box derby and a pie-eating contest will be held. "Mr. Muscles of 1948" wil lbe chosen, and the small fry will show their skill in a bubble-gum blowing contest.

Also scheduled are the national instrument contest for boys and girls, and the Junior Golden Gloves championships local finals.

To Meet Each Tuesday

The interim committee of the United Community Services met yesterday for the first time and set a weekly meeting date of each Tuesday to speed its work of organization. Mrs. Henry Gichner, active civic leader, was named vice chairman to aid William J. McManus, appointed chairman at the time the committee was named.

Koestler to Talk At Press Club

Arthur Koestler, European author of novels dealing with the intricacies of Communist psychology, will lecture on that subject at the National Press Club Auditorium on March 31.

Author of "Darkness at Noon" and "The Yogi and the Commissar," Koestler last week arrived in New York from London for a five-week lecture tour of this country under auspices of the International Rescue and Relief Committee, a constituent agency of American Overseas Aid.

Proceeds of his tour, the committee announced, will be used for relief and rehabilitation of European victims of communism and nazism.

Soldier Held in Theft

Police last night arrested Pvt. Davis E. Stokes, 23, of Fort Belvoir and charged him with robbing Noble Nindsey, 69, Staunton, Va., of $500.

Nindsey told police he had met the soldier Tuesday night at the Harris Hotel, 17 Massachusetts ave. nw., where both were staying. Nindsey said his money wad was gone Wednesday morning. Police said they recovered $401.15 from the soldier.

R. P. Shealey, Lawyer Here 40 Years, Dies

Robert Preston Shealey, 74, Washington lawyer for more than 40 years, and author of a standard work on government contract law, died early yesterday at his home, 11 East Melrose st., Chevy Chase, Md.

A native of Towson, Md., Mr. Shealey received his law degree from George Washington University. He was a member of the Maryland and District Bar Associations and was admitted to practice before the Supreme Court. During World War I, Mr. Shealey was a member of the Selective Service Board.

He had almost completed work on the fourth edition of his book, "The Law of Government Contracts." The book, originally printed in 1919, also had a War Supplement published in 1943.

Mr. Shealey was registered here as a lobbyist and Washington representative of the National Retail Credit Association. He was a Democrat and member of the Cosmos Club. His law offices were in the Colorado Building, 14th and G sts. nw.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Eleanor Delano Shealey, and a sister, Miss Adelaide Shealey of Los Angeles.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 10 a. m., at Gawler's Funeral chapel, 1756 Pennsylvania ave. nw. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

L. M. Gibson

Huntington, W. Va., March 24 (AP).—L. M. Gibson, 63, owner of the Hotel Prichard, Huntington's largest, died in a hospital today after a brief illness.

He had been associated with the hotel business for 40 years. Gibson was a native of Copper Creek, Russell County, Va.

He leaves a widow, Mrs. Janey Gilmer Gibson, formerly of Lebannon, Va., and a son, Richard L. Gibson, assistant manager of the Prichard, and president of the Huntington Hotel Association.

He is also survived by two brothers, W. K. and Vance Gibson, both of Roanoke, Va., and four sisters, Mrs. Clarence Gibson of Castlewood, Va., Mrs. Elbert Ray of Detroit, and Mrs. Jean Davis and Miss Bess Gibson, both of Richlands, Va.

The body will be taken to Lebannon, Va., for funeral services.

Court Disnutes SickPlea With 5-Day Sentence

Judge Thomas D. Quinn was more than slightly ruffled yesterday when Ann V. Gibbs, 35, of 225 H st. nw., failed to appear in Municipal Court to face trial on a vagrancy charge.

Her bondsman, Leonard Weinstein, said she was apparently sick at home. Get her in here by 4 p. m. or her $300 bond will be forfeited, Judge Quinn decreed.

Weinstein accompanied the woman into the courtroom about 30 minutes later. She appeared to be unsteady on her feet and said she was ill.

"Have you been drinking?" asked the judge.

"No," said the defendant, "and I haven't been taking narcotics either."

"I don't think you're sick—five days for contempt," said the court.

The five-day sentence will keep the defendant available until next Monday, the new date set by the judge for the trial.

R. F. & P. Asks Permit To Drop Two Trains

Richmond, Va., March 24 (AP).—The Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac Railroad Co. today asked the State Corporation Commission for authority to discontinue two scheduled passenger trains. The railroad gave as its reason 1947 losses amounting to $228,405.20.

It proposes to consolidate two Fredericksburg-Washington runs with a new train schedule running from Richmond to Washington via Fredericksburg. The trains are Nos. 31 and 32.

Under the proposed schedule train No. 10 would leave Richmond at 4:40 a. m., Fredericksburg at 6 a. m. and arrive in Washington at 8 a. m. daily. The return trip, via train No. 29, would start at Washington at 5:40 p. m., arriving at Fredericksburg at 7:30 p. m. and at Richmond, 9:05 p. m. The SCC has set a public hearing for April 8.

William T. Pratt

Fredericksburg, Va., March 24 (AP).—Graveside services will be conducted at City Cemetery here tomorrow for William Turner Pratt, 78, proprietor of the Virginia Sales and Service Corp., and a former Washington (D. C.) real estate man, who died at his home here yesterday.

Mr. Pratt, a native of Caroline County, at one time operated a store at Port Royal and was engaged in the real estate business in Washington for several years before coming to Fredericksburg in 1921 to open an automobile business.

Surviving are his wife; two sisters, Miss Margaret Pratt of Port Royal, and Mrs. James B. Funsten, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and a brother, Richard T. Pratt, near Port Royal.

Mrs. Blanche B. McCord

Mrs. Blanche B. McCord, died early yesterday in a room at the Dodge Hotel, 20 E st. nw., where she had lived since last December with her daughter, Miss Dorothy M. McCord.

According to police, Miss McCord said her mother collapsed while trying to get out of her bed, and was pronounced dead by a hotel physician a few minutes later. Mrs. McCord had complained of being ill the day before her death, her daughter said.

Mrs. McCord had been a long-time resident of Washington, and moved to the Dodge Hotel when her daughter, a clerk in the Civil Service Commission's Fourth Regional Office here, was transferred to Washington from North Carolina.

Antonio Marchi

Bologno, Italy, March 24 (U.P.).—Antonio Marchi, 105, who was Guglielmo Marconi's assistant and the only man present at the first successful wireless telegraph experiment 50 years ago, died yesterday at his home in Monticchio.

Residents of Monticchio, where Marchi lived with his wife, 90, believed he was the oldest man in Italy.

Jessie J. Renner

Frederick, Md., March 24 (Spl.). Funeral services will be held Sunday at 2 p. m. at the Church of the Brethren here for Jessie I. Renner, 59, pioneer auto dealer in this county, who died of a heart attack late yesterday at his New Midway home. Burial will be in the church cemetery.

A leader in the Pepublican Party in Frederick County, Mr. Renner served one term as a member of the Board of County Commissioners, and for several years was postmaster at New Midway. He had been in the automotive and garage business since 1906.

Unmarried, he is survived by three brothers, David C. Renner, of Rocky Ridge; Jason C. Renner, New Midway, and Samuel M. Renner, of Ladiesburg; a half-brother, Newton D. Renner, New Midway, and a sister, Mrs. Emma McClain, New Midway.

George Windsor

Funeral services for George Windsor, 30, of 508 Seward sq. se., who died Monday of injuries received in a traffic accident, will be held at 2 p. m. today at the James T. Ryan Funeral Home, 317 Pennsylvania ave. se. Burial will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Mr. Windsor died at Emergency Hospital after his truck struck a lamppost and overturned on 14th st. sw., north of Highway Bridge.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Theresa Windsor; a daughter, Joan Elizabeth Windsor; two sisters, Mrs. Lillian Jacobson and Mrs. Mae Osin; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Windsor, all of Washington, and two brothers, Earl and Rebie Windsor, both of Alexandria.

Emmert F. Stewart

Martinsburg, W. Va., March 24 (AP).—Emmert F. Stewart, 61, a veteran freight conductor on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, collapsed at work yesterday afternoon and died of a heart attack.

He was a native and life-long resident of Martinsburg and had worked for the B. & O. 20 years. Survivors include the widow and two sons.

Election Pay-off Penalty

Drew'll Eat His Hat—His Candy One, That Is; Paris Is Mecca Again

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

ANY MINUTE now Drew Pearson's going to eat his hat! But our energetic columnist will masticate no ordinary chapeau. Instead he'll sink his bicuspids into a tasty creation specially evolved for the occasion by the hatters who sponsor Drew's Sunday evening broadcast. The fascinating ceremony will take place before a large and undoubtedly appreciative audience, at the hatters' convention in Danbury.

Hat-eating is a pay-off penalty, not a Pearson gastronomical foible. Not long ago Mr. P. announced in print he'd eat his hat if Dewey didn't corral three votes in the New Hampshire primaries. Dewey didn't, missed by one.

Calling All OSSers

CLOAK-AND-DAGGER boys and girls are accepting in droves for the get-together party honoring Brig. Gen. Bill Donovan, boss of the lately defunct OSS. The committee is afraid, though, that some Office of Strategic Services alumna inadvertently have been omitted, wants it known that all OSSers in Washington's Metropolitan area are welcome, late afternoon, March 25 at Hotel Roosevelt. There's no charge, drinks are Dutch treat. And General Donovan's "few words" will be succinct as promised.

Paris in the Spring

RECENT RETURNEES report glowingly of Paris this early spring. Flushed with prewar glamour, franc devaluation makes Paris a material paradise for foreigners. Everything's inexpensive except clothes, everything's plenti-except gas-rationed taxis. De luxe hotel rooms cost four-five dollars daily. Wonderful meals at the corner bistro come to a dollar-dollar-fifty. Scarce materials make big dressmaker creations high. Collections limelighted by local fashionables are Jacques Fath's Schiaparelli's. Elsa, herself, is in New York waiting for her second grandchild to her daughter "Gogo" Berenson.

Paris is crowded with South Americans. The Latino ladies, especially the Brazilians, are very beautiful. Most distinguished plays are "Invitation au Chateau" by Anouilh, author of "Antigone," and Moliere's "Don Juan" newly set, starring Jouvet.

"La Cremailliere,' the smart little restaurant behind the Elysees Palace, has come to life again, is more popular than ever. The American Embassy is entertaining feverishly and in our diplomatic set the most-sought-after ladies are Mrs. Douglas MacArthur 2d, daughter of Senator Alben Barkley, and exquisitely dressed Mrs. William Patton, granddaughter of Washington's Mrs. Peter Augustus Jay.

Part Cherokee Indian Mrs. Rosita Winston, whose elaborate parties were last season's Riviera sensation, will plunge soon into a more rarified milieu by leasing a tremendous house in an aristocratic section of Paris.

Gallery Enthusiasts

A FEW DAYS AGO a flock of leading cartoonists and comic script artists were summoned to a three-day Treasury Department conference. They came voluntarily to supply ideas and be briefed on how to help put across the Treasury's new issue of E Bonds via their colossal following.

Among them were Russell Patterson, who turns out pretty-girl magazine covers; Rube Goldberg, Ernie Bushmiller, creator of Nancy and Fritzie Ritz; Gus Edson, papa of Andy Gump; Bill Holman, who draws Lucky Stover, and a dozen others.

And what do you suppose these gents whose creative efforts are pursued breathlessly by millions, did with their few spare minutes? Go to a movie, step into a hot spot, sit around with Four Roses? No! En masse they rose early, trotted to the National Gallery of Art to see the exhibition of paintings retrieved from the Nazi salt mine cache. They went back again each day.

Somehow it is encouraging to learn that this handful of men who wield such influence on American youth (and old age) are art gallery addicts, not whoopee artists. The E Bonds, incidentally, go on sale April 15. They are nice bargains in Democracy.

Pretender Feted

MOST ENTERTAINED personages in New York these days are the 35-year-old Don Juan, Pretender to Spain's throne and his handsome wife, Princess Maria Mercedes, of Bourbon-Siciles. It's their second visit to this country.

Back in 1935 they spent several weeks of honeymoon trip in New York with the late Mrs. Elsie Moore Torlonia, mother of Alessandro Torlonia, who is married to Don Juan's sister, who is nicknamed "Baby."

A sturdy, likable man, Don Juan was forehanded enough to write from Cuba (where he was visiting friends) for meetings with such expansive citizens as Chase Bank president, Winthrop Aldrich. Last Sunday they were given a large luncheon by Mrs. Benjamin Moore, whose beautiful Long Island house boasts Spanish Artist Sert's most enchanting murals.

Embassy Tour Hostesses to Meet

Hostesses chosen to serve in the embassies to be opened for the Goodwill Tour and Tea on April 24 are invited to meet with Mrs. Wiley Rutledge, president of the Goodwill Guild, and Mrs. Henry F. Alves, general chairman of embassy hostesses, today at the Goodwill Industries plant, 1218 New Hampshire ave.

The hostesses will observe the needs of the handicapped employes and have luncheon in the industries' cafeteria. The cafeteria was furnished from the proceeds of last year's tour.

This year's tour will provide medical equipment for the new health clinic. The embassies of France, Canada, India and Siam and the Legation of Finland will open on April 24 for this benefit.

Members of the Goodwill Guild serving as hostesses on April 24 who will attend the luncheon today are Mrs. Sidney Hechinger, Mrs. Arthur Vennell, Mrs. John A. Massey, Mrs. Jackson Davis, Mrs. Herbert Feis, Mrs. George Moore, Mrs. H. H. Hulbert, Mrs. Harry Morgan, Mrs. G. P. Bergmann, and Mrs. Thomas L. Smith.

Also, Mrs. Karl Fenning, Mrs. Mark Eldredge, Mrs. Paul Porter, Mrs. J. Brent Clark, Mrs. James C. Dulin, Mrs. Ollie James, Mrs. Edgar E. Quayle, Mrs. James I. Boyd, Mrs. Fred J. Cullen, Mrs. Braxton Jones, Mrs. Arthur Baker, Mrs. Theron Caudle, Mrs. Glenn W. Shaw, Mrs. Gordon Merriam, Mrs. John Drake and others.

Friends Entertain At Cocktails For Chennaults

MAJ. GEN. CLAIRE L. CHENNAULT and Mrs. Chennault were honored at a cocktail party at the Army-Navy Country Club yesterday afternoon. Around 300 guests attended. They were received by Mrs. Doreen Lonborg and officers of the Fourteenth Air Force, who served with General Chennault in China.

The Ambassador of China and Mme. Koo were among the guests, as well as other staff members of the Chinese Embassy. He and Mrs. Chennault flew over from China about two weeks ago and will remain for a short visit, stopping at the Washington Hotel.

By Gene Jones—The Washington Post

WHILE strolling through the park one day . . . a couple of sightseers met and exchanged fashion notes, found they both liked the "tailored look" for Washington springtime . . . discovered also, they had something more in common. Both are appearing at the National Theater in the hilarious "Musical Depreciation Revue" with Spike Jones. They are, left to right, Paul Judson, feature singer, and Betty Jo Huston, dancer.

When they met, Paul duly tipped his hat and Betty Jo took a second look. There it was—the "Scoop Hat" the boys are talking about. Paul's is of cocoa brown, with higher crown and narrower brim than his 1947 chappeau. Its distinguishing features are a black ribbon band and oxford gray ribbon binding around the brim which dips sharply over the brow. Available at the Young Men's Shop

Flower Mart to Be at Cathedral

A spectacular outdoor fete, the Flower Mart, will be held on the Pilgrim Steps at the Washington Cathedral on Friday, May 7, sponsored by All Hallows' Guild. Mrs. William L. Ritchie, chairman, Mrs. Forrester Davison, cochairman, and members of the committee are giving themselves a loophole, due to the uncertainty of the weather, by planning to hold the mart on Saturday, May 8, in the event of rain on Friday.

Twenty-four garden clubs in the District, nearby Maryland and Virginia, are cooperating in this year's mart, several of which have not heretofore participated.

Proceeds from the fete each year go toward the fund for maintenance of the bishop's garden at the Cathedral, one of the show spots of Washington which attracts thousands of out-of-town sightseers each year as well as local residents.

Woman Who Joined Wac as Patriotic Duty, Leaving Lucrative Business to Friend's Care, Returns to Find Self Dispossessed

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: How can I get hate out of my system? When the war started I had a very lucrative business (listed as nonessential) and as the war grew worse I placed a friend in charge of my business and joined the WAC.

I trusted her completely, but in my absence she allowed my lease to expire without consulting me; and I came back from the service to find her married to a man who had bought the building, and they were doing a flourishing partnership business where mine had been.

They had moved my equipment to storage, the costs had piled up so heavily that I couldn't afford to get it out, and when I consulted a lawyer, he said it was legal; there was nothing he could do.

I know this sounds as if I'd been stupid, but remember she was my friend whom I had known and trusted for years; and while I realize that she was influenced by her husband, nevertheless I can't forgive her. I never hated before, but I hate her.

I would like to see something dreadful happen to her and the conniving husband. Neither of them contributed anything to the war effort, and now they have every comfort that money can buy, while my husband, my two children and I live hand-to-mouth. I plot and plan terrible revenge, but I know in my heart I won't do anything.

My family tells me to forget, and I have tried in many ways, but I can't. Mother taught me to think well of others, to turn the other cheek, that honesty pays, etc.; but I wonder what she would say if she were alive today and knew my dilemma.

I talked to our pastor, which didn't help, as he mouthed all the old pious phrases . . . money is the root of all evil . . . turn to God . . . banish evil thoughts. I finally walked away in disgust. It is all very well to prate of money being the root of all evil, but I can't very well buy food with pretty quotations from the Bible. However, I am weary of wallowing in hate and perhaps you know of a cure. R. S.

Satan Abroad In the World

DEAR R. S.: According to Holy writ, it is "love of money," not money itself, that is the root of all evil; a vice with which you were not afflicted, apparently, at the time of placing a faithless friend in charge of your business, that you might do a patriot's job without concern for personal comfort.

Thus it might be said that Satan is using the woman's treacherous example to tempt you from the lofty standards, the higher conscioueness, the spiritual straight-thinking, that were yours before total war—which by Sherman's definition is total hell—was loosed on the so-called civilized world, to demoralize and delude the good into acceptance of false beliefs and destructive hates.

This is taking the larger view; but to see life whole, watching the mills of the gods grind slowly, one must see it from that vantage. And bringing this perspective to bear on your case, one sees that in the past you achieved a lucrative business by honest diligence and right living, which means that you can do it again if you will restore your soul to the guidance of God, where it was stayed in years when you believed on Him, and will resolutely turn your spirit away from what the woman has done, saying with Jesus, "Get Thee Behind Me, Satan."

To cure hatred: The first step is to face a truth you are unwilling to face, namely, that you made a mistake in trusting the woman, failed in that instance to use the sense God gave you, thereby putting temptation in her way, thus inciting the wrong she did you.

The next step is to forgive yourself that two-edge mistake, because without charity toward self there can be no charity for others, no peace of soul. In telling how to be saved, Jesus said, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself," which is a psychological axiom as well as a moral law.

It is precisely so, as all analytic research reveals, that a person's feelings about others exactly mirror his feelings about the "humanity" embodied in himself. As he blesses or curses himself, so does he bless or curse others in his judgments. Hence the true saying, "Charity begins at home."

In this sense, your efforts were blessed in other years; your creative energies happily used brought prosperity. But at present these energies are immobilized by cursing, by hating, and to prosper again you must forgive your mistakes and, via healing, forget it. For further guidance, study "The Sermon on The Mount" by Emmet Fox (Harper & Brothers, publishers). M. H.

Story-Book Romance

Egyptian Princess Plans Simple Home Wedding

By Marie McNair

LIKE A story-book princess who renounced her title for love, Egyptian Princess Emina Tousson will become just plain Mrs. Cornelius Bretsch on Saturday, April 10.

The princess, daughter of one of the richest men in Egypt, was more than slightly annoyed when King Farouk—who is also a relative—refused her permission to marry the man of her choice. She has given up her title, is already on the way to becoming an American citizen.

The wedding will take place at the home of the bride-elect in Georgetown with not more than a dozen family members and friends attending. Mr. Bretsch's mother, Mrs. Albert Bretsch of Raleigh, N. C., will be here and for the dinner party which the princess will have two days before her marriage. Only the most intimate friends of Princess Emina and her fiance will be present on both occasions. The couple will have a honeymoon and will live in the princess' house when they return.

The romance between the handsome princess and her fiance budded in Cairo when Mr. Bretsch, then a commander in the Navy, was stationed there during the war. It blossomed in Washington where the princess has been living for more than a year and Mr. Bretsch, now out of the Navy, has a job with the Federal Housing Administration.

TOWN TOPICS: Now that excavations on the Dupont Circle underpass are actually under way, merchants along that section of Connecticut ave. are beginning to feel a business recession.

The swank Connecticut Galleries, which deals in antiques and objets d' art, have already given up, have tacked a sign to the window reading, "Blunderpass Removal Sale. Everything at discount." On the south side of the circle, optimism reigns at the Dupont Flower Shop. In letters a foot high the manager announces, "Underpass or no underpass—Business as Usual."

With praises for a job well done still ringing in her ears, Mrs. Joseph Davies with Mr. Davies and the Duke and Duchess of Windsor as guests, is aboard her yacht, the Sea Cloud, steaming toward Havana. When Hugh Dillman, president of Palm Beach's Everglades Club, became ill, Mrs. Davies stepped in and ran the New Look Party which netted $192,000 for the benefit of the Good Samaritan Hospital.

Evalyn Tyner, Washington's noted pianist, paid her own way down to Florida's gold coast resort to put on a show with Al Robinson at the benefit party.

The British Embassy's going to miss the services of Robert Hadow, generally conceded to be one of the most astute diplomats along Embassy Row. Mr. Hadow, who incidentally is a whiz on the dance floor, is being sent to San Francisco as Consul General after several years as Counselor of the Embassy here.

When he's going, Mr. Hadow himself doesn't know. When he does, Mrs. Hadow, the former Lindsay Wood of Washington, will go with him.

QUEEN HELEN of Romania had a wonderful time at luncheon in the dining room at the Shoreham Hotel yesterday. Seated with her lady-in-waiting at a small side table for two, the mother of young King Michael carefully took in the gay spring hats at the table where Mrs. Carl Lomen was entertaining almost 30 ladies.

The Queen is prettier than her pictures, wears her hair softly waved and simply arranged. Yesterday she had a coat of deep mulberry wool thrown over her shoulders and a new look black skirt.

Miss Allport Is Married

Miss Peggy Louise Allport, daughter of Mrs. Suzie Allport of Alexandria, Va., was married on March 16 in the Delray Baptist Church, Alexandria, to Thomas E. Barlow, son of Mrs. Florie Barlow of Washington. The Rev. J. P. Jeulley officiated.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Lester Allport. Her gown was of brocaded satin with a seed pearl tiara holding her veil and she carried a white orchid with her prayerbook.

Mrs. J. D. Long, matron of honor for her sister, wore blue taffeta and carried yellow jonquils and blue iris. Cecil Barlow was his brother's best man. John Decker and Robert Barlow seated the guests. A reception followed at Bendall's Alexandrian Room. After their honeymoon in southern Virginia, the newlyweds will reside in Alexandria.

Bunnies, Bonnets Not Mentioned At First Lady's Press Meeting

By Elizabeth Maguire

Bunnies and bonnets were not mentioned at Mrs. Truman's press conference yesterday. The First Lady and her daughter, Margaret, will attend Easter Sunday services at some Episcopal Church, but beyond that no special plans have been made. It is expected they will also attend Good Friday services tomorrow, possibly at St. Margaret's.

In the interest of food conservation, egg rolling on the White House lawn has again been ruled out. As someone remarked, this will also conserve the south lawn.

When the Prince Regent of Belgium arrives at the White House on Tuesday, April 6, Mrs. Truman will have tea for Prince Charles and the members of his party. It will not be a party, merely tea served White House guests who arrive at tea time. In the evening there will probably be a stag dinner for the Prince, with the President his host.

Another date on Mrs. Truman's calendar is Friday, April 2, when she and Miss Margaret Truman will accompany the President to Williamsburg, Va. They will visit the historical town at the loveliest time of the year to see the President receive an honorary degree from the William and Mary College.

Among other engagements, Mrs. Truman will receive the Leaders' Association of the Potomac Area Camp Fire Girls on Tuesday, and on April 3, she and Miss Truman will be guests of the Women's National Press Club at a tea. On Sunday, April 4, at 6:30 o'clock, the Naval Academy Choir from Annapolis will sing in the East Room of the White House, following the massing of colors at the Washington Cathedral.

On April 7 at 5 o'clock Mrs. Truman will have a tea for members of B'nai B'rith Women's Supreme Council. About 50 guests are expected.

Slim to Music, Sweet or Swing

By Ida Jean Kain

LET'S play hookey from dull calisthenics, and frolic through the shaper-uppers. Exercise is fun! True, our model Barbara Anne was plain bored and balky as a burro, until we hit upon the plan of exercising to slow rhythm, coming in on the down-beat, following through on the up-swing!

The secret of joy in exercise is rhythm . . . bending to a beautiful waltz, stretching to a lilting tune . . . sweet or swing, any music will work magic if you let it flow through you and come out in liquid easy motion. And even if music can't be had, you can feel the rhythm.

Swing your arms upwards, s-t-r-e-t-c-h upward through the middle, and take a step backward as you circle your arms around and back down. Step back with the other foot, and rhythmically circle arms slowly and easily overhead, again pulling slim all through the midsection. It's almost like dancing, this freeing stretch. Don't hold your breath . . . just breathe naturally. The room need not be cold—it should be comfortably warm, with a circulation of fresh air.

To smooth bulgy leg muscles, take a tip from our model Barbara Anne and wear wool stockings or tights. The ballerinas call them "leotards" and wear them for practice workouts. The warmth, plus the stretch, makes for long, smooth muscles. Bar-Anne slimmed her calf from 14¼ inches to 13 and trimmed ¼-inch off the ankle.

Whenever It's Convenient

When to exercise? Any time that fits best into your living schedule. For the homemaker, mid-morning is an excellent time, or mid-afternoon when you get your second wind. For the business girl, after five exercises can carry away accumulated fatigue.

Three rules to observe: Wait at least one hour after a meal before exercising. Do not eat within 20 minutes following exercise. Never keep on until weariness sets in—stop exercise at the height of its invigorating effect.

Bar-Anne always took her exercises at 2:00 in the afternoon when Denny, her four-year-old son, was taking his nap. To her surprise she found herself looking forward eagerly to the exercise swing session. You will too. Take them at the same time every day—it's good habit forming!

Follow through with rhythmic bending. Arc arms overhead and as you sway toward the right, bend the right knee, and pull slim along the left side . . . then toward the left, letting that knee bend as you pull slim along the right side. Now do a high step around the room, flexing alternate knees, fling arms up—stretch! It's freeing . . . it's fun . . . it's slimming!

Don't overdo. To become supple, not stiff, start with five minutes of easy liquid motions and add a couple of minutes each day.

Reducing on a Budget

Eat to beat the high cost of food and banish excess fat. These low calorie menus afford perfect nutrition at comparatively low cost.

To get the most nutritive value at low cost and low calories, skimmed milk is used in place of whole milk. Restricting dairy fats to lower calories lessens the Vitamin A. This can be secured in a concentrate without calories and at a cost of a bit over one cent a day. Supplement menus with one Vitamin A and D concentrate, supplying 5000 units of Vitamin A and 400 units of Vitamin D per day. Or, use one multiple vitamin concentrate.

Since all foods included may not be available everywhere, inexpensive substitutes and interchangeable foods are listed—also recipe for special salad dressing.

Your Baby and Mine

Sound Sleep Will Follow Good Supper

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

A baby will sleep more soundly for 12 hours if he has been the recipient of a hearty, nourishing supper. When mothers complain that their children cannot sleep all night it is often directly related to that meager meal, made up of foods of low caloric value, which they are given at the last meal of the day.

A food may be a good one, and still not be suitable to the evening meal. This particular meal should be fortified by one "filling" dish, usually a carbohydrate; supplemented with a fruit, maybe a protein and always a six to eight ounce portion of milk.

When a baby gets just fruit and milk that is not sufficient to stick to the ribs. Cereals are the carbohydrates most often chosen for this meal. Babies like cereals. It should be a home cooked one, or one designed particularly for babies, and it can have a spoonful of sugar extra and be served with an ounce or more of rich milk and be guaranteed to provide a nourishing sleepy-time meal.

When the baby gets tired of cereal there are other carbohydrate foods from which to choose. A whole baked potato—or half for the younger child—with some hot milk and a bit of butter beaten into it until the potato is fluffy and smooth, will take the place of the dish of cereal. A whole, ripe, raw banana makes a perfect substitute for cereal of any kind and children enjoy it, too. More milk on this. A soup will do only if it has a generous accompaniment of one of the cereals (barley, rice), or an egg beaten into it. Watery soup is too low in calories to be made the main dish of a night meal.

Noodles or macaroni dishes are nice for the older child, and these can have an added cream sauce flavored with fish or cheese which will add to the general appeal and nourishment.

An egg, with extra breadcrumbs, will make an acceptable 100-calorie dish, and one egg every day, or every other day should be served to the baby at this or one of the other meals.

Along with any of these main dishes will go a generous serving of fruit sauce, maybe a cracker, or half a piece of toast or some arrowroot wafers, and the night's portion of milk. If the baby cannot drink eight ounces after all of this food, then it might be possible to give four ounces in the middle of the afternoon and four ounces at supper time. Anything to insure a good night's repose.

Reader Gives Mazurki Recipe

In answer to L. M.'s request for a Mazurki recipe, I inclose a recipe which was in a Polish information pamphlet. I have not yet tried this recipe, which is called "Chocolate Mazurek." I'm sure it is the same thing, however, as this is classed as an Easter pastry.

MAZUREK

2 cups flour
½ cup brown sugar
¾ cup butter (washed)

Mix flour and sugar and work in butter with finger-tips. Roll or pat out to 1/3-inch thickness. Place in shallow baking dish lined with paper. Bake about 20 minutes in slow oven (325 degrees F.).

After cooling, spread with the following icing:

1 cup sugar
½ cup cream
2 tablespoons butter
½ teaspoon vanilla

Cook sugar, chocolate and cream together until sugar is dissolved. Then cook slowly without stirring to the "soft ball" stage. Add butter and vanilla. Beat mixture until it thickens. Spread and serve the Mazurek cut in small strips.

R. L. G.

Many thanks to R. L. G. for sending in this recipe.

I am planning to go to Europe this summer. The laundry will be done in hotel bathrooms or in a pail. Could you tell me if there is a dry bleaching powder to take the place of liquid household bleach? E. D.

Sodium perborate is a powder and a safe bleach for all types of materials. To use it for a bleach, make it into a solution by using four tablespoons perborate to one pint of lukewarm water. Also, oxalic acid can be purchased in crystaline form and can be used as a bleach on all materials except weighted silk. Make into a solution by using three tablespoons oxalic acid crystals to one pint water. Oxalic acid is poison, so should be treated accordingly.

What is the best agent to clean tarnished Mexican filigree silver jewelry? E. H. N.

Use a paste silver polish to clean the jewelry. Or if it is not chased, place it in an aluminum pan in a solution of one quart of boiling water and one teaspoon each of salt and baking soda. Remove silver from solution as soon as tarnish is removed. Dry and buff well to polish.

Is there a glaze I can use to restore the appearance of chintz, or have a dry cleaner use? I have a quilted bedspread and plain chintz drapes. Is it safe to wash them? P. S.

I do not know of any Washington cleaners who reglaze chintz, though I understand there are a few in other cities who have the special equipment needed for this job. Dry cleaning, properly done, removes less of the glaze than laundering. Therefore, your best bet for keeping the spread and drapes in their original condition would be to send them to a reliable cleaner. When chintz has been washed, some of its body and glazed appearance can be restored through the use of a light starch, followed by ironing while damp with a hot iron.

During the past few weeks, I have found several small bugs crawling on my rug. They are wormlike in appearance, dark brown or black, and when they are touched or killed, roll themselves into a ball. Do you happen to know what they may be and of any way to get rid of them? Also, do they do any type of damage to my home? They are about ¼ inch long and have feelers. They appear to have a rather hard-sectioned back. P. J. S.

It sounds very much as though there are carpet beetles (also known as buffalo bugs or buffalo moths) in your rugs. There are several varieties of these and they are about ¼-inch long when full grown. The larvae, which feed on wool, hair, bristles, fur, feathers, and other animal substances, form "shells" and shed them six to ten times during their year of growth. It is during this period that they feed heavily and hide in dark places—stored clothing, edges of carpets and rugs, the pile of fabrics, and crevices in the floor. They are therefore very difficult to locate and kill. Moth flakes, balls, or crystals will kill them if used in sufficient quantity and in a contained space, so that vapors can penetrate the fibers. Since this is seldom practical for a carpet, the best thing to do would be to send it to a cleaner, explaining your difficulty to him. While the rug is away, clean the floor as thoroughly as possible, paying particular attention to the cracks. If practical, fill cracks afterward with moth crystals, cover floor with papers and leave for several days. A really sure way of getting rid of the carpet beetles would be to call in a professional exterminator to treat the room in which they are found.

Attention K. W.: Another reader has advised us that there is a craft shop in Washington, operated for the benefit of charity, that takes orders for children's knitted garments and sells wool. A member of the organization operating the shop may be contacted by telephoning Woodley 7724. Two other readers have written that they take orders for knitted garments, and their letters have been forwarded to you.

Can you give me a recipe for Vichyssoise? G. L.

A recipe for this soup, which can be served hot or cold, follows:

3 medium-sized leeks
1 medium-sized onion
2 tablespoons butter
4 medium-sized potatoes
4 cups consomme (preferably chicken)
1 to 2 cups cream
Salt and pepper
Chopped watercress or chives

Mince white part of leeks and onions. Stir and saute until soft in butter. Peel potatoes and slice them very fine. Add them and the consomme to onions. Simmer covered until vegetables are very tender. Put through a fine sieve. Add cream, salt, pepper, and chopped watercress or chives.

Tough Meat Cuts Are Tenderized With Lemon Juice

The tenderizing effect of lemon juice on less expensive cuts of meat—not to mention its piquant flavor—makes it an excellent ingredient for such dishes as "Delicious Lamb Shanks." The recipe follows:

1 clove garlic
2 tablespoons flour
2 teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 bay leaf
½ cup lemon juice
2 tablespoons grated lemon peel.

Cut garlic clove into fourths and insert a piece in each shank. Dust shanks with flour, salt, pepper and paprika. Brown slowly in melted fat for 10 to 15 minutes. Add bay leaf. Pour over lemon juice and sprinkle with grated peel. Simmer slowly 1½ to 2 hours, adding small amounts of water as necessary. Remove shanks, thicken gravy. This recipe serves four.

The New Tapestry

When you hang the new tapestry make a vow to brush it well with a furniture brush each time the room is cleaned. You will find it will be a long time before you will notice any actual soil on it if this is adhered to.

Business Outlook

Wanted: Big-Time Company; He Got It, Plus a Lawsuit!

By J. A. Livingston

SOME people, like Robert A. Taft or Thomas E. Dewey, aspire to the White House; some, like Bucky Harris or Leo Durocher, want a pennant; still others, like Rosalind Russell, yearn for a Hollywood Oscar, and some, like Morris H. Gotthilf, a certified public accountant in New York with a strong Dun & Bradstreet rating, want to head a corporation whose stock is listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

Livingston

Unlike Taft, Dewey and Rosalind, Gotthilf has his wish. He recently became chairman of the board of Universal Laboratories, Inc., a company with an erratic record of unprosperity, whose stock is quoted on the Exchange around 4½ and whose products include Mavis, Djer-Kiss, Vivaudou, Delettrez, and Melba cosmetics, Kny-Scheerer surgical and hospital supplies, and Kleanwell toothbrushes.

Gotthilf sold his way into Universal last July in a transaction so complicated that analysts and accountants at the Securities and Exchange Commission haven't pulled all the loose ends together. And a group of Universal stockholders are not at all sure that Gotthilf's services as chairman will be worth the price he and the former management put on them. They're suing to undo the deal that brought Gotthilf to Universal.

GOTTHILF'S Mr. Opportunity was Lowell M. Birrell, a man of wide interests who controls manufacturing, insurance, and investment companies and who happened to be chairman of the board of Universal. Birrell's companies owned 19,990 shares of Universal, and Gotthilf's arrival on the scene gave Birrell a chance to get out and Gotthilf a chance to get in. It happened this way.

Birrell agreed, as chairman of Universal, to buy the Sleight Metallic Ink Co. of Illinois, a company which manufactures printing ink and which Gotthilf had acquired only two years before along with other property for $200,625. As consideration, Gotthilf would receive 47,000 shares of Universal with a market value of $246,750 at the time and a $650,000 4 per cent note secured by Sleight Metallic Ink and due in 15 years. Thus Gotthilf got the equivalent of $900,000 for a property which cost him less than $200,000 two years before.

Suing stockholders contend that Gotthilf agreed to purchase the 19,990 shares of Universal owned by the Birrell interests and to cancel a $250,000 note due Universal from American Druggists Syndicate, Inc., a Birrell subsidiary formerly owned by Universal. Gotthilf insists that the note was canceled before he went into the deal.

Gotthilf looks upon himself as a medicine man for sick companies. He feels he can regenerate Universal's earning power, which can stand considerable regeneration. Back in 1943, Universal recapitalized to wipe out an accumulated deficit of $2,440,000. At the time the name was changed to Universal Laboratories from Vadsco Sales.

DURING THE WAR, when people couldn't buy cars and refrigerators and so bought everything else, Universal's earnings picked up, reaching $288,000 in 1944, or $1.02 a share. Last year, however, the company racked up a $477,000 operating loss, which was reduced by surplus adjustments and a tax refund to $25,000. Thus, in one of the boom years in American industrial history, Universal did poorly.

Sleight Metallic Ink of Illinois is hardly likely to bolster Universal's earning power substantially. Sleight's $60,000 yearly earnings are not free and clear. First to be taken out is $26,000 interest on Gotthilf's note; second comes $18,000 on preferred stock outstanding. Only then comes Universal, which might realize $16,000 or so per year. However even if Sleight loses money, Gotthilf still will be entitled to interest on his note, which is Universal's obligation.

Universal cannot yet issue that 47,000 shares of stock Birrell agreed to give Gotthilf as part payment for Sleight of Illinois. The New York Stock Exchange will not agree to the listing until stockholders vote. And right there is irony. If this had not been a listed company, the transaction could have been completed without action by the stockholders. But because this is a listed company—and because a listed company is what Gotthilf deeply wanted—the whole transaction is held in abeyance.

Meanwhile he continues to run the company. He has brought in a new slate of officers, including his son, Arnold, as treasurer, and he will have an opportunity to demonstrate—before the stockholders' meeting some time in the fall—just how good a doctor of sick companies he is.

Prune Salad Makes Ideal Luncheon

An ideal luncheon entree is "Prune Neptune Salad," which combines this thrifty fruit with crab meat, grapefruit sections, and shredded cabbage.

PRUNE NEPTUNE SALAD

1 cup prunes
1 cup crab meat
1 cup grapefruit sections
French dressing
Lettuce
Mayonnaise
2 hard-cooked eggs

Cover prunes with water and boil 10 minutes. Drain and cut from pits into small pieces. Shred crab. Dice grapefruit. Combine cabbage, prunes, crab and grapefruit and marinate in French dressing 5 to 10 minutes; drain and arrange on lettuce. Top with mayonnaise. Garnish each salad with pieces of hard-cooked egg. This recipe serves six persons.

New York Cotton

New York, March 24 (AP)—Cotton futures closed strong at gains of $1.40 to $2.50 a bale today. Buying of futures against export sales, tightening cotton supplies, and better export prospects under the spending program and legislation contributed to a broad upswing movement in late dealings which found offerings scarce.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, March 24 (AP)—Wheat continued to climb slowly on the Board of Trade today, bringing the May contract to nearly 10 cents above the low on the first day this week. The firm trend in wheat was not reflected in other grains, corn closing mixed while oats eased.

There was nothing spectacular about the wheat gain. Support came from local traders and cash houses, but there was no desperate rush to buy. Some purchases were made on the possibility the Government will strive to meet its maximum export goal of 500 million bushels.

Wheat closed ⅞ to 2¼ higher, May, 2.38⅛@2.38⅜; corn was ⅛ lower to ⅛ higher, May, 2.16⅝@2.16½; oats were ⅛ to ⅜ lower, May, 1.10⅛@1.10¼, and soybeans were 1 to 3 cents higher, May 3.46.

News from Kansas City said the rush to sell wheat to the CCC slackened considerably today. Government buying yesterday at Sioux terminals totaled 1,524,700 bushels, bringing purchases since the start of the current program to 10,091,117 bushels. This is in excess of the 8,000,000 bushels the trade estimated were needed to fill April export allotments.

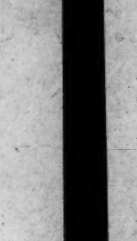
Net of Sears Sets New High Of 108 Million

By S. Oliver Goodman

Sears, Roebuck & Co., which operates four stores in Washington, yesterday reported record sales and earnings for last year.



McConnell

Thus far in 1948 sales "are meeting our expectations and we believe spring business will be larger than a year ago," President Fowler McConnell said in the annual report.

Net income was $107,739,892 in 1947, equal to $4.56 a common share, compared with $100,098,516 or $4.24 a share in 1946.

Sales last year totaled $1,981,535,749 against $1,612,596,050 in 1946. "Nevertheless," McConnell stated, "during most of the year limited quantities of certain types of merchandise restricted sales to the available supply. It was necessary to return more than 135 million dollars in orders received from catalog customers."

Inventories on January 31, end of the fiscal year, were $351,002,299, up 19 per cent from a year previous. "This represents about 13 weeks supply," McConnell said, "at the anticipated rate of 1948 spring sales."

Full-time employment in 1947 averaged 105,230 employes while the number of stockholders totaled 92,682.

BOND OFFERING: A new issue of $700,000 Terminal Refrigerating & Warehousing Corp. first mortgage bonds is expected to be offered today, subject to SEC clearance. The first mortgage bonds bear 4 per cent interest and are dated April 1, 1948, to mature in 10 years. Alex Brown & Sons are the sole underwriters. Proceeds of the new issue will be used to retire the remaining $635,000 of a 4¼ per cent 10-year issue which matures on April 1, 1948. Holders of the old bonds will be given preference in allotting the new bonds. Price is expected to be 100.

NEW OFFICER: Carroll C. Pike was elected assistant comptroller of Washington Gas Light Co. at the directors meeting yesterday. All other officers were relected. At the adjourned annual stockholders meeting Monday all directors were reelected. Regular quarterly dividends were declared as follows: $1.125 a share on $4.50 cumulative preferred, $1.0625 a share on $4.25 cumulative preferred, both payable May 10 to stock of record April 24. The usual quarterly dividend of 37½ cents a common share also was declared, payable May 1 to stock of record April 15. Marcy L. Sperry, Sidney F. Tallaferro and Corcoran Thom were elected members of the executive committee, while Albert W. Atwood and Christopher H. Pope were named as alternates.

PEACE PLAN: The Society of Automotive Engineers has a peace plan, too. It calls for standard heights on auto bumpers to prevent locking when you bump the car ahead. All rear bumpers would be 18¼ inches off the ground. Front bumpers would vary because different cars dip downward at divers angles when they come to an abrupt stop.

ODD LOTS: The Hecht Co., which operates stores in the District of Columbia, Maryland and New York, yesterday declared regular quarterly dividends of 93¾ cents a share on 3¾ per cent preferred stock and 40 cents a common share, both payable April 30 to stock of record April 8 . . . International Shoe Co. yesterday announced reductions in shoe prices from 5 to 50 cents a pair on unfilled orders for spring delivery . . . The School of Advanced International Studies in Washington will sponsor a series of roundtables on "American Business in Latin America" to be held April 13 to 23 . . . New Haven Railroad announced layoffs of workers in all departments to cope with deficits . . . The Texas City, Texas, plant of Monsanto Chemical Co. is expected to be in operation by June. The plant was destroyed by a ship explosion last April and the insurance claim of 22 million dollars is in negotiation.

MARTIN IN RED: Glenn L. Martin Co., Maryland aircraft maker, reported a net loss of $19,181,526 in 1947, but President Glenn L. Martin said there are "very hopeful indications for the future." Backlog of unfilled orders at the end of last year amounted to $196,167,439, mostly for military aircraft. Martin also said that airlines "simply must replace their outmoded short and medium-range airliners whatever the financing handicaps may be."

EARNINGS: Ingersoll-Rand Co. reported net income of $16,287,709 for 1947, equal to $16.07 a common share, compared with $9,467,976 or $9.28 a share in previous year. Other earnings statements:

One on the Aisle—

Courage Alone Rates an Oscar

By Richard L. Coe

THE STRIKING FEATURE of "Gentleman's Agreement," at the Palace, is its theme—anti-Semitism. For this reason, that it is a film of ideas, it won the Academy Award as the year's best picture.

It is a good picture, make no mistake about that. Its performances are moving, it is passionately persuasive, and in the intensely comparative world of the movies it has a courage that lifts it above the ordinary. For these reasons it is a high water mark of the American screen.

For these same reasons it also has a tentative, self-conscious beginning that will disappoint those who expect perfection. It moves into its central thought with a careful tread that makes one restless for the combat to be drawn.

This is not so much the fault of the film as it is that the story of "Gentleman's Agreement" is so well known. A magazine writer is assigned the task of writing a piece about anti-Semitism in America. Stymied for an angle, he finally hits on the one of posing as a Jew. The insidious prejudices he comes up against form the article he is writing and the story of "Gentleman's Agreement."

That Laura Z Hobson's novel has been so sensationally popular accounts for a more immediate perception of the theme than the movie, as a movie, allows.

"GENTLEMAN'S AGREEMENT." 20th Century-Fox release produced by Darryl F. Zanuck. Screen play by Moss Hart from the novel by Laura Z. Hobson. Directed by Elia Kazan. Music by Alfred Newman. Photographed by Arthur Miller. At the Palace.

A Lingering Disease

These early reels devote considerable attention to identifying the hero as a fine, ordinary, likable chap. He is concerned with his ailing mother's health, a matter extraneous to his own adventure except that it assures his audience that he has more to worry him than anti-Semitism. I have not read Mrs. Hobson's book and do not know the effect one must have felt in reading the story without knowing her widely publicized theme.

However, Script Writer Moss Hart has been most effective in his lines and in working into the film the varying shades of opinion that are a part of this lingering disease of anti-Semitism.

He has given the arguments against a campaign for the hush-hush approach. Through the hero's secretary he tells of the Jews who change their names and dislike "kikes." He sears the Rankin approach by name. He tells of the intellectual Jews who want no part of their religion but stick to their names through pride. He shows us the suburban snobs and their passion for "our own kind." He marks the difference between anti-Semitism and anti-Zionism.

The Station Wagon Set

In the character of the reporter's girl (he is a widower, but has a son by his first wife), "Gentleman's Agreement" comes to real grips with its problem. An intelligent liberal, she is reluctant to ignore the unwritten laws of those who abide by "restricted" beliefs. She feels that there is nothing she can do that will have any effect. When the reporter's boyhood pal, a Jew, cannot take a promising job because he's unable to find housing for his family, the girl is faced with a choice. Her unused house in Connecticut's station-wagon area would be an ideal home, but the section is "restricted." This means that she will lose friends the author tells us she values.

Decisive action all but defeats her. The character comes dangerously close to being a cardboard figure, for one insistently asks, "Is this the sort f girl who would attract the honest Phil?" But it is her ultimate acceptance of her duty that embodies the tolerance the film preaches.

Essentially, then, this is a report on a shameful situation that becomes real to its audiences by suggesting all the facets of anti-Semitism. It pictures the matter objectively and at the same time with angry heat. The fact remains, it is a surface report of a limited area, a consciousness of illness in a comparatively gilded fringe. It does not go below this surface, it does not state how widely the disease has spread and it gives no inkling as to why the problem should exist at all.

Belated Action

For all that, the fact that a social criticism is expressed in a commercial movie at all is remarkable and stimulating. It is entirely natural that in setting the stage for what is exceptional film material, the early reels are somewhat tentative.

But one can't help observing, for all the praise that has been lavished on "Gentleman's Agreement," that some of this excitement is excessive. It's high time for such a case to be made. The Academy Award film of 1937 was "The Life of Emile Zola," which climaxed in the Dreyfus case, at whose root was this same anti-Semitism. The plays of Israel Zangwell have been successful and John Galsworthy's "Loyalties" might well have been made 20 years ago.

It is a mark of the immaturity of our films that the theme has so long frightened them; there is something almost embarrassing in the fact that the theme of "Gentleman's Agreement" has captured Hollywood's highest honor.

But now the facts are faced and "Gentleman's Agreement" pulls few punches. The acting is high-level stuff. Gregory Peck with superb effect as the awakening reporter and John Garfield couldn't be finer as his Jewish pal of boyhood days. Dorothy Maguire—who sounds sometimes like Katharine Hepburn—makes the most of the irresolute heroine. There is a clipped, realistic performance from Celeste Holm, as a wise fashion editor; her part is particularly fortunate in the lines Hart has assigned her, and the actress' easy style is most welcome.

The youthful Dean Stockwell is downright fine as Peck's youngster, whose playmates taunt him for being " a kike;" the scenes between father and son are certainly the most moving in the film: June Havoc, too, is good as the name-changing secretary.

There are precise, knowing performances from all and Elia Kazan's direction netted him the Academy Award for the season's finest in that department.

"Gentleman's Agreement" is certainly a picture to see. That it does scratch the surface of one of our national sores suggests the dramatic power of Hollywood for our democratic ideal.

TODAY: Usually an openihg day for all houses, today is Maundy Thursday and several theaters are putting off their new films until Saturday . . . However, besides "Gentleman's Agreement" at the Palace, today also brings "Three Daring Daughters" to the Capitol and a double bill to the Metropolitan, "Bill and Coo," with an all-bird cast, and Roy Rogers in "Under California Stars . . ." (Maybe the District Liners will pick that double up?) . . . Keith's is holding "The Senator Was Indiscreet" until "I Remember Mama" arrives Saturday, which also brings "Cage of Nightingales" to the Little, "Volpone" to the Hippodrome and "April Showers" to the Warner . . . Gerard Willem Van Loon talks tonight at the Statler at 8:30 on "Theater, Showcase of Democracy"; son of the late author, Van Loon was our Army's theater control officer in Bavaria. The lecture is the third of four sponsored by Mrs. Horace Peaslee and Mrs. Detlow Marthinson.

A CHILDHOOD TRAGEDY: Dean Stockwell and Dorothy MaGuire in one of the most compelling scenes of "Gentleman's Agreement." The boy's father, played by Gregory Peck, is posing as a Jew and the child cannot understand why the fact that they think he is a Jew should bring on the taunts of his playmates. The Moss Hart adaptation of Laura Hobson's best-seller opens this morning at the Palace.

Southeasters Association Wins One-Act Play Tourney

The newly-formed Southeast Dramatic Association won the twentieth annual One-Act Play Tournament at Tuesday night's finals at Roosevelt High School.

"The Kite," a satire on Chinese plays by Holland Hudson, won for the Southeast group, with Lee Jordan in the central role. As the evening's judges, the Washington drama critics picked the FBI Identification Dramatic Group's "Smokescreen," by Robert Kasper, as the runner-up.

Winner of the Maud Howell Smith Medal for the best performance in the nine plays entered in the tournament was Hilary Knapp, who played Mary Stuart in the Montgomery Players' production of "The Pipes of Dunbar."

Judges of the preliminary performances were Caroline McKinley Ashbrook, Percy Baneskek and Hugh S. Smith, who chose the winner of the Smith Medal. On the honorable mention list for the best performance were Paul Murphy, of the Arts Club's "Thursday Evening," Natalie Bailey of the FBI entry and Lee Jordan of "The Kite."

Also in the cast of the prize-winning "Kite" were Joan Oberly, Thelma Gerard, Jean Cousins, Jin Jones, Paul Duda, Eli Nan, Georg Lytle, Robert Butts, Rober Pomeroy and John Cannon. Vera L. Mowry directed.

"Smokescreen" was performed by Natalie E. Bailey, John R. McCarthy and Fred W. Wilson, who directed the play.

"Thursday Evening," the third finalist, found Paul Murphy, June Weaver, Erica Donovan and Augusta Kriener in the Christopher Morley roles, directed by Denis Connell.

The tournament, sponsored by the District Recreation Department, will hold its annual dinner and frolic Wednesday night, April 7, at 6:30 in Barker Hall of the YWCA, 17th and K sts.

Continental Can Sues to Revoke U. S. Tin Order

Continental Can Co., Inc., yesterday asked a Federal Court to stop Secretary of Commerce Harriman from limiting use of tin for beer, coffee and animal food cans.

Under powers held since the war, Harriman has limited such use of tin.

Harriman's "unreasonable" order will cost Continental 25 million dollars in sales this year, the corporation said in a petition to the United States District Court.

It asked the court for an injunction to restrain Commerce Department officials from enforcing the order.

The firm's expected output of beer cans will be cut from 1½ billion to 690 million if the order stands, Continental said. Output of dog adn cat food cans will be cut 20 per cent.

Arlington Chest Votes for Merger

A proposal to consolidate the Arlington Community Chest with the Community Council under a single executive head has been approved by trustees of the county Chest unit.

Community Chest officials, announcing the decision yesterday, said it had been reached by a 16-13 vote of trustees. Their proposal provides that committees be appointed to represent each group in developing plans for the merger.

The trustees also voted to appropriate funds to continue the work of both agencies until August 31, the tentative date of the merger.

The action was taken after the trustees received a report from a special committee appointed t study the work of the Community Council. The committee said it recognized the planning work undertaken by the council as "important to public welfare," but expressed the belief that greater economy would be effected by consolidation of the two agencies under a single executive director.

The merger proposal, which already has been forwarded to the executive committee of the Community Council, will be submitted to council delegates for a decision at their meeting next Wednesday, Chest officials said.

Prince Georges Election Board Opens Own Office to Voters

New Prince Georges County voters may register any day at the office of the Board of Election Supervisors in the Courthouse at Upper Marlboro, Samuel A. Wyvill, member of the board, announced yesterday.

The board feels the turnout in two recent special registrations indicates sufficient interest to establish the new service, Wyvill said.

The office of the supervisors will be open from 8:30 a. m. until 4 p. m. daily except Saturday and Sunday. A Democratic and a Republican official will be on duty at all times to serve the new voters.

Total county registration now is approximately 49,500, divided into 32,500 Democrats and 15,240 Republicans, the remainder being those who declined to State party affiliation or belong to minor parties.

The new service will continue until April 27 when general registration will be held in the regular voting places of the county. The primary elections will be May 3.

Montgomery County residents also may register each day under the special law in effect in that county from 9 to 4:30 at Rockville until April 2.

Dental Aides to Meet

The District of Columbia Dental Assistants Society will meet tonight at 8 o'clock at the Rothstein's Auditorium, 1722 I st. nw.

Train-Bearers in Triplicate

IN APPLE QUEEN'S COURT—The Creedle triplets—Betty Jean, Caroll Ann and Temple Lee—will be the train-bearers for the Queen of the Apple Blossom Festival next month at Winchester, Va. They are the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Irving Creedle, jr., of 502 Fairmont ave. They are 5 years old and 43 inches tall

Farmers See Soil Experts Blast Ditches

A noisy demonstration by the Department of Agriculture at Germantown, Md., left nearly 100 Montgomery County farmers convinced of the value of dynamite in preparing drainage ditches in rural areas yesterday.

Designed to show the advantages of blasting over manpower, the demonstration was staged by the department's soil conservation service on the farm of James D. King, president of the County Farm Bureau. It not only established dynamite as the easiest method, but the cheapest, the spectators agreed.

The farmers, from all sections of the county, watched as the soil conservation experts planted dynamite sticks 12 to 14 inches apart for a distance of 800 feet along a sluggish stream on the King farm. Set off simuletaneously, they created an entirely new stream bed, from four to five feet deep and from six to eight feet in width.

In charge of the demonstration was Marion B. Fussell, district conservationist for the soil conservation service, who supervises projects in Montgomery, Prince Georges, Charles and St. Mary's counties.

Fussell told the spectators the cost of reclaiming farm land by the blast method costs from 20 to 35 cents a linear foot, depending on the terrain. To accomplish the same job with farm labor, it was pointed out, costs about 80 cents a foot.

Couple Held in Lottery Case Win Delay in Arraignment

A man and woman, whose arrest police have termed "a major blow" at the numbers racket here, yesterday were granted deferment of preliminary arraignment until April 6.

Delay was granted Sam Morgan, 42, of 705 Wayne ave., Silver Spring, Md., and Mrs. Mary Charles, 31, of 70 Rhode Island ave. nw., by United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage, who continued $1500 bond for each.

Their attorney pleaded he was unable to represent them at yesterday morning's scheduled hearing.

Lieut. Roy Blick revealed to a reporter that his vice squad members had trailed Morgan into Maryland for three months and that it was Morgan's "gallantry" in driving Mrs. Charles to her District home during the rain of Tuesday night that made arrest possible.

Numbers slips and $1200 were found in Mrs. Charles' possession, police said, and some $600 more was taken from the glove compartment of the car. Numbers slips were also found on Morgan, police said.

Arrest of the pair on charges of operation of a lottery and possession of numbers slips was made by Detectives Mark Gray, William Schillig and Charles H. Calderwood, with the aid of United States Marshal Barron Shields.

Va. Oil Output Is 65,000 Bbls.

Richmond, Va., March 24 (AP).—Virginia's oil fields, concentrated principally in Lee County, yielded an estimated 65,000 barrels of oil in 1947, State Geologist William M. McGill said today.

This compared with 2000 barrels of oil from two wells in the State in 1943. Between 15 and 20 wells were in operation in 1947, McGill said.

The geologist reported that natural gas production in Virginia last year totaled 64 million cubic feet, compared with an output of 60 million cubic feet in 1939, the first year for which records were kept. Commercial natural gas production in Virginia is confined to Scott and Washington counties.

Legal Mixup Stays Liquor Case 9th Time

David Douglas Davenport, the Municipal Court's constant pleader, was there again yesterday.

This time to hear two charges he had kept and sold whisky in Union Station last November 25.

But somehow the signals were mixed, and Assistant Corporation Counsel Richard Bartch, who was to try the case, had to ask for a continuance. Barton told Judge John P. McMahon he had understood Davenport would plead guilty to the charges.

But Davenport's attorney, Sol Lichtenberg, had apparently changed his mind, and Barton told the court he had not known of the change in time to get his witnesses in court.

It was the ninth continuance in the case since November 25, and Davenport's eleventh appearance on the case.

In setting a new trial date, Judge McMahon observed, "I think this case should be continued, anyway. At least until we get a new jury in Municipal Court. This jury already knows too much about Davenport."

Court attaches explained that Davenport has appeared in Municipal Court 17 times during March, and, that any of the Municipal Court jury panels might have heard him each of those times if they were not trying a case at the time of his appearance. New juries will be impaneled April 5.

Lichtenberg asked Judge McMahon to set trial date for April 16, rather than April 9, as Judge McMahon had apparently intended. Lichtenberg explained that April 16 is his birthday.

Agreeing to the date, McMahon said: "I hope my verdict will not interfere with your festivities."

Jury Fails To Agree in Abortion Case

A mistrial yesterday was declared in the District Court case of Dr. Schley Brown, 49, of 237 Rhode Island ave. nw., charged with abortion after the jury reported itself unable to agree after 6½ hours' deliberation.

The physician had been accused of performing an illegal operation on Mrs. Eleanor Reece Jones, 24, of 225 11th st. se., last July 17.

A similar case against Dr. Brown last November also resulted in a hung jury.

Trial on a third charge of abortion in still another case is pending in District Court.

Defense Attorneys Charles E. Ford and Dorsey Offutt built their case around an alibi witness, Dr. Charles Lee of Baltimore, who testified Dr. Brown had been with him in Maryland at the time the offense was supposed to have been committed here.

Army Wants Its Talent In Va. Chefs' Tourney

Richmond, Va., March 24 (AP).—The Army planned today to send some of its chow line talent to Fredericksburg, Va., next week for the second annual Virginia Chefs' Tournament.

It wants to compete with the Virginia Hotel and Restaurant chefs who are going to lay their best culinary efforts before the finicky faces of a group of gourmet judges. The judges will eat and find fault or favor on Monday and Tuesday at Mary Washington College.

Maj. Harry R. Tully, director of the food group at Camp Lee's quartermaster school, said he would send three Army chefs if the plan is approved by the upper echelons.

150 Children To Get Shoes, Easter Gifts

Some 150 youngsters will get shoes, clothing and Easter goodies this weekend without charity red tape or the usual scorns of poverty.

They will be feted in kindliness at a red brick row house at 466 H st. sw., by Rev. and Mrs. Ralph E. Vawters, incorporated 10 years ago as the Children's Aid Society.

Most of the youngsters are children of the city's needy, those ineligible for institutional care or charity dole but still among the have-nots. Some keep themselves off social workers' lists out of pride alone, say their present benefactors.

Festivities will start at 9 a. m., Saturday, with distribution of shoes and clothing, some new, some repaired, to about 100 boys and girls of varying races and creeds from all the poorer sections of Washington. They'll also get Easter baskets of candy.

At 1 p. m., Saturday, another half hundred youngsters will be guests there for the American Legion Auxiliary, Capital Transit Co., Unit No. 48. This party means ice cream, cake and Easter goodies to the kids. Some, on leaving, will be held back and given baskets of needed foods to take home with them.

Most of the gifts, averaging $5 worth a child, have been collected in recent weeks by telephone solicitations, according to Mrs. Vawters. The society's telephone number is DI-5587, in case anyone wants to help, said Mrs. Vawters, adding that the list of youngsters is large.

Philadelphia Orchestra Packs Hall

From Yesterday's Late Editions

By Paul Hume

Last night belonged to Brahms, Rudolf Serkin, Ormandy, and the Philadelphia Orchestra.

Constitution Hall was packed as is usual when this great organization visits Washingtin. The audience was one of the most enthusiastic in seasons.

The first symphony and the first piano concerto constituted the entire program. Serkin is, for my taste, a musician's pianist. His sense of precision in rhythm, and the way in which he announces themes are rare gifts. So, too, is the delicacy with which he outlines such a melody as that soft subject in sevenths in the slow movement, or the tremendous sweep of his ensemble work with orchestra.

He made the first concerto of Brahms a thrilling experience, though in itself it is more technical than lyrical. It is a pity that he had to play on a piano which was noticeably out of tune at the beginning of the concerto and became more so as the music continued. But this was a slight drawback in the face of such achievements as his.

Ormandy and his men have a habit of providing faultless support to any soloist, and they outdid themselves last night. The subtlest nuances of the soloist found echoes in the instruments surrounding him, and he could not have wanted more companionable work than Ormandy gave at every point.

The symphony was less inspired, and often, particularly in the first two movements, seemed either routine, or even at times stretched out of shape by reason of unjustified changes of pace. The third movement was allowed to flow along with less interruption, and the finale came through in brilliant style. It is nevertheless a pity that more conductors do not play the final statement of the massive chorale in strict tempo. Brahms gives no indication that it should be otherwise, and the effect is electric.

The audience last night was late in arriving, and a few disturbed many seated near entrances by talking and trying to be seated during the music. In Philadelphia late comers stay outside until an entire symphony is over. That might not be a bad idea here.

Parents File $10,000 Suit In Drowning

Grieving parents of a 23-month old boy who drowned here last August in a flooded basement yesterday filed suit for $10,000 damages.

Attorney Al Philip Kane filed the negligence suit in District Court for the parents, Mr. and Mrs. James F. Delany, jr., 3812 W st. se., against Realty Management Corp., operators of Fairfax Village apartment development.

Their son, James F., 3d, wandered down an unbarricaded stairwell beside 2104 38th st. se. He was found dead by his mother, face floating downward in 32 inches of water that covered the meter room floor.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

This Is Why "There's a Ford in Your Future"

Louis White of 1337 Fort Stevens dr. asks:

"Can't we interest the Park Commission in the elimination of those anachronistic fords in Rock Creek Park, to give us a through boulevard from the Northwest section to the downtown area?

"As you probably know, when the fords are closed, due to high water, the route is closed to through traffic."

I've often wondered about the same thing, Lou, so I went to the National Capital Parks people for the answer.

Assistant Superintendent Harry T. Thompson told me that, first off, lots of folks want the fords retained, even at the cost of traffic congestion.

And even if you could overcome the objections of the aesthetes, you'd find that the terrain does not lend itself to the bridging of all the fords, according to Thompson.

Bridges would have to be built on very high ground, because these streams sometimes rise quite high. This would necessitate the placing of bridges in such locations that the desired effect on traffic would be partially lost.

And besides, there's that old refrain: Congress would have to appropriate the money.

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

It takes a mighty lazy man to be home for your program. I heard it today and like it, but why don't they air you at a time when men are at home to listen?

As it is, you're a sort of intermezzo in an all-day soap opera.

Blaine Stubblefield

Dear Lazy Man:

You've been listening to the wrong stations, Blaine. WINX has no soap operas. Mine is their only sad program.

By the way, since you, yourself, have a 12:15 p. m. broadcast, you should know that lots of people are at home during the noon hour.

Is it my fault some of them are stubborn and won't turn on their radios—just because I don't give away five mink coats, a house and lot, a '48 convertible and a pound of butter?

Bill.

GIVE-AWAYS

"Two hundred or more mimosa trees; they range in size from 1 foot to 6 feet tall. I can furnish digging equipment, you do the digging." (Waldorf, Md., 3108, Mrs. Harold Postman.)

"Fine 5-year-old small Great Dane, healthy, affectionate, intelligent, trained. I'm leaving for South America Sunday, can't take him along." (Hobart 7033.)

Note to Mickey Cooley, 2824 Buena Vista ter. se.: Sorry, we can't take "orders" for pets, but if you follow these listings it won't be long before you find what you want.

PERSONAL NOTES

Joyce Weeks, 77 V st. nw.: Your hunch was right. It was the same patrol wagon. After the flower vendor died, the law required police to dispose of his perishable merchandise. The boys at No. 1 turned the stored flowers into cash and forwarded the money to the man's estate.

OH, HAPPY DAY

Mrs. Joseph J. Lyons, jr., of 610 Silver Spring ave., Silver Spring, Md., has gotten her quota of those "cute" birth announcements.

But Mrs. Lyons has never seen anything like the announcement she got from her in-laws a few weeks ago. On its cover, it began like this:

Into the Here
And from out of the There
I came on a wing
In reply to a prayer.

The inside page of the folded announcement contained the vital statistics:

"My parents are: George and Margaret Marks. I was born on: February 21, 1948. My name is: Susie Chevrolet. I weighed: 3253 pounds."

CONFUSING, ISN'T IT?

The American Forum of the Air, broadcast Tuesday night over WOL, discussed the subject of a sales tax for the District of Columbia.

Congressman Arthur G. Klein of New York spoke against the tax, while Congressman A. L. Miller of Nebraska was for it.

But, strangely enough, Mr. Klein (against) comes from a State which has a sales tax, and Mr. Miller (for) fought bitterly against such a levy in his native Nebraska, and succeeded in defeating it there.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY, POP

Nine-year-old Robert Bassin, son of restaurateur Max Bassin of 58 Allison st. ne., writes:

"Since Thursday is my father's birthday, please put this poem in your column because I know he reads it every day:

"Brenda and I love you dearly
And say 'Happy Birthday, dear Dad.'
Both of us promise you clearly
We'll try never more to be bad."

NEW YORK—Maj. Gen. Harry Vaughan, the President's military aide, almost became a PFC last week. At the St. Patrick's Day dinner in New York he had a copy of the speech which the President was to deliver. When the President asked for it, Gen. Vaughan couldn't find it. For five minutes his commission teetered while he searched for it, and finally found it in his pocket . . . Clifton Webb, who probably will be nominated for an Academy Award for his performance in "Sitting Pretty," is proposing a clarification in the Academy designation of "Supporting Performance." He points out that Edmund Gwenn, who won the Oscar for the Best Supporting Performance in "Miracle on 34th St.," really played the leading role. Robert Ryan, who was nominated for his work in "Crossfire," also played a leading role. "If an actor's performance is good enough to win an Oscar," said Webb, "it shouldn't be called 'Supporting' just because he's not a well-publicized star."

General Eisenhower's friends are reviving the talk of his availability. "The best way to get him is not to ask him," said one of them. "But if Truman were to ask him to run, Eisenhower would do it. The general has said that he's been a public servant all his life, and if the people should want him to do a job, he would not shirk the duty" . . . Senator Chavez said last week: "Barkley and I are the only Democratic Senators who aren't candidates for the Vice Presidential nomination."

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Pearson Broadcasts to Italians

By Drew Pearson

Last week I gave the following broadcast shortwave translated into Italian to the Italian people:

"Amechi Italiani! It seems only a very short time ago since I was traveling through Italy on the Friendship Train. I remember vividly the hosts of Italian friends who greeted us: the children of Naples with their flags, the stirring reception Premier de Gasperi gave us at the Campidoglio in Rome, and the railroad train crew that threatened to strike because they wanted the honor of hauling the Friendship Train beyond Bologna.

Pearson

"My thoughts and those of many other Americans have been with the Italian people since that time, especially so right now.

"Your American friends have also been thinking about you these days because we have been worried. We have been worried by disturbing reports that some of the things we fought for may now be forgotten.

"I think I can truly say—because I knew well the American soldier—that they were sincerely fighting a war to end war and preserve democracy. And many of you, though your Fascist dictator was on the other side, courageously helped them toward that goal.

U. S. Army Demobilized

"But when the armistice came, and we sent our armies home, we found that another power didn't. At first we couldn't believe this. As allies we had trusted each other. But with the end of the war, when one power kept a big army in the field we began to wonder.

"The American Army was demobilized from the huge total of 15 million men to only 600,000 in a few short months, but our ally, though discharging a few men, has kept a very large army.

"During the war the United States had developed a new and terrifying weapon — so terrifying that after the United Nations was organized, we offered to abolish this weapon—the atom bomb.

"But this one power, this former ally which had not demobilized, refused to cooperate. It refused this generous American offer to abolish the atom bomb. This one country refused to have the United Nations inspect its war plants—though we were willing to have ours inspected.

"I am afraid the refusal by one power to accept this act of friendship has led to more distrust and ill will than anything that has happened since the end of Hitler.

"For if the atom bomb could be abolished, and the peacetime secret of the atom could be shared by the world, it would bring a new haven of happiness and prosperity. If the atom could be harnessed for peacetime medicine and industry, it would mean the end of Italy's worries over coal, it would mean energy for the great factories of Milan and Bologna and Turin without importing one ton of coal. It would mean heated homes for all Italy—the sunshine of the summer blossoming forth in the winter.

"All this, America offered to the world. And because of one nation, it was refused.

U. S. Has Its Faults

"Now you may have heard some critical things about the United States these days when propaganda is being spread so energetically from certain sources; and I would be the first to deny that we in America don't have our faults.

"But I know the American people, and this much I can tell you. They sincerely, devoutly want peace, and are willing to work at it. The Friendship Train was one example.

"The Marshall Plan and the tons of wheat we have sent to Europe is another example of working at peace and friendship. When I was in Italy, I heard some Italians say that the Marshall Plan was just a clever scheme to benefit America, a device to bolster our prosperity.

"Well, I can tell you that last week the American people finished paying their annual taxes, taxes which have been kept high because of the wheat we have been sending to Europe and because we have to pay for the Marshall Plan. These taxes are as high as those of any country in the world, and we don't like to pay taxes. But we will pay them, and will sacrifice if it will help to build up a peaceful, friendly Europe.

"I hope that no iron curtain will separate us after April 18. I hope that I shall be coming back to Italy when days are happier, and times are more prosperous as a result of continued cooperation between Americans and Italians. I hope I shall come back to Udine again and hear the little boys' band play, and that I shall ride once more in a locomotive cab with Minister of Transport Corbellini as the engineer. Minister Corbellini is a great guy, even though he hadn't driven a locomotive for several years and was a little slow getting this one started. But all the world has been a little slow recently. And I predict that with the Italian and American people working together, pulling together after April 18, at least one part of the world will be moving a lot faster—toward peace and friendship."

How can I tell you?

I wish that I could give you all . . . The feeling in my heart . . . But how can I accomplish it . . . When we are still apart? . . . How can I make you understand . . . That you mean more to me . . . Than all the magic wonderland . . . Of time and memory? . . . I dream of you each time I sleep . . . I cherish you each day . . . I even glorify your name . . . In everything I say . . . My only share of pleasure and . . . My measure of success . . . Depend entirely upon . . . Your constant happiness . . . But I am here and you are there . . . And we are still apart . . . So how can I convey to you . . . The feeling in my heart?
